NEW GOULD BRIDE HAS HOME ON SOUND AND TWO CHILDREN

Mrs. Vere Sinclair Has Occupied Manursing Island Place for Several Years.

LONG A FRIEND OF MR. GOULD

Mother, According to Rye Townspeople, Sailed for Europe About Six Weeks Ago.

COUPLE AT AIX LE BAINS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 12.—George J. Gould was not married at any municipal office or at any church here during last week. Mr. Gould arrived in Paris from London last Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Drexel and a woman and registered at the Hotel Meurice as Mr. and Mrs. Gould. They stopped here till last Saturday, when they left by automobile for Aix les Bains with the Drexels. The arrival of the Drexels at the Hotel Splendide there has been recorded in the newspaper social register but no mention has been made of the Goulds.

Confirmation was obtained from the manager of the Splendide by telephone tonight that Mr. and Mrs. Gould were stopping at the hotel with the Drexels. Further information was not available and Mr. Gould would not come to the telephone.

Long a Friend of Mrs. Sinclair.

The bride with whom George J. Gould arrived in Paris soon after his children in New York were notified by cable of his second marriage was further identified yesterday as Mrs. Vere Sinclair, who for the last few years has occupied a large estate on Manursing Island, just off Rye, N. Y. While members of Mr. Gould's family and men who have been intimately associated with him for a long time were reticent, it was learned that his friendship for Mrs. Sinclair dates back several years. Mrs. Sinclair is known to have two children, a boy of about 7 years old, and a girl of about 4 years. There was also said yesterday to be a much younger child.

The bride was described as "a charming little girl" last night by a man who is well acquainted with Mr. Gould and the present Mrs. Gould, and to whom all inquiries concerning them were referred by the servants at the Manursing Island estate. This friend of Mr. Gould, who requested that his name be withheld, said:

"I have been informed that they were married. I cannot give you any details. You will have to get them from Mr. Gould. His wife is an American girl. She was born somewhere in Ohio, but her parents came to this country from England. She is a charming little girl."

Didn't Know of Stage Career.

Asked for details concerning the stage career said to have been begun by Mrs. Sinclair this informant declared that he did not know that she ever had been on the stage.

While details of the marriage of Mr. Gould and Mrs. Sinclair are not disclosed by cable dispatches from Paris, the indications are that they were married in London and went to Paris with Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Drexel.

When inquiries were made at the Sinclair home on Manursing Island, servants said that she had sailed for Europe several weeks ago, but they refused to disclose where her children were at the present time. Their disinclination to talk, they said, was in accordance with instructions. From residents of Rye and from the tradespeople it was learned that Mrs. Sinclair left her island home in the Sound about six weeks ago, saying when she settled her bills that she was going to Europe on an extended trip.

Mrs. Sinclair lived quite apart from the other residents of Rye during the years she occupied the pretentious residence, known as the old Cromwell place, and seemed to have been happy with her children. Residents who said they were able to identify George J. Gould beyond a doubt tell of having seen his yacht tied up at one of the two private piers of Mrs. Sinclair's place, where it remained over week ends on many occasions during the past two years.

Say Mr. Gould Was Frequent Visitor.

When Mr. Gould did not travel by water, the villagers said, he often went by motor to Manursing Island, which is connected with the mainland by a road. Tradespeople from whom Mrs. Sinclair has been accustomed to buy her supplies said they heard her speak often last Summer of her mother and sister, who occupied a cottage at Rye. They described the bride as a blonde, probably 30 years old, and about 5 feet 6 inches tall. Occasionally she wore glasses.

Until recently Mrs. Sinclair held under her own name a farm of 270 acres at Doansberg, about six miles north of Brewster, and situated on the main State highway to the Berkshires. Records in the office of the County Clerk show that the deeds were recorded on Aug. 24, 1918, and that the value of the property at that time was $18,000. George McCall, who was foreman of the estate for several years after Mrs. Sinclair acquired it, said that she used to go there about half a dozen times a year with her children, and that frequently she was accompanied by George J. Gould. They would remain for the day and then return to Manursing Island.

On one occasion McCall said he went to Manursing Island to confer with Mrs. Sinclair about the management of her

Woman Is Coming Here In Diplomatic Post

LONDON, July 12 (Associated Press).—Miss Nadeja Stancioff, daughter of the Bulgarian Minister in London, has been appointed First Secretary of the Bulgarian Legation in Washington, it was announced today.

This is the first known instance of the appointment of a woman to such an important diplomatic post. Miss Stancioff, who is 25 years of age, a graduate of the Sorbonne, and who speaks seven languages, represented Bulgaria, with Premier Stanboulisky, at the Genoa conference and has participated in several meetings of the League of Nations.

In the absence of her father, she has been in charge of the Bulgarian Legation here, and is referred to as a "lady plenipotentiary." She leaves for America in September, replacing Dr. Lessinoff, now the First Secretary of the Washington Legation, who will come to London.

Group Playing Croquet Is Wiped Out When "Dud" Is Set Off in Yard at Watertown.

PROBABLY HIT BY MALLET

Expert Says Heat May Have Made TNT Susceptible—Town Combed for Other Souvenirs.

Special to The New York Times.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., July 12.—A three-inch shell that was a "dud" when it was fired here in artillery practice last Summer went off with a terrific blast this afternoon, killing eight little children who were playing near it.

Whether the youngsters brought sudden destruction upon themselves, or just how the high explosive was detonated, probably never will be known now. The most plausible theory is that one of the children, who were playing croquet, struck the shell a blow with a mallet.

Captain G. H. Schumacher, construction quartermaster at Madison Barracks, who is an authority on artillery ammunition, said the intense heat of a Summer day would have expanded the TNT charge inside the brass case, making it particularly susceptible to detonation by a slight jar. He insisted, however, that such a jar would have been necessary, that the shell could not have exploded spontaneously.

That it was in some such fashion that the piece of ammunition, which had been kept as a souvenir for a year, was set off seemed particularly probable when a search of the debris disclosed the body of one little victim in the ruins of the porch near where the shell had stood.

Search for Other Shells.

Several other shells which failed to go off when they were fired are known to be in Watertown, and policemen and firemen are searching for them tonight. They will be thrown into the river, lest another accident happen.

The victims of the explosion today were:

BROWN, OLIN, 14.
HORTON, DONALD, of Pulaski.
JONES, VIVIAN, 12.
SALISBURY, MONROE, 13.
WORKMAN, ANSON, 13 years old.
WORKMAN, EDNA, 14.
WYLIE, FRANCES, 12.

Death came quickly to all but one of the children. Monroe Salisbury was still breathing when man and women rushed from all directions as the blast rocked near-by houses. The boy was rushed to a hospital, but died before he could be got into the operating room.

The shell had been fired by the 108th Heavy Artillery of Buffalo, a howitzer regiment which engaged in target practice on the Pine Plains reservation last Summer. It was picked up by Workman and eventually found its way to the back porch of the two-family house shared by the parents of the Workman children and those of the Salisbury boy at 423 Dimmick Street.

It was in the usual place when the children began playing croquet this afternoon. There was no noticeable lull in their game, the shrill cries and shouts and laughter continuing until very suddenly they were interrupted by a deep roar.

The rear of the concrete block house was wrecked, the heavy concrete porch was blown to bits, parts of the metal jacket of the shell tore through three small storages and struck a house; another fragment ripped its way through the side of a house, still other pieces bore through an eight-inch iron pipe used as a clothespole, while one chunk fell at the feet of a letter carrier.

The shock of the explosion was felt for a block or more, while the noise was audible over a greater distance, so that hundreds came running to the scene.

They found the little children, badly mutilated and the clothing almost all torn from their bodies, scattered about,

HE CONFERS WITH HUGHES

Secretary of State Is Sympathetic and Agreement Perpetuating Ideals Is Expected.

MOVE COMES AS SURPRISE

Present Agreement Has Maintained Peace on the Border for 105 Years.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The fact that the long frontier between Canada and the United States has remained unfortified for more than a century was emphasized today when William Lyon Mackenzie King, the Canadian Premier, and George Perry Graham, the Canadian Minister of National Defense, called at the State Department and at a conference with Secretary of State Hughes proposed that the ideals of the Rush-Bagot Agreement, limiting the naval forces of Great Britain and the United States on the Great Lakes and Lake Champlain, be perpetuated in a new treaty between this country and Canada.

Under the terms of the Rush-Bagot Agreement armament on the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence River was restricted to four vessels of 100 tons burden, each carrying not more than one eighteen-pound gun. The idea of the Canadian Premier as submitted to Secretary Hughes today is to modernize the Rush-Bagot Agreement and embody the ideals of its framers into a new and formal treaty.

"We feel," said the Canadian Premier to a representative of THE NEW YORK TIMES, "that if the American Government has the same view with respect to effecting economies, while at the same time furthering the efficiency of defense, the ideals of the Rush-Bagot treaty can be perpetuated into a new permanent treaty that will be a landmark in the direction of limitation of armaments. We feel that here is an opportunity for Canada and America to give a lesson in international good-will and friendly dealings."

Find Hughes Sympathetic.

The Canadian officials found Secretary Hughes highly sympathetic and it is their expectation that the proposal submitted today will result in negotiations for the formulation of a new treaty. Details of the proposed treaty will be left to such negotiations. Only the general purpose and spirit of the proposal were suggested in today's conference.

The visit of the Canadian Premier and the Minister of Defense will also serve to cement the traditional friendship of the two countries in other ways, by paving the way for the settlement of other matters between them, and bringing the Canadian Premier and Minister Graham into closer personal contact with American Government officials.

Premier Mackenzie King and Minister Graham were received at the White House by President Harding this afternoon. Secretary Hughes presented them to the President to whom the purpose of their mission was disclosed. Their call at the White House followed a luncheon in their honor given by Secretary Hughes at the Metropolitan Club, where they met Secretaries Mellon, Weeks, Hoover and Wallace, Senator Lodge, Representative Porter of the House Foreign Affairs Committee; Charge d'Affaires Henry Getty Chilton of the British embassy, Under Secretary of State Phillips and Third Assistant Secretary of State Bliss. Early this evening Senators Lenroot and Kellogg called on the Canadian Premier and Minister Graham at the Hotel Shoreham, where they will remain until Friday. They will meet other Senators and members of Congress and other officials of the Administration before returning to Canada.

Since the new Liberal Administration assumed office in Canada at the commencement of the present year, several matters affecting the relations of the two countries have attracted attention. Some of these have been dealt with by correspondence. With regard to others, it was felt that, in the long run, more satisfactory progress would be made if opportunity were offered for personal conversation between members of the two Governments. It is understood that at this morning's interview some of these were touched upon. In particular, mention was made of measures for the protection and conservation of the fisheries of British Columbia and of eastern Canada in international waters and beyond the three-mile limit. These matters have been much discussed in the past, but

HAGUE CONFERENCE MAY BREAK UP TODAY

Russians Flatly Reject the Powers' Proposals on Private Property and Debts.

LITVINOFF IS DEFIANT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, July 12.—The Hague Russian conference came practically to an end today when, cornered after three weeks' dodging, the Soviet delegates refused to accept the principle of the restitution of private property nationalized and agreed to discuss compensation only if large credits were given. That was this morning. This afternoon the Russians, in reply to definite questions relating to debts, refused to accept a mixed commission to decide when payments should begin.

M. Litvinoff announced tonight: "The failure of the conference is now a foregone conclusion;" and all the other delegates agree with him. The powers' delegates say all their remaining work [illegible] a report to their governments [illegible] with the Bolshevists is impossible, and the Russians say all that remains to be done is to fix the blame on them.

As at Genoa, the Russians have played a consistent game and the same game. They are willing to sign an agreement if they get paid for it in the form of credits. When it was plain at Genoa that they could not get credits, they took back concessions they had made in their memorandum of May 11. After finding at The Hague that no one would lend money to them the Soviets give the replies of today, retreating from their original position.

In addition to a report to their Governments, it is understood that the delegates will draft for governmental approval an agreement not to make separate treaties with the Russians for a period to be fixed. It will be recalled that under the terms of The Hague meeting no separate treaties were to be made with Moscow for one month after the end of the conference.

Although the Russians are understood to have asked that their train be ready for Friday, if possible, a good many delegates will remain over until next week to draft the report.

In an interview tonight M. Litvinoff said that Russia isolated could continue to exist and that at any rate the failure of The Hague conference left the Russians in a better position than the bondholders who trusted the delegates to recover their money from the Russians here. The Russian chief recalled that the peace compact signed at Genoa ended a month after the close of The Hague conference, but added "don't interpret that to mean that we will get out our cannon next month."

At this morning's session of the Private Property Commission Sir Philip Lloyd Greame told Russians that the powers' experts had examined the list of concessions the Russians were ready to give and found it contained only a small percentage, about 5 per cent. of foreign-owned property in Russia.

He said the list was hard to understand, but he understood it well enough to say that if it represented the Russians' last word it would not only not satisfy the claims against Russia, but would show that the Soviets had no means of undertaking the restoration of Russia.

Specific Questions Put.

"We want to know here and now," he said to the Russians, "what seized property you intend to hand back, and why you are not going to hand back any you retain, and what you are going to do about paying for what you keep. Those questions are plain enough for any one to understand. I ask you to reply to them, for we want to know where we are."

M. Litvinoff said he was not surprised to find the list inacceptable, and doubted if any Russian list would be acceptable. He declared the list represented approximately all the Russians were prepared to give in concessions, and they did not intend to give those unless they got credits. As for restitution of private property, the Russians declined to accept the obligation, and as for compensation, it would be time to discuss that when credits had been given.

He denied that the Soviets felt any obligation in the premises, and what they might do would depend only on what was done for them. He added that it was no use discussing compensation now.

In reply to a question relating to guarantees for the safety of invested capital, M. Litvinoff informed the commission: "The Russian Government is the most stable in Europe today and has lasted for five years without change. Capital would be safer in Soviet Russia than in any capitalistic country in the world."

GUARDS AND PICKETS CLASH

JEWELL BARS VIOLENCE

Warns Mass Meeting of 10,000 Strikers in Jersey City—Erie Commuters Delayed.

CLERKS GAIN TWO POINTS

Spread of the railroad shopmen's strike to include the 15,000 clerks, freight handlers and station employes on the New York Central lines was averted yesterday at a conference between union representatives and company officials at which a satisfactory settlement was reached. The progress of the strike in this district continued to be marked by conflicting statements of the railroad managers and strike leaders. In the meantime thousands of commuters and others were delayed by breakdowns on a number of roads.

The first serious disorder of the shopmen's strike in the metropolitan district occurred yesterday afternoon at the Port Morris yards of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad. In a clash between union pickets and special police guarding the railroad property, James Molloy of Guy Street, Dover, a striker, was hit on the head and his skull possibly fractured. Two guards were held without bail on a charge of atrocious assault. Five strikers were released on $50 bail each on an assault charge. The police had to disperse a crowd of several hundred men at the Municipal building awaiting the decision of Justice Martin in the case of the two guards.

Charges Into Crowd.

The clash occurred as the strikers were coming from a meeting in Port Morris, when, it is alleged, they called one of the special officers guarding the Lackawanna property "a bull." The officer, Louis Kaplan, it is charged, drew his blackjack and struck into the crowd, which immediately rushed him.

As Kaplan went down under the rush of the mob, which numbered about sixty, two railroad police lieutenants, John E. Moore and Charles Mahon, came to the rescue with other guards, and the mix-up became general. Town police dispersed the rioters, and when the battle ended Holley was sent to the Dover Hospital. His son, Johnson Holley, later swore out a warrant against Kaplan and another guard. Meanwhile Moore and Mahon brought in the five prisoners, who subsequently were released on bail.

Violence cropped up again in Jersey City when George Ginstrata, living in New York, a car inspector, was struck on the head with a brick while at work in the Erie yards. The police arrested Frank Woleck, a striker. Ginstrata was taken home after his wound was treated. The police investigated a report that Edward Gallagher of 140 Stevens Avenue, Jersey City, a track foreman for the Pennsylvania, had been attacked by a band. He declined to make any complaint.

Policeman John O'Connell of the Seventh Street Station, Jersey City, arrested Frederick York, 22, negro, of Farmingdale, N. J., a strikebreaker employed by the Erie, on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

Strikers in Long Island City were active, and a committee called at the Thirteenth Inspection District Police Headquarters and complained to Police Inspector Formosa of alleged unwarranted interference by a policeman with men at strike headquarters. Inspector Formosa investigated and said the police had entered the building in pursuit of street fighters who retreated there.

Indications that strikers are moving into outside jurisdictions to accept temporary jobs, virtually as strikebreakers, pending settlement of the strike, were seen in the admission of union leaders yesterday that the number of men reporting daily at the Long Island strike headquarters is diminishing. It was said that strikers from New Jersey, in order to hold their status there with the unions, had gone to Long Island to take jobs in the Pennsylvania shops, and it is believed that the Long Island men are retaliating by working in New Jersey. All of these men, it was said, plan to return to their old jobs in event the unions win the strike or arrive at a satisfactory adjustment with the carriers.

Peace Details Withheld.

While the details of the New York Central settlement were withheld, it was understood that the company granted the union's demands for discontinuance of the contract system of handling freight and for restoration of vacation and sick leave pay. The question of the wage reduction authorized by the United States Railroad Labor Board, it was said, would be considered later.

Federation Orders Metal Trades Unions Not to Work on Rail Repairs in Outside Shops

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Members of all unions affiliated with the Metal Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor were instructed in orders sent out today from the headquarters here that no further repair work will be authorized on locomotives coming from railroads on which strikes are in progress to outside shops employing union labor.

The order, sent out by A. J. Berres, Secretary-Treasurer of the department, was to be effective at once. Identical copies went to the Presidents of all internationals affiliated with the metal trades group, who were instructed to notify their locals.

The unions affected include boilermakers, electric workers, pipe-fitters, plumbers, painters and carpenters, as well as machinists and blacksmiths.

The American Locomotive Works, to which many of the railroads affected by the strike had been sending their hauling equipment for necessary repairs, were specifically referred to in the order.

In a statement tonight, Mr. Berres declared there was "enough work on new locomotives in the plants of this company to keep the workmen busy, and there will be no cessation from work unless attempts are made to force the men to do the repair work."

ANTHRACITE OWNERS FAVOR HARDING PLAN

Response to President's Offer of Arbitration Is Viewed as an Acceptance.

MAKE TWO SUGGESTIONS

Want Separate Commission to Act on Wages and Request Decision About Aug. 10.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Hope for an early settlement of the coal strike was increased today when operators of the anthracite fields submitted a reply to President Harding, in which they declared they were "entirely in sympathy with the principle of the method of settlement which you have proposed."

The operators made a number of suggestions for modification of the President's plan, the outstanding one being that a separate commission of five should be named to handle disputes in the anthracite industry. This was based on the contention that problems involved in the anthracite and bituminous disputes had little in common, and that an endeavor to have one commission settle both problems would inevitably mean long delay.

The request also was made that a new wage scale, effective until March 31, 1923, should be handed down by Aug. 10, and that a permanent agency be created to make adjustments thereafter, the decisions to be binding on both miners and operators. This, the operators held, was the only feasible method to prevent further disputes and suspension of operations.

Viewed as an Acceptance.

It was understood tonight that the White House viewed the reply of the anthracite operators as an acceptance of the President's proposal for arbitration by a commission. There was no word to indicate, however, that the President was prepared to accept all or any of the suggestions made by the operators, but they will receive consideration.

John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America, after reading the statement by the operators of the anthracite fields, said it would receive consideration by the miners at the meeting of the Policy Committee, which is to be held here on Saturday to frame a reply to the President's proposal.

The understanding is that the United Mine Workers of America, who control the workers in the anthracite as well as the bituminous coal fields, will not have any serious objection to offer to the suggestion that a separate commission be named to consider the problems of the anthracite fields. The miners have admitted that the problems are quite different from those confronted in the bituminous industry.

It is certain, however, that serious objection will be made by the workers to the proposal by the operators of the anthracite fields that a permanent commission be named to make wage adjustments from time to time after March, 1923, which would be binding on both parties to the agreement. This, some of the leaders of the workers contend, would destroy the principle of collective bargaining and result in setting up a tribunal similar to the Railroad Labor Board, with the understanding that its decisions must be accepted. Such a proposal is certain to be fought to the end.

Inquiry Is Welcomed.

The view taken by Administration officials is said to be that the reply of the operators of the anthracite fields forecasts their willingness to accept the Administration's program, even though all of the conditions made by the operators are not met. It was expected that concessions would be asked. On the other hand, the general trend of the reply was accepted as highly favorable to acquiescence by the operators in the President's plan.

The attitude taken by the operators in this instance did not come as very much of a surprise. As soon as the original proposal was made by President Harding for the appointment of one commission of eleven members to make a searching investigation of both branches of the coal industry it was

FORCES AND TRUCKS READY TO RUN MAILS

TO USE ARMY IF NEEDED

War Office Discloses That the President's Proclamation Will Be Backed Up.

WASHINGTON, July 12 (Associated Press).—Among the indications of possible Government action should strike disorders continue, following the President's proclamation, was the disclosure at the War Department today that the military arm of the Government was in readiness to carry out promptly any instructions which might be issued by the President to support the policy declared in his proclamation. So far as known, no such instructions have as yet issued from the White House and such precautionary measures as the army corps area commanders might deem it advisable to take within their jurisdiction would be decided upon in view of the general terms of the proclamation.

It is evident that army officials do not anticipate leaving the decision as to the employment of Federal troops under the President's proclamation entirely to the regional commanders, however. While particular emergencies might conceivably arise where the protection of life and property and the security of the mails and interstate commerce might require such prompt action by the Federal authorities in any locality as would make it impossible to communicate with Washington and receive instructions, in the general course it is to be expected that the Federal troops would be employed only on specific approval from Washington.

Postmaster General Work said today he was of the opinion that the Presidential proclamation would have determining weight with the thinking people of the country, and that its effect both upon railway executives and the great body of striking workers would be such as to clarify the atmosphere and create a feeling different from that which has actuated both parties to the strike.

In the event of the proclamation proving ineffective, the impression among postal officials was that both State and Federal troops would be called upon to see that mail trains especially were operated without molestation. These same officials expressed the opinion that while the striking railway workers naturally were to be expected to evidence their feelings in various ways during a great strike, yet few, if any, would stoop to any move that would interfere with the movement of the mails.

Although the Postmaster General was said to feel that the railroads would find a way and would be permitted to move all mail matter, yet he had instructed his departmental heads to make a canvass of the postal system with a view to determining what motor corps and airplane facilities would be available in an emergency. There are more than 8,000 motor trucks controlled by the department, he said, which might be placed into service immediately. In addition to several other thousands in the possession of the War Department which could be inducted into service.

With 8,000 or 9,000 trucks, it was said, a vast quantity of mail matter could be moved, and the failure of the rail systems to observe their contracts would not materially hinder the work of the department. If the rail truck service should prove sufficiently effective, some postal officials intimated that eventually the railroads of the country might find themselves minus many postal contracts, and that in the future all mail might be moved by motor truck as expeditiously as the railroads now haul it.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 12.—Sixteen hundred citizens may be sworn in as special United States deputy marshals to act as guards for the Post Office service on mail trains running out of Cleveland during the railway strike, it was said today.

First steps in organizing the deputies were taken today when United States Marshal George A. Stauffer made a check on the number of guards needed on all railroads here.

Stauffer forwarded his information to Attorney General Daugherty at Washington, and he expects to receive an order authorizing him to swear in the new deputies within the next few days.

The marshal began a check of the railroads to determine the number of guards needed for service on mail cars after receiving a telegram from Attorney General Daugherty that strike conditions warranted protection of mail cars.

REJECT STRIKERS' TERMS

Executives Tell Hooper There Is No Basis for Conference.

DEPUTIES BEATEN IN SOUTH

MORE MAIL TRAINS STOPPED

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Hopes of quickly settling the strike of 200,000 railway shopmen were dashed late today when rail officials issued a statement flatly refusing the proposal of Ben W. Hooper, Chairman of the United States Railroad Labor Board, that the carriers enter into a peace parley with E. M. Jewell, head of the striking shop crafts.

The rail executives said such a meeting could not "be arranged under peaceful circumstances," until the men return to work.

This decision followed all day conferences. Early in the day regional chairmen of the Railroad Committee on Public Relations, representing roads in all parts of the country, met with Chairman Hooper at the Labor Board offices in the Transportation Building. They took Mr. Hooper's suggestion "under advisement."

The railway executives then hastened to a meeting in the Chicago Club with chiefs of the four trains service brotherhoods. Meanwhile, the Labor Board Chairman awaited a reply in his office, while President Jewell in his union headquarters was equally eager.

The statement was signed by Samuel M. Felton, President of the Chicago Great Western, representing the Western territory; L. F. Loree, President of the Delaware & Hudson, representing the Eastern territory; S. T. Bush, President of the Missouri Pacific, Southwestern territory, and Whitford Cole, President of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis, the Southeastern territory.

While no comment was forthcoming from Labor Board members tonight, the executives' refusal to "give an inch" was something of a surprise to them, according to reports.

The latest word from the railway officials leaves the strike situation about as it appeared before Chairman Hooper and President Jewell joined in separate conferences started last Saturday in the hope of finding some common ground in which the olive branch might sprout.

Following announcement of these conferences, peace prospects seemed shining this morning. The executives' statement appeared as new clouds.

Following the earlier conference which he had hoped would result in definite peace negotiations, Chairman Hooper had issued the following statement:

"The situation was rather fairly and frankly gone over. Our main purpose was to effect a conference between representatives of the carriers and Mr. Jewell and his associates, in regard to certain matters incident to the strike.

"My suggestions to the conference did not involve any proposal to modify in any manner any decision of the United States Railroad Labor Board, and I may say that I consider such a conference as suggested upon the subject mentioned by me perfectly proper, possibly helpful, and certainly no indication of surrender on the part of anybody concerned."

While following their secret conferences, neither Chairman Hooper nor President Jewell had said what progress might lead to peace, it had been reported that some concessions from both the carriers and the employes would be required, with the Labor Board standing pat on the wage and other decisions involved in the strike.

Text of Rail Executives' Letter.

The full text of the rail executives' letter follows:

Replying to your inquiry of Messrs. Bush, Cole, Loree and Felton on the occasion of your call this morning, we beg to say that while we, as Chairmen of conference committees relating to railroad matters in the several sections of the country, are without authority to speak for individual companies, we have no reason to believe that a meeting between the railroad companies and representatives of the striking employes can be arranged under present conditions.

This strike is a refusal to accept the results of the arbitration of the United States Railroad Labor Board, pursuant to law, after exhaustive hearings in which all parties concerned were fully heard. On June 30 last the board, of which you are Chairman, called a public hearing on the situation by the proper representatives of the carriers and organizations named in the order of the board for the purpose of an inquiry initiated by the board under Section 312 of the Transportation Act, 1920. Notwithstanding the due response by carriers to this citation, representatives of the organization, members of which are now on strike, refused to attend, and persisted in their refusal to do so, and thereby left the board in the performance of its public duty in the further inquiry into the circumstances relating to the strike then threatened.

After respectful consideration of your inquiry, the conclusion is necessarily to follow, that the strike thereafter called in defiance of the decision and order of the United States Railroad Labor Board,

Ten Are Killed, Forty Hurt Near Kansas City When Missouri Pacific Flier Hits Freight

KANSAS CITY, July 12.—Ten persons were killed and more than forty injured, some dangerously, at 6.45 o'clock tonight in Swope Park, near here, when Missouri Pacific passenger train Number 11, the scenic limited to Colorado, and a freight train from Osawatomie, Kansas, were in a head on collision. The number of dead may be larger after the wreckage is cleared away.

The collision was caused by the passenger train running past a switch where it had orders to pass the freight train. C. E. Bonnette, conductor of the passenger train, said he was pulling the bell cord and the air cord when the collision occurred. He said the orders were for the passenger train to stop at Hytex station and that he knew a collision would result when the train went through.

O. E. Steck, fireman on the passenger train, said he saw the freight train coming and called to the engineer to jump. Steck jumped and received only minor injuries.

A Shriners' picnic was in full swing in the park and the Shriners devoted the entire early part of the night to relief work. About fifty physicians, members of the order, gave first aid.

W. A. Hader of Independence, Mo., engineer of the freight train, stuck to the throttle and was killed.

Board—Decision No. 1000—and the controlling provisions of the Transportation act, that the issue just raised is not one for consideration between the carriers and representatives of the organized crafts on strike except through the further orderly processes before the United States Railroad Labor Board as contemplated by the Transportation act. This conclusion is confirmed by the statements which have appeared in the public press to the effect that these representatives are only willing to abandon this strike and return to service on the condition that they be relieved from acceptance of the unfavorable decision of the Labor Board in the case referred to. No consequence for that purpose is, in our judgment, permissible nor tolerable, because it would place the carriers participating therein in apparent co-operation with those who are seeking to find means to subvert the decisions of the Labor Board.

On the other hand, a prompt recall of the strike order would permit the resumption of former methods of conferring and presenting the consideration of any matters which representatives of employes might desire to submit.

However, it should be added, we have no reason to doubt the prompt response by the carriers of the country to any statement by the United States Railroad Labor Board to any further bearing that may be called for in connection with this subject in the event the board should determine upon that course.

Hooper to Make Further Effort.

Commenting on the rail executives' letter refusing to confer with the shopmen on a peace program, Mr. Hooper said:

"There is one hopeful thing in the letter and that is the statement that the gentlemen are not authorized to speak for the individual roads. Anticipating this answer, I have made plans for a further effort to end the strike. Any method adopted will be in harmony with the Transportation act."

The statement added that the "reply of these gentlemen contains no reason that will satisfy the public in declining the suggested conference. In so far as the declination is based on a desire to preserve the authority and dignity of the Railroad Labor Board, it is superfluous. The board will endeavor to take care of itself in that regard.

"The statement in the letter that the strike is a refusal to accept the results of the arbitration of the Railroad Labor Board falls a little short of accuracy. One of the questions involved in the strike is violation of the Board's decisions by certain carriers. It is true nearly all of the carriers have discontinued this practice, but some of them have not.

"It is not logical to deny a conference because certain matters may be brought up in which the carriers correctly conceive that their employes are wrong. No harm can be done by a discussion of such matters, or they might even be eliminated from the discussion. Nobody ever gets anywhere with public sentiment in this country by a refusal to put his case before the public and talk with his antagonist, especially where the interests of the public are vitally concerned."

Disorders and Curtailment of Trains.

One man was killed, two others shot and more than sixty, several of them about to become Deputy United States Marshals, beaten and stoned in rail strike riots throughout the nation today in a recurrence of serious outbreaks.

Coincidentally came announcements from railroad officials of the curtailment of more trains, many of them mail carriers, and pleas for troops in three instances. Three ring requests for Federal soldiers came from Texas.

Roads likewise petitioned for and obtained further injunctions restraining strikers from illegal picketing and violence.

The two most serious outbreaks of the day came at Cresset, Ver., and Texas. At the first named town Russell Wiggins, a yard office clerk in the employ of the Norfolk & Western Railway, was killed and an undetermined number of others wounded when shots were fired into a group of striking clerks at the station. The clerks struck on Tuesday morning.

At Denison, Texas, fifty-one men, forty-seven of whom had been taken from the city to serve as United States Deputy Marshals, and other men being railroad guards, were attacked by a crowd of strikers numbering more than 1,000 this morning. W. J. Fling, 27 years old, a watchman for the Missouri, Oklahoma & Gulf Railroad, was shot in the shoulder and abdomen. Six men in the guard were taken to a nearby cotton bottoms, stripped to the waist and flogged with black-snake whips. The remainder escaped the mob.

United States Marshal Phil E. Baer of Dallas at once mobilized 150 other Deputy Marshals and entrained for Denison in a body. They were due to arrive there shortly after midnight.

At Bloomington, Ill., members of the four railway Brotherhoods who threaten action if the Illinois National Guard shops were policed by troops today recended their action, after they were informed by militia authorities that the uniformed guards would be withdrawn as soon as local authority should "fit capability of handling the situation.

CHICAGO, July 12 (Associated Press).—The conference of Chairman Hooper of the Labor Board with railway executives today was said to be the direct result of a ten-minutes telephone conversation late last night between President Harding and W. L. McMeinimen, labor member of the Railroad Labor Board. The premier of the executives to receive the President's proposal through Chairman Hooper was understood to have been communicated to Mr. McMeinimen by the President.

While flatly refusing to meet the leadership of 400,000 striking shopmen to discuss a peace proposal, railway executives tonight left open the door for a settlement of the strike through the Railroad Labor Board.

Mr. Jewell, head of the striking shopmen, before the last of the executives' letter refusing "flatly and finally" to meet representatives of the strikers was read over the telephone to him tonight, remarked:

"It may be final, but it's only final for today."

He refused further comment, declaring that he could not speak until he had heard from Mr. Hooper, who had opened negotiations with him.

In railway circles the belief was expressed that the mere opening of negotiations was a long step toward a settlement and that the moves of the day had resulted in thrusting the case back into the lap of the Labor Board in the exact position in which it had rested when Mr. Jewell and allowed a strike order to go into effect on July 1, after ignoring a telegram to appear before that board with the railway executives and explain his action. He later declared, however, that this action was due to the fact that the meeting was said too late to allow him to withdraw his strike order, and that to have attempted to do so would have resulted in chaos and possible bloodshed.

Two B. & O. Trains Attacked.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 12.—At 8:30 last night a B. & O. train, carrying workmen to the Locust Point yards, was attacked by a gang of about twenty-five men while passing the Devil's Backes, a small pond at the foot of Decatur Street. The men were armed with broken bricks from a dump near by, and threw these at the train, breaking most of the windows in the five cars which composed it. Eight pistol shots were fired while the train was passing the gang, none doing any damage so far as could be learned today. Several of the workmen in the train, it is said, were cut by glass and bricks.

The incident was reported, according to Captain McCarron, Special Officer of the B. & O. Railroad, when the 6:35 train, bearing workers from Locust Point to Camden Station, was attacked about 7 o'clock. Bricks and stones were again thrown through the car windows by a gang standing by the tracks and six pistol shots were fired.

Report Attacks at Saginaw.

SAGINAW, Mich., July 12.—A request was sent to Governor Groesbeck at Lansing late tonight for State troops to maintain order here when a threatening crowd, estimated to number nearly one thousand persons, gathered about the Pere Marquette yards.

One report, which officials could not at first confirm, was that a strike breaker had broken into the Pere Marquette roundhouse, seized strikebreakers brought here by the road, and marched them toward the Saginaw River.

NEEDLES, Cal., July 12.—Four men were wounded here today in a clash between strikers and their successors at the roundhouse of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé Railway.

CRESWE, Va., July 12.—Russell Wiggins, a Norfolk & Western yard office clerk, was killed and an unidentified man was wounded when some one shot into a crowd of picketing clerks at the station here last night. All the Norfolk & Western clerks here walked out yesterday morning.

Intense excitement prevailed among strikers and their sympathizers for a time after the shooting, but the situation was quiet today. Local authorities said they expected no disorder to result from the affair. No arrests have been made.

It is understood that between twenty-five and thirty detective guards employed by the railroad are on duty here.

FORT WORTH, Texas, July 12.—One suspect in the beating up of N. J. Fitzgerald, Santa Fe shop foreman at Cleburne, on Tuesday night, by alleged strike pickets, has been arrested, telephone advices received here said.

In an interview with a newspaper representative, Fitzgerald said he was halted by about fifteen pickets, who forced him into an automobile. Taken four miles east of town, Fitzgerald declared, two men took turns striking him in the face while the others held his arms. After he had been beaten severely, oil was poured on his body and he was left in the road, Fitzgerald stated.

Governor Pat M. Neff refused to listen to details of disorders at Denison, given him by telephone at Stephenville and declared he did not know what action he would take in regard to the request of Receiver J. L. Lancaster for State troops to protect workmen in the Texas & Pacific Railway shops at Longview and other places.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, July 12.—D. H. Hartfield, a negro employe in the car department of the M. K. & T. Railroad here, was severely beaten late yesterday by two other men, who are presumed to be strikers and are said to be negroes. Hartfield is a new employe, having gone to work for the "Katy" since the strike.

At Algiers, La., four negroes working in the shops of the Southern Pacific were fired upon by a crowd of whites, thirteen of whom were arrested for violating the Federal injunction. The prisoners denied they were strikers.

Buffalo Workers' Homes Stoned.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 12.—The home of Andrew Millet, a railroad man in Gardenville, near here, was attacked early today by a gang of men who hurled bricks and stones through windows and broke a door. Several railroad men live in the Millet home, one of them a foreman in the Pennsylvania Railroad car shops who has been working since the shop men's strike began. The Sheriff's office was notified, but when deputies arrived at the place there was no sign of the attacking party, which, it was reported, fled in automobiles.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 12.—One hundred women, wives of striking railroad shopmen, gathered in front of the New York Central railroad office in the Collinwood yards this morning and hurled taunts and defies at the men going to work. Police dispersed the crowd after arresting four women and one man. A few bricks were thrown, police say. One of the women is charged with assault and battery on a police lieutenant. The others are charged with violating the sidewalk ordinance.

Strike sympathizers are alleged to have stoned the home of a railroad worker in Collinwood last night.

FORT MADISON, Iowa, July 12 (Associated Press).—C. L. Mason, Division Superintendent of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé Railway, was kidnapped by four men and thrown from an automobile in an isolated spot seven miles from Danville, Iowa, thirty-five miles northwest of here, last night.

His abductors were arrested this morning on charges of kidnapping and were released under bonds of $2,000 each, provided by E. A. Hamilton, President of the Federation Shop Crafts Union. All the men are striking shopmen.

BOODHOUSE, Ill., July 12 (Associated Press).—City officials today began an investigation into the tarring and feathering of Bert Dickson, night roundhouse foreman of the Chicago & Alton shop here by twenty-five or thirty masked men. Dickson was on strike one day and went back to work.

Special policemen sworn in as a result of the shopmen's strike asserted that Dickson, who said he was a nephew of W. G. Bierd, President of the Chicago & Alton Railroad, probably was given the coat of tar and feathers by sympathizers of the striking shopmen, although the identity of the men could not be learned.

TO BAR RETURN OF STRIKERS.

New England Roads Say They Will Keep All New Workers.

BOSTON, July 12.—Striking shopmen will not be re-employed on New England railroads except to fill vacancies, officials of the three railroads with terminals in this city announced tonight. Thousands of men, they said, had accepted offers of permanent employment since the strike began, and these would be retained, no matter what settlement was reached with the shopmen.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad hired 111 new men here today, bringing the total taken on by this road since the commencement of the strike to 1,689. The Boston & Maine announced that it had 3,000 shopmen working, or 50 per cent. of the pre-strike total.

After a mass meeting of the railroad strikers on the Common today, heads of the various unions met to discuss the situation. It was announced later that strikers would hold out for "so compromise that the discharge of all men acting as strike-breakers, this to include the old men who refused to join in the strike, as well as those hired since."

The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad announced today that it had sent "three trains of the larger locomotives" to builders' shops in Philadelphia and Schenectady for repairs.

"More are lined up to follow," the announcement said, "so that there will be an adequate supply of power at all times to meet the requirements of the service."

Freight and passenger services continue normal, road officials declared, adding that skilled mechanics were being hired from day to day and that the situation is continuing to improve.

The General Board of Adjustment of the Brotherhood of Railroad Station Employes on the Boston & Maine voted today to request the road to restore the rates of pay that existed on June 30 last to the classes of employes represented on the board. P. J. Cole, Grand President of the brotherhood, said in a statement:

"The General Board of Adjustment did not feel justified in taking any definite or final stand at the present time other than to request the Boston & Maine Railroad for the restoration of the rates which were in effect June 30, 1922. This would increase the present rates from 3 to 8 cents per hour, according to the reductions which were granted by the Labor Board."

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., July 12.—Boston & Albany officials today admitted the desertion of 38 of the 139 workmen hired to take the places of the 147 strikers in the West Springfield railroad shops, and blamed the lessening of the working forces to threats of violence by strikers and an assault upon a workman last Sunday.

Strikers today denied that threats had been threatened and said that the desertions were due to the peaceful persuasion of pickets.

WAY MEN ASK CONFERENCES

Pittsburgh Group Seeks Wage Discussion With Roads.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., July 12.—Twenty-two system Chairmen of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes, representing 70,000 men employed by twenty-eight roads in the Middle Atlantic States, met in this city today and agreed upon "concerted action" in presenting wage demands to the railroads during July.

William D. Roberts, Eastern Vice President of the Brotherhood, at the close of the conference stated that the system chairmen and committees had until Aug. 1 to conclude their negotiations before appealing a second time to the Railway Labor Board, and that a strike was not possible for a month at least. He stated that it had been decided to cite the companies individually and simultaneously for the restoration of the scale prevailing before July 1, the restoration of the time and a half clause, and slight wage increases for certain classes. The first of these conferences will be held with the Lehigh Valley Railroad early next week.

Mr. Roberts said the conference had condemned the unauthorized walkouts of maintenance men, adding that every effort would be made to get them back to work. He added:

"The shop laborers are under a great deal of pressure. They have not only to meet the reduced pay, but also the advances made by leaders of associated workmen, who think they have everything to gain by a strike of the maintenance of way men.

"Speaking of the brotherhood, I can only say that we shall not legislate for those men who do not follow the organization."

"At a conference between Mr. Wheacon, General Chairman, representing the clerks, New York Central Lines west of Buffalo; Mr. Robertson, representing the clerks, New York Central Lines, Buffalo and East, and officials of the New York Central Railroad, the question of seniority rights was arrived at, covering the questions in dispute which involved allowance of vacation and sick leave for employes, the discontinuance of the contract system of handling freight and the application of the wage schedule as provided by the United States Labor Board.

"Although the conferees would not disclose just what adjustment had been made on each of the three points, it was made clear that all disputes had been removed. It is understood that the railroad agreed to take up the question of wage reductions with the union leaders later. If no mutual agreement is reached, it is understood that the matter will be referred jointly by the conferees to the Railroad Labor Board for a rehearing.

To Obey Proclamation.

Declaring they would obey President Harding's proclamation forbidding violence, the central strike committee said yesterday in the New York district would "continue to strike until a satisfactory settlement is reached, even if every mail train in the district is cancelled."

Officials of the various railroads announced yesterday that they had received reports of rioting, filling the places of the strikers, and asserted that train service was rapidly getting back to normal. The New Haven railroad reported twenty-three trains of locomotives, to handle extra work, had been ordered out. In the outlying districts, where small communities, passengers on five local trains, were hailed on the meadows outside the Croton yards in the morning when a locomotive on a West Paterson local failed.

Five additional passenger trains were reported by union leaders to have been cancelled by the Erie Railroad. This, however, was denied by company officials. Twenty-three trains were cancelled Monday.

Officials of the West Shore road failed to confirm reports of the Strike Committee that four trains had been taken off. Unofficial lists of cancellations on bulletin boards showed that the Catskill Mountain express, the Albany & Utica express, Newburgh local, and Ulster & Delaware express were delayed in leaving from one to two hours.

Although the New York Central officials reported that the strike was not interfering with train service the public bulletin boards showed some of the fast trains from the West, including the New York Limited, the Fifth Avenue Special, the Commodore, the Knickerbocker and Century Limited, were running from 30 to 45 minutes late.

Roll of Disabled Engines.

Reports to the strike committee showed sixteen steam locomotives were laid up at the Harlem River round house and sixteen electrical engines at the Stamford engine house of the New Haven road. Of 500 strike-breakers put to work Friday at the Susquehanna shops of the Erie Railroad, Union leaders said, only sixty-eight remained at work. The only defection from the ranks of the strikers, it was said, was the return to work of five sub-foremen yesterday.

The Erie road, in a statement last night, said that it continues to "operate passenger and freight service on a normal basis, there having been no interruptions to service on account of the strike or the mechanical crafts against the decision of the United States Labor Board."

The Pennsylvania and the Long Island Railroads in statements said almost normal conditions prevailed, adding that they had added 100 men to the Pennsylvania force and 50 men more than 100 to the Long Island. The Long Island announced that it had been able to handle a large excursion in addition to the regular service.

The Pennsylvania said one new train was cancelled yesterday and only 17 train, to be known as the "Pennsylvania" was added to the Pittsburgh-New York service, due to arrive here at 7:10 P. M. Yesterday the road cleared 131 passenger trains in and out of this city, which is well above the normal of 400 a day, P. C. Reed, supervisor of train service at the Pennsylvania Station, said.

President Harding's proclamation declaring interference with interstate traffic and the mail was interpreted by railroad heads as a plain promise of Federal troops if conditions warrant.

No Delays, Post Office Announces.

Officials at the General Post Office, Thirty-third Street and Seventh Avenue, reported no delay in railway service for the mails. Not one complaint had been received from any local Post Office, it was said, of tardiness in transmission. Complete satisfaction with the railway service in New York and adjacent States was expressed by the Post Office officials.

The Jersey City police continued their watch on the Erie Railroad yards for the appearance of Chinese scabs strike-breakers. Chinese alleged to have been employed in the Erie Railroad roundhouse in Bayonne Avenue, left hurriedly for New York yesterday, the police reported, when they heard that Federal injunction authorities were coming to investigate their status.

Mayor Mague's hope that it might be possible to disarm the guards in the Erie yards vanished when the City Law Department informed him that under a law passed at the last session of the Legislature special policemen, commissioned by the State, had the authority to carry guns as private property.

A dozen engines employed in the Pennsylvania power house at Front Street, Long Island City, quit their jobs. At the office of General Superintendent Manor of the Pennsylvania it was said the men left "of their own accord," and their going was the "usual circumstance in connection with labor turnover."

Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad officials denied last night that their shop men had followed the lead of the strikers. They said employes who refused to strike and new men were operating all shops to a satisfactory manner.

"Steady improvement" was reported by both the Lehigh Valley and the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

Service Reduced on the Baltimore & Ohio and Other Lines.

NORTHERN OHIO CONGESTION

Many Strikers in One Section Are Reported to Be Seeking Work in Other Lines.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, July 12.—R. N. Bird, Superintendent of Mails in this territory, announced late today that ten mail trains out of Cincinnati will be taken off at once, according to notice served on him by railroads operating the trains.

Trains annulled include six trains on the Baltimore & Ohio, two between Cincinnati and the East, two between Cincinnati and St. Louis and two between Cincinnati and Toledo; two on the Cincinnati, Indianapolis & Western between Cincinnati and Indianapolis, and two on the Indiana, Decatur & Springfield between Decatur, Ill., and Springfield, Ill.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 12.—The Cincinnati, Indianapolis & Western Railway today annulled four passenger trains which run into Indianapolis, according to M. V. Hynes, General Superintendent for the road. This was said to be the first annulment of trains operating into Junction Station here since commencement of the shopmen's strike on July 1. The trains operate one way daily between Indianapolis and Cincinnati and between Indianapolis and Decatur, Ill.

In making the announcement, Mr. Hynes said the trains had been annulled as a means of saving coal and conserving the resources of the road. The remaining passenger trains will adequately care for the passenger service, he said.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 12.—The worst rail congestion in Northern Ohio, because of the shopmen's strike, is at Willard, a Baltimore & Ohio junction point, according to dispatches received here from Willard. Forty-six dead engines stand in the roundhouse there and twenty-one of the twenty-four tracks at that point are blocked with cars.

Federal Judge D. C. Westenhaver has granted an injunction to the Erie Railroad Company restraining pickets or strikers from interfering with men at work in the Erie roundhouse at Kent, Ohio, where between 300 and 400 men are out on strike.

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio, July 12.—Due to the Norfolk & Western strike, Superintendent H. C. Weller of the Portsmouth division of the road ordered the city ticket office here closed indefinitely.

About one hundred Norfolk & Western clerks here on strike voted today. This was decided at a mass meeting last night. Every clerk and freight handler is expected to quit work.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, July 12.—Striking railroad shopmen today turned in their keys to the company properly and received the last pay due them prior to the inauguration of the walkout.

Many were reported to be seeking work in other lines. Railroad managers said that there was a slow but steady improvement in the situation here, a few strikers returning to work. While 24-hour guards have been maintained at the shops there have been no disorders, although fear is expressed that unless some settlement is reached in the near future there will be trouble. The men will be without funds to support their families.

DANVILLE, Ill., July 12.—The Chicago division of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad has less than ten days' supply of coal on hand and may have to curtail its passenger service within the next few days, it was announced here today. The road is obtaining coal from the non-union fields in the South, but has not been able to get supplies on account of the strike of shopmen.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 12.—In his report today of the situation on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad system, General Manager Galloway stated that conditions showed some improvement over the figures of last week.

"The only situation that is causing any trouble," said Mr. Galloway, "is in Northern Ohio and Northern Indiana, where the strikers have interfered with the operations at Willard and Garrett on account of the local situation, on the part of the local authorities at those points, and in this particular section certain of the passenger service will be discontinued until the authorities can exercise protection to our employes who are willing and anxious to work.

"In some other sections passenger train service will be curtailed as a result of the acute coal shortage, but this will be minimized so as to create the least public inconvenience."

WILMINGTON, Del., July 12.—Sixty boilermakers joined the strike at the Pennsylvania Railroad shops at Todd's Cut today. They marched to labor headquarters in a body and signed the strikers register. Furloughed men are returning to the shops and new men being on.

RICHMOND, Va., July 12.—Clerks employed by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway will strike immediately, it was intimated late today in a letter from H. J. Harris, general chairman of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, to J. R. Parrish, general manager of the Chesapeake & Ohio. Mr. Osborn rejected the company's proposal in answer to demands made on the road at a conference between the general manager and the officials of the clerks' union yesterday.

CLERKS SUE PENNSYLVANIA.

Ask Court to Prevent Road Enforcing Reduced Wage Scale.

PHILADELPHIA, July 12.—An effort to restrain the Pennsylvania Railroad from putting into effect next Monday a new scale of reduced rates for its employes was made in the United States District Court today by the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employes.

Through its counsel the Brotherhood filed a bill in equity, asking the Court to declare the new scale of wages void, because it was "arranged by a committee selected by the railroad, but supposed to be representing the employes."

While the suit is filed by the brotherhood, it stipulates that any other order of railroad employes who may share a substantial part of the expense of the litigation, may join in the fight to prevent the Pennsylvania from forcing its employes to accept the reduced scale.

The brotherhood also has pending in the Federal Court a suit to prevent the railroad from holding a conference with an alleged "handpicked" committee of employes on working conditions.

When the Railroad Labor Board ordered a reduction in wages, it directed that a conference be held with a committee representatives of the railroad, on the arrangement of a scale. The railroad selected the employe representatives, it is charged, and had them elected, but the board declared the election invalid and ordered a re-election, with the employes having the right to select their own representatives. Despite this order the railroad, it is alleged, held a conference with the first elected committee and arranged a scale of reduced wages and sent out notices that it would become effective next Monday.

The Brotherhood maintains that the committee did not represent a majority of the employes and that it acted without proper authority, and the bill contends that the old scale remains in effect until a bona fide representative body of employes agrees to the reductions.

The Court is asked to restrain the railroads from putting into effect the reduced wage scale and to declare the committee which consented to the reductions to have been without authority to do so.

'NO VIOLENCE,' SAYS RAIL STRIKE CHIEF

B. M. Jewell Telegraphs Warning to a Mass Meeting of 10,000 Men.

HE BLAMES THE RAILROADS

Complains That Guards Are Armed and That Appeals Are Made for Writs and Troops.

"No violence" was the keynote of a message to railroad workers in the Metropolitan district from Bert W. Jewell, President of the Railway Employes' Department of the American Federation of Labor, which was read at a mass meeting of about 10,000 striking shopmen and their sympathizers last night at the Fourth Regiment Armory, Jersey City. In urging the men to keep up the fight, he said:

"The economic condition of the country is in our favor. Time is fighting with us. The railroads are under great pressure to settle this difficulty soon."

By attempting to force train service men to do strikers' work, Mr. Jewell charged that the railroads were trying to stir up bad feeling between the shop employes' organizations and the "Big Four" brotherhoods, or "cause the latter to strike also."

Mr. Jewell, in his message, telegraphed to the Central Strike Committee, said he had been unable to leave Chicago to be present at the meeting, which was addressed by Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City and strike leaders in this district. The strikers from the various railroads paraded to the armory in separate delegations, headed by brass bands.

"The organized railway employes," said the message, "are conducting an orderly, well-disciplined strike that should command the respect of the American people. Four hundred thousand men have suspended work and subjected themselves to the hardships of unemployment in order to maintain the right of every worker to a living wage, and to prevent the degradation of the American standard of living. Naturally, an army of that size would contain some lawless men. The railroads are eager to publish notices of violence, so that they may obtain blanket injunctions and calls for soldiers to enforce strike-breaking and to create public hostility to the strikers. Only sporadic acts of a few irresponsible parties, highly colored and wholly unauthenticated, are being reported. The employes cannot, and will not, expect to succeed by violence. Moral and economic pressure alone will win. They ask the newspapers to give full publicity in aid of maintaining public order."

Quoting instructions to strike leaders, warning against violence, the message went on:

"The injunctions sought by some of the railroads are not sought or obtained to preserve peace. They are intended rather to protect the lawless gunmen employed as guards, such as the one who killed an inoffensive boy in Clinton, Ill. It is equally unnecessary to employ the troops concentrated around railroad shops and yards, at great expense to the tax-burdened public, thus misleading people to think of the disciplined group of railway employes as bands of rioters. The organized employes are law-abiding American citizens who are giving a remarkable exhibition of orderly determination in their wholesale sacrifice to win the right of a decent living out of their labor.

"No violence, was the first and standing order of the employes' organizations. The railroad managements have responded with armed guards, with Federal marshals carrying guns and injunctions, and with militiamen bearing rifles and machine guns. The ranks of 400,000 men are empty, but their hands are clean. The railroad managements have mobilized men in whose hands are guns.

"The numerous demands of the railroad managements to compel train and engine service employes to do shopmen's work is causing deep resentment from the organizations of transportation employes. By such tactics the railroads evidently are trying to make bad feeling between shop employes and transportation brotherhoods, or possibly to cause the latter to strike also. They cannot cause dissension among us that way."

GOMPERS CRITICISES THE PROCLAMATION

He Says It is Calculated to Make a Fetich of Labor Board and Transportation Act.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The President's proclamation warning against interference with movement of interstate transportation in connection with the railroad strike, and particularly against interference with the United States mails, was declared tonight by Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, to be "calculated to make a fetich of the Transportation act and of the Railroad Labor Board."

Referring to the injunction against interference, Mr. Gompers's statement declared that "railroad workers who withdraw their services" necessarily effect "this movement of equipment."

"The President's proclamation," the statement continued, "implies that the workers have not proceeded in accordance with the law, and that in stopping work they have gone outside of the law. The fact is that the law specifically gives to the workers the right to cease work in the event that they cannot accept the award of the Railroad Labor Board. The findings of the board are not decisions which must be obeyed. They are awards which the board hopes both employers and employes will accept, but which neither is bound to accept.

"I call attention to the fact that ninety-two railroads in 156 cases have refused to abide by awards of the board. In not a single case has the Railroad Labor Board or the Federal Government coerced a railroad into acceptance of an award. The courage and solidarity of the workers in their resistance to arbitrary and autocratic orders is most commendable and ought to be applauded by every liberty-loving American. * * *

"It is desirable that American railroads operate continuously, but not at the price of the sacrifice of manhood and of justice. * * *

"The President's proclamation overlooks fundamentals. It is an effort to sanctify and crown with power the Railroad Labor Board. It is a denial of democratic methods. It is an effort to perpetuate the impossible. The one way to operate the railroads in safety is to resume joint negotiations, bring justice to the workers and thus restore peace and a condition of safety of railroad employment."

Local Authorities Act in Bloomington.

BLOOMINGTON, July 12 (Associated Press).—McLean County today began putting its government back on a peacetime basis preparatory to relieving the Illinois National Guard of the task of keeping order here. Sheriff Morrison, with five deputies, took over the guardianship of the Chicago & Alton yards, and the troops were withdrawn to the railroad shops.

Their withdrawal from the yard district staved off the threatened walk-out of engineers, firemen, trainmen and conductors, who had refused to take out trains under troop protection. The Chicago & Alton announced today that the 2,000 striking shop workers will receive their last pay checks tomorrow.

most of them lying near where they had been playing. One after another they were picked up, carried into the shade and covered, pending the arrival of physicians.

One of the first to get to the scene was Dr. F. W. Jones, who lifted the covering from one of the still forms, only to discover the lifeless body of his daughter, Vivian. The doctor then went from one to another of the bodies, only to find that all were beyond aid. The Salisbury boy already had been taken to a hospital when Dr. Jones got there.

And soon as the first excitement had died away bellicomen and firemen began combing the city for facsimile of such other shells as might be a menace. Artillerymen were known to have searched severally for those which had failed to explode during various periods of target practice on the Sandy Hook proving grounds on the big reservation. One of the first to be found today was a 6-inch projectile which C. J. Soler, living three doors from the wrecked house, had found on the reservation on Sunday last. It is believed others will be found and dumped into the river.

A boy was maimed here last year when a shell exploded while the lad was trying to drag it home at the end of a rope.

FIRE ROUTS TENANTS.

Eight Dwellings and West Hoboken Lumber Yard Burns.

Eight dwelling houses were destroyed and the lumber yards of the D. D. Gardner Lumber Company at West Hoboken were swept by fire early today. The damage was estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars. Scores of persons were forced to rise in their night clothes from buildings in the path of the flames.

Most of the Jersey City fire apparatus answered the call for engines. At 8 o'clock this morning the fire was reported to be still burning but under control.

CONNERS'S COUNTY DEAF TO HEARST

SMITH FAVORITE OF ALL

Fitzpatrick, Organization Leader, Noncommittal, but Will Follow Murphy, Friends Say.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, July 12.—This city is the home and political habitat of William J. Conners, head and front of the movement to make William R. Hearst the Democratic nominee for Governor. Yet the most diligent search fails to disclose any machinery moving in the Democratic organization of Erie County for the realization of the joint ambition of Hearst and Conners.

The two newspapers that Conners publishes in this city are studiously refraining from anything that might be interpreted as Hearst propaganda in their news as well as in their editorial columns. No Hearst clubs are being formed, no Hearst meetings are being held. Apparently there is not the slightest attempt on foot to crystallize and bring to bear on the powers that be within the local machine, such latent Hearst sentiment as may exist in this city and the rural districts around it. If Conners expects to make good his frequently reiterated prediction, that "Hearst will have the Erie County delegation to the convention," it will be by means and methods that are not now visible.

The personnel of the Erie County delegation to the State convention has not been even tentatively selected. The men who are to go as delegates must submit themselves to the approval of the enrolled voters at the primaries in September. Among the enrolled Democrats in Erie County who constitute the rank and file of the organization, there is as little real sentiment for Hearst as there is among the rank and file of the Tammany organization in New York City.

Little Hope for Hearst.

In Erie County the organization under William H. Fitzpatrick, perhaps the shrewdest of the up-State leaders, and a powerful factor in the State organization, is modeled with Tammany as its pattern. Just now it may not be as cohesive or as firmly in the grip of its leader as Tammany is in the grip of Murphy, but there is no insurgency, either open or incipient. There is, therefore, little doubt that the primaries here will pursue the usual course and amiably rubber-stamp any selections made in advance by Fitzpatrick and his advisers.

Judging from what I said here today, Hearst and Conners, under the circumstances, will have little to hope for from the delegation sent to Syracuse from Conners's home county. It has been a matter of pride with Fitzpatrick to send a thoroughly presentable delegation from Erie to State conventions, one that will go credit to the county, as a friend of the leader expressed it today.

There will be no departure from that practice this year. The delegation will be composed of men and women who, if left to themselves, are not likely to favor Hearst for Governor, with the possible exception of Conners, who will have a place on the delegation if he wants it. From the character of some men whose names were mentioned here today by a most influential official within the local organization as prospective members of the Erie County delegation, it would appear that this body would be stampede proof and impervious alike to threats and blandishments from friends of the former Independence League boss.

Under the circumstances, the alternative for Conners would appear to be an opposition slate. Men who are so closely in touch with what is going on in Erie County that any plan for a primary fight could not possibly elude them while in the making, stated positively today that they were not looking for one.

Conners has many friends within the organization and many enemies. His friends are scattered. However, he has not the support of any group which by concerted action could capture an Assembly district for him in the primary. Persons who should be in a position to know even expressed doubt today whether he would be in position to carry even an election district in a primary fight. In the water front wards, where once he was all powerful through his large shipping interests, his influence just at present is all as a result of the strike of longshoremen and freight handlers in his employ who vote in these wards.

Fitzpatrick to Troll Murphy.

What the Erie County delegation would do at Syracuse was a question to which no definite answer could be obtained here, despite diligent questioning. Fitzpatrick, like Murphy, has persistently refused to discuss candidates and, like the Tammany celebrity, has kept his own counsel. The nearest thing to a definite answer that was forthcoming when friends of the Erie County leader were entertained, was this:

"Fitzpatrick will go as Murphy goes in the convention." From this view there was no dissent among Fitzpatrick's friends and advisers. They added that if he followed his personal inclination, Fitzpatrick would strenuously oppose the nomination of Hearst.

The candidate favored by the rank and file of the organization here as well as by the leaders, is Alfred E. Smith.

"From my knowledge of the sentiment that prevails among Democrats in Erie County I am prepared to say that if we could have an assurance that Al Smith would run, the tails of other candidates would cease as if by magic," said Henry W. Killeen, one of Fitzpatrick's closest advisers. "And I will add that Mr. Smith could perform no greater service to his party and to the people of the State than to come out right now and say that he will accept the nomination."

Bitter political rivalry has existed between Fitzpatrick and Conners for many years, but rumors are afloat that a modus vivendi has been reached and that they met and had a talk during one of Conners's recent visits to Buffalo is not denied.

Since the railroads began to farm out repair work Conners, through the William J. Conners Manufacturing Company, has been running the New York Central car shops and Fitzpatrick, through his Seminole Construction Company, has performed the same function for the Erie Railroad. The strike of railroad shopmen has created a community of interest between the two men.

Explains Conference Absence.

Fitzpatrick today eluded attempts to interview him. Through a friend he Authorized, as coming from him, in explanation of his failure to answer roll-call at the Syracuse conference, the statement that his troubles in the car shops and his extensive building operations were keeping him exceedingly busy at home.

The fact that Conners is involved in local strikes on the part of two sets of his employes is not doing Hearst any good among a class of voters for whose support he has been such a strong bidder and his alleged strength with whom is being used by his agents as an argument for his nomination. The striking shopmen are preparing to have a parade and demonstration here tomorrow, and friends of both Conners and Fitzpatrick are looking forward to it with some anxiety.

As the result of these labor troubles, it is predicted that Democratic candidates will not enjoy the support they have heretofore received from labor organizations here. The street-car strike and the agitation carried on in relation to it are expected to have their effect and divert much of the labor vote polled in other elections for candidates of the major parties to candidates on the joint ticket the Socialists and Farmer-Laborites are preparing to put in the field.

CHICAGO UNIONS TO VOTE ON STRIKE

SURFACE MEN MAY JOIN

Both Organizations to Work as a Unit if a Strike is Called.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Chances of averting a street car strike here will be largely determined by a united policy and plan of action to be agreed upon on Friday at a joint meeting of the Executive Boards of the surface lines and elevated unions. It is not believed that the policy to be adopted will be prejudicial to further negotiations between the men and the companies.

Five thousand elevated employes will take a strike vote tomorrow. There is little doubt that the result will be overwhelmingly in favor of a walkout.

William Quinlan, President, and other officers of the street car men's union today held a lengthy conference with Henry A. Blair, President of the Chicago surface lines, during which they formally notified him of the strike vote and entered into a general discussion of the situation.

No counterwage proposal was offered by the union leaders, who indicated that any further overtures looking toward peace must come from the company. They further stated that no proposals would be given consideration until a joint policy is agreed upon by the unions on Friday.

This policy, based on precedent, will be that neither union will make a settlement until the other's terms have been satisfied; that any strike action agreed upon will occur simultaneously, and that if a strike is called neither union will go back to work until the other returns.

The most important point to be considered is whether the unions will stand pat on the demands they have made for new wage agreements at the old scale, or whether they are willing to arbitrate the differences. It is known that W. D. Mahon, International President of the union, is a strong advocate of conciliation, and his influence probably will be felt in deterring the men from radical action.

A united policy will not mean that there will be joint arbitration in any further negotiations with the companies. The union committees will treat separately, but each will be kept constantly informed of the progress of the other and no agreement will be signed until both have come to terms.

Although the company and the men appear to be far apart on the wage question, there are several factors which may result in averting a strike. These are the friendly spirit existing between the unions and the companies, the knowledge of the men that they are receiving at present a wage far in excess of the average paid for such services throughout the country, and the known antipathy of President Mahon for strikes.

The strongest factor against a peaceful settlement is the bitter feeling which both the street car men and the company entertain toward the City Administration and the brand of City Hall politics which they hold responsible for the present crisis.

COAL PRODUCTION CUT; PRICES PASS HOOVER'S

English Shipment Quickly Sold Here—Rail Tieup Hinders Mines.

Because of congestion, shortage of motive power due to the railroad strike and the observance of the Fourth of July, the output of bituminous coal last week decreased between 1,000,000 and 1,500,000 tons from the previous week's figure of 5,200,000 tons, it was estimated in coal trade circles here yesterday. Prices again moved upward, despite Secretary of Commerce Hoover's figure of $3.50 a ton, going as high as $5.40 in some non-union districts.

During the week the first cargo of British coal received here since the strike was offered at from $6.90 to $7.70 a ton, compared with $5.75 to $7.50 for American fuel at the piers.

"A brisk business in English coal seems likely if the strike continues," said the market report of The Coal Trade Journal. "The comparatively small quantities offered last week were readily absorbed."

The review reported that many out-of-town buyers visited the New York market last week and left without placing orders, all available fuel having been disposed of.

Coal trade reports showed that the Kentucky and Northern West Virginia coal fields had been hardest hit by the shopmen's strike, particularly the mines served by the Louisville & Nashville and the Baltimore & Ohio railroads. Prices as high as $5.85 were quoted on Western Kentucky coal, while both Buffalo and Philadelphia markets reported ranges from $4.35 to $5.40 a ton.

Trade in anthracite is still limited to pea coal and some inferior fuel recovered from rivers, it was stated. About 20,000 to 25,000 tons are being dredged weekly out of the rivers.

The Miners' Relief Committee announced yesterday that July 15 and 16 will be tag days here to collect money for the West Virginia miners. Contributions are being received at Room 6, 108 East Twelfth Street, where L. Gruss, Secretary of the committee, has headquarters.

MINER SUES FOR $25,000.

Says He Was Clubbed and Baby Scared to Death During Eviction.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., July 12.—F. Carnicello, a miner of Edenborn, near here, has filed a suit against the H. C. Frick Coke Company for $25,000, in connection with the eviction of his family from a house owned by the concern.

Carnicello, in his complaint, said that last April he was notified to vacate the house, and that a foreman of the company and seven deputy sheriffs ejected his family during a cold rain. The deputies, he charged, attacked him with clubs, fractured his skull, broke his furniture and scared his baby to death.

QUASH MINGO INDICTMENTS.

Prosecuting Attorney Contends the Evidence is Insufficient.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 12.—Indictments against members and officers of the United Mine Workers containing counts of murder, arson and conspiracy, in connection with industrial trouble in Mingo County, were quashed by Judge R. D. Bailey of the Mingo County Circuit Court, according to word received here tonight from Williamson.

The action was taken at the request of the prosecuting attorney, S. D. Stokes, who claimed insufficient evidence. The prosecuting attorney told the Court he "couldn't make a case against them for lack of evidence."

Among the indictments which were stricken from the docket were those against Davis Robb, international financial officers of the United Mine Workers, C. Frank Keeney, President of District 17; Fred Mooney, District Secretary-Treasurer; A. D. Lavender, C. H. Workman, District Board members and about sixty-five others.

rumored that the operators of the anthracite fields would get in line, especially if they could obtain a separate consideration of their case.

A representative of the operators, however, asserted that a thorough investigation was welcomed by the industry. Some representatives of the miners seem to hold a different view on this point.

There were developments also today in the bituminous coal strike situation which gave a pretty clear indication of the attitude which will be taken by the miners when they reply to the President following the meeting of the policy committee here on Saturday. Mr. Lewis and a committee of leaders called upon Secretary of Labor Davis and asked that certain points in regard to the President's proposal be cleared up.

They wanted to know for one thing just what authority would be asked of Congress for the commission to be named by the President and whether there was contemplated setting up any agency such as the Railroad Labor Board to handle wage disputes permanently.

Another point raised was whether any award by the committee would cover all the operators and miners in the districts affected by the strike, the contention being made that operators representing 300,000,000 tons of coal annually had been shut out of the deliberations here. It was evident that the miners were not ready to accept arbitration by a commission unless all operators were included.

The question was raised also whether decisions of the commission as to temporary wage scales to run, say, until March, 1923, would include continuation of the check-off system and of working conditions which were contained in the agreement which expired on March 31, 1922. It was contended that these and other vital questions at issue had not been made plain in the President's proposal and that it was difficult for the workers to give proper consideration to the proposal until they were made clear.

A point made plain by the miners in regard to the bituminous coal field association—and the same point applies to the anthracite controversy—is that they cannot consent to submit their grievances to arbitration if this application contemplates the establishment of an agency similar to the Railroad Labor Board, with power to enforce its decisions. This, they contend, would destroy the principle of collective bargaining for which they are prepared to fight.

That such a plan is contemplated is not contended by the miners, but they are requesting that the situation be clarified.

The position taken by the miners is that the old central competitive agreement for the bituminous coalfields, which expired on March 31, 1922, should be revived as a contract between miners and operators and continue in force until the commission to be named by the President shall have completed its investigation of the industry. They contend that no intelligent decision as to wage revisions can be reached until the fact-finding investigation is complete. That probably would require a year.

When the recommendations of the commission were made known and miners and operators had some idea of the steps which would be taken to reorganize the industry and provide continuous employment, the miners contend that employes and employers would be able to get together on a proper basis to dispose readjustment of wages and working conditions. Such a course, they argue, would preserve the principle of collective bargaining.

It is probable, therefore, that in making their reply, the miners for the bituminous fields will ask that the work of the commission be restricted to fact finding and that the question of wage readjustments be left until the commission makes its report, the old central competitive field contract as to wages and working conditions to remain in force in the meantime.

Such a proposal is certain to be opposed by the operators of the bituminous fields, who have been in conference with the President. The miners contend that these operators are not representative of all the fields and that there are many who would settle on the basis they suggest, if given the opportunity. This point probably will be raised in the reply to the President.

The operators of the bituminous fields had no statement to make today and probably will not meet here again until Sunday, when they hope to have information as to the position taken by the miners at the meeting of the Policy Committee of the United Mine Workers on Saturday.

Anthracite Operators' Reply.

The committee of operators for the anthracite fields, headed by S. D. Warriner, made public their reply to President Harding, but would not comment upon it. The reply read:

To the President,
The White House.

Dear Mr. President: On behalf of the anthracite operators, we beg to make the following reply to the proposal of arbitration which you submitted to us on July 10th.

We are deeply appreciative of your effort to end the present suspension of anthracite production, and desire to co-operate with you to the fullest extent in this endeavor.

After continued conferences with the representatives of the mine workers from March 15th to June 2d, it appears no agreement satisfactory to both sides could be reached.

The operators then proposed that the President of the United States be requested to appoint a commission or tribunal to ascertain and consider all the facts and determine the questions concerning wages and conditions of employment at issue between us; said commission or tribunal to find a practical method by which prompt operation of the mine may be resumed pending its ultimate decision, and also to seek and recommend a method by which future suspensions or strikes may be, so far as possible, avoided."

The anthracite operators further agreed that all such matters as the President might determine were pertinent to the questions in controversy concerning wages and conditions of employment should be considered by the commission or tribunal so to be appointed and agreed to abide by and faithfully carry out its decision or award.

We are, therefore, committed to arbitration, and are entirely in sympathy with the principle of the method of settlement which you have proposed.

We believe, however, that certain amplifications of your proposal are desirable to the end that the settlement shall be speedily reached, shall be permanent in character, and shall be binding upon both sides of the controversy.

Throughout the fruitless negotiations which have been held with the mine workers, the anthracite operators have had two primary objects in view:

First—An agreement on a wage scale which while adequate should at the same time afford the steady employment which the anthracite mine workers have enjoyed in the past and which only regular demand for the product can assure. It has been the firm conviction of the anthracite operators that this is economically possible only by such adjustment of these wages as would reduce the cost of producing anthracite, in line with adjustments which have taken place with respect to other commodities.

Second—That the agreement reached should be durable and at the same time provide reasonable means of wage adjustment from time to time to meet the changing economic conditions of the country. The object sought was prevention of the periodical disturbance of the public and of industry generally by the recurring interruptions to production.

We feel confident of your desire to further these objects in a manner fair to all concerned.

In order that this may be accomplished, we respectfully make the following suggestions:

First—Because of the wide difference in the problems that confront the anthracite and the bituminous industries it is practically impossible for one commission to study and decide the questions in controversy within a reasonable period of time. Of necessity they must be studied separately if the prompt adjudication that all interests desire is to be obtained.

The anthracite business has no problem of overdevelopment and underemployment. It is already stabilized and has maintained full-time employment of the mine workers. Its mining conditions are entirely different from those in the bituminous field, and it is a manufacturing as well as a mining industry. Its product is mainly a domestic, not a manufacturing fuel.

It has been consistently held not only by the operators but also by the mine workers that the anthracite industry with respect to agreements affecting wages and working conditions is and should be absolutely autonomous.

Because of these conditions, we feel that it is necessary for a separate commission to be designated by yourself to consider our problems, and we take the liberty of suggesting that such commission should be, so far as possible, non-partisan, not more than one member representing the operators and one the miners, and not less than three to be appointed by yourself as representatives of the public.

Second—The anthracite operators cannot escape the conviction that the re-establishment of the scale of wages in effect from April 1, 1920, to March 31, 1922, even as a temporary expedient, will embarrass rather than assist the efforts to restore normal conditions.

The demand from the public for decreased prices of anthracite is imperative. Anthracite is the only essential commodity which has not been defiated in price and the continuance of present prices will undoubtedly impede the distribution of the product, which should be prompt and uninterrupted on the resumption of mining.

We nevertheless agree to your proposal that, pending a permanent scale, the mine workers are to return to work on the basis of wages which expired last March.

It will be evident to you, however, that it will not be possible for the anthracite operators to contract for the disposition of their product while uncertain as to the costs of production. We are therefore confident that it is necessary to the success of your plan and in conformity with your intent that it shall be made mandatory upon the commission, first, to determine the wage scale, to be effective until March, 1923, and that its decision in this regard shall be handed down on or before Aug. 10.

Our agreements have always expired with the end of the coal year, March 31, and we suggest that this date be adopted for the expiration of the temporary wage scale.

Third—We respectfully submit that a recurrence of the present unfortunate situation will not be prevented by the establishment of only a temporary wage scale, expiring in March, 1923. A renewal of the present controversy at that time would be deplorable.

It is our understanding that the commission shall be empowered and directed not only to determine temporary wages and working conditions, but shall also be empowered and directed to devise a method by which periodical disturbances may be avoided, and by which wages and working conditions may be automatically adjusted, by negotiation if possible, and if not by such machinery as the commission shall set up; and that its decisions in this regard shall be binding on both parties.

We agree to abide without reservation or qualification by the findings of a commission so to be appointed and empowered.

It is our belief that these suggestions are within the intent and spirit of your general plan and that their adoption is necessary to bring about what you aim to achieve, namely, "the establishment and maintenance of industrial peace in the coal industry."

Very respectfully,
S. D. WARRINER,
W. J. RICHARDS,
W. L. CONNELL,
W. W. INGLIS,
Representing Anthracite Operators.

COAL ASSOCIATION MEETS.

One Operator Says Harding Plan Will Cost $1,000,000 a Day.

PITTSBURGH, July 12.—The National Coal Association Directors, in quarterly meeting here today, took no action relative to the coal strike nor to President Harding's proposals for strike settlement. This was made known after the meeting when Alfred M. Ogle, President of the association, gave out an informal statement to press representatives.

He admitted, however, that lobby discussions among the operators in attendance related in large measure to the Washington conferences of last week and the early part of this week.

Questioned as to the willingness of operators to negotiate the strike with the United Mine Workers, Mr. Ogle referred to the proposal of the operators at the Washington conference for unlimited arbitration by public agency, involving district agreements.

J. G. Bradley, former President of the National Coal Association and a non-union mine operator of West Virginia, after the Directors' meeting, gave out a statement in which he made public a part of a letter which he wrote in Secretary Herbert Hoover on July 10.

To cut union miners back on the 1920 wage scale agreement, according to President Harding's proposal, Mr. Bradley's letter pointed out, would raise the cost of mining bituminous coal by 20 per cent. and would, in addition, involve raising the wages of non-union miners, whose pay scale has undergone a readjustment according to economic conditions, by 42 per cent.

"I can hardly believe that it is the President's intention, by executive action, to grant a special privileged wage to mine labor, yet such would be the effect of his plan, putting an added burden on American industry and the American householder," Mr. Bradley's letter concluded.

He estimated that President Harding's proposal would entail a cost of more than $1,000,000 a day to the public.

HERRIN REWARD OFFERED.

Attorney General Promises State Protection for Informants.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Attorney General Edward J. Brundage of Illinois today offered a reward of $1,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the persons who committed murder and assault in Herrin in connection with the strike of the coal miners in Williamson County.

The appeal was particularly directed to the citizens of Williamson County who, the Attorney General said, would be protected in every way for any assistance they might give.

"All who offer assistance will be protected by the State in every way," the Attorney General said. "All persons who know the facts are required by the law to disclose them. All who fail to make disclosures of their knowledge before Aug. 1, 1922, will, upon discovery, be prosecuted as accessories after the fact."

DETECTIVE SEIZES RUM-LADEN TRUCK

SHOE REPAIR SHOP RAIDED

Woman Arrested Denies Selling—Member of Piel Bros. Brewing Firm Held.

A commercial truck which bore a sign, "High-grade provisions for clubs and hotels" was seized with a load of 540 bottles of Canadian rye and Scotch whisky in Fifty-fourth Street, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues, last night. The chauffeur and a helper, who were arrested, refused to tell where they obtained the liquor, who owned it or where they were to deliver it.

Detective Valentine Bach of the prohibition squad of the Police Department noticed the truck standing in front of 154 West Fifty-fourth Street. The truck had heavy iron gratings behind the chauffeur's seat and in the rear, such as the padlocked gratings that mail wagons carrying registered matter have.

Bach stuck his face against the grating and smelled whisky. Bach ordered the chauffeur to drive the truck to the West Forty-seventh Street Station, where the grating was unlocked. There were twenty cases of whisky and eighteen packages.

Mrs. Minnie Provonzano, 30 years old, owner of a shoe repair shop at 344 East Twenty-ninth Street, was held yesterday in $500 all by Magistrate Ryttenberg in Yorkville Court on a charge of violating the State prohibition law. She was arrested by Detectives Franklin and Steinwald, who charge that they saw a man buy a glass of whisky in the shop. Mrs. Provonzano said that the liquor seized in her shop had been left over from a christening. She denied that she had sold liquor.

Francesa Wals, owner of "The Jungle," a Greenwich Village resort, at 11 Cornelia Street, was discharged by Magistrate Nolan in Jefferson Market Court on a complaint of violating the prohibition law. The place was raided Thursday night.

Henry G. Piel, Vice President of the Piel Brothers' Brewing Company, and Max Heller, a driver for the Piel Brewery, were held in $500 bail each by Magistrate Reynolds in the New Jersey Avenue Court, Brooklyn. Piel and Heller were arrested about a month ago following the seizure of beer alleged to have contained more than the legal percentage of alcohol.

BALLOON PILOTS SAIL.

Army and Navy Crews Leave for Rabes at Geneva.

The army and navy contestants in the international balloon race to be held at Geneva, Switzerland, on Aug. 6, sailed yesterday afternoon on the American liner St. Paul full of optimism that the James Gordon Bennett trophy would be brought back to the United States.

Major Oscar Westover is the pilot of the army balloon and Lieutenant W. F. Reed Jr. will pilot the navy balloon. Major Westover said he understood that the rules prohibited landing in Russia, while Lieutenant Reed hoped they would be allowed to cross the Russian border, as it might enable the aeronauts to establish new records for time in the air and distance.

CANADA FOR TREATY ON FRONTIER IDEALS

St. Lawrence Project Mentioned.

Though not the subject of formal discussion, it is understood that the St. Lawrence waterways project was mentioned in the conference. The position taken by the Canadian Ministers was that, as stated by the Canadian Prime Minister in the House of Commons some weeks ago, an attitude neither of acceptance nor rejection of the project, but of postponement of its consideration.

"Having regard to the magnitude of the expenditures involved and other far-reaching consideration," said Premier Mackenzie-King, "the present does not appear to the Canadian Government an opportune moment in which to contemplate treaty negotiations on this subject as between the two countries."

Concerning his proposal for a permanent frontier agreement the Canadian Premier tonight said:

"At the recent conference on disarmament no single aspect of international relations attracted more attention than the unfortified frontier of from three to four thousand miles between the United States and Canada. Over and over again reference was made to the so-called Rush-Bagot agreement of 1817, under which armament on the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River was restricted to four vessels of 100 tons burden, each carrying not more than one eighteen-pound gun.

"The significance of this agreement, providing as it has a means of escape from competitive arming, was dwelt upon not less from the point of view of what it has meant for more than a century in the saving of expenditure on armament by each of the two countries than from what it has meant in the maintenance of friendship and good-will between the peoples of the respective countries and as an object lesson to the continents of Europe and Asia of the new-world methods in the maintenance of international peace.

Wants Ideals Perpetuated.

"World disarmament having made the important strides it has as a consequence of the recent Washington conference and the leadership given the movement by Secretary Hughes, the present has seemed to the Canadian Government an opportune moment in which to approach the Government of the United States with a view to perpetuating the ideals which the framers of the Rush-Bagot agreement had in mind by having permanency given to the essential principles underlying the Rush-Bagot agreement through their embodiment in a formal treaty between the two countries respecting the limitation of armaments on the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence River.

"It was with the object of discussing this important subject in all its bearings with Mr. Hughes that we called at the State Department this morning. We are well pleased with the sympathetic manner in which our representations were received by Secretary Hughes. It is understood that negotiations having been opened in this informal manner they will be proceeded with by correspondence in the hope of consummation of a formal treaty at an early date."

That the primary topic discussed with the American officials by Minister King and Graham was the modification of the Rush-Bagot agreement occasioned some surprise in official quarters here tonight. The compact has successfully operated to limit naval armament on the lakes during the past 105 years. There had been no suggestion formally from this Administration that modification was considered necessary, but in view of the precedents established by the Washington conference on the limitation of armaments, the Canadian authorities believe modification advisable.

Ulster Celebrates the Boyne—Three Bombs Are Thrown but No Damage Is Done.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, July 12.—Reports received in Dublin from the western front indicate that the national troops are driving a wedge between the various commanders of the irregulars operating there.

It is reported to the headquarters of the First Western Division that Commandant General Farrelly, commanding in Sligo, has achieved a brilliant success, the Ballymote Barracks held by the irregulars being stormed and captured with the garrison, arms, ammunition and transport.

From Maryborough in the Midlands another national success is reported, operations lasting four hours, ending in a big reverse for the irregulars who lost three killed. Col. Commandant Mulcahy and Sergeant Houlihan of the national forces were wounded. The victorious troops brought prisoners, arms, ammunition and bicycles into Maryborough.

While in the rest of the country Government authority is acting there are still one or two plague spots which have yet to be dealt with. Among these is Cork. In districts where by force of arms alone the anti-treatyites impose their will upon that of the people as in Cork where the Collins-Griffith party obtained an enormous majority it is the logical sequence that the Republic should be proclaimed, but too much significance should not be attached to what after all is but the aftermath of a futile effort to establish a Republic in the capital of Southern Ireland.

To eradicate these disaffected concentrations will require careful preparation and the authorities are wisely not hastily attacking them but rather are waiting until the weapon they have forged is fully capable of achieving success in the special conditions in which it will be used.

The confidence of the Government in the ultimate establishment of peace and order is indicated by the fact that the preliminaries of the International Athletic Festival are being perfected.

Near de Valera Is in Dublin.

BELFAST, July 12 (Associated Press).—Eamon de Valera, the Republican leader, is in Dublin now, and today visited the Republican offices in Suffolk Street, a Dublin dispatch states. It is understood, adds the message, that the Free State authorities have no intention of interfering with his movements.

Five Free State soldiers were ambushed last evening by a considerable force of irregulars at Drumkeen Chapel, Stranorlar, County Donegal. One of the regulars was shot and killed, another died in a hospital, a third was wounded and the two others were made prisoner.

National army troops attacked and pursued a party of irregulars who had seized a lodge on the property of Colonel Harte, in Kilderry, County Donegal. The irregulars fled into the woods, pursued by the Free State forces. During the sharp fight that followed, Captain Brown of the national army was seriously wounded and taken to a hospital.

Belfast celebrated the battle of the Boyne anniversary today. The entire city had a holiday in fact, there was cessation of work practically throughout the six-county area. Three bombs were thrown in Belfast shortly after the curfew was raised this morning, but beyond the smashing of a few windows no damage was done.

Headed by bands and with banners flying and the marchers singing patriotic songs, a great procession marched through the city to the rendezvous at Ballylesson. The route was lined with thousands of spectators. Armored cars and troops were on duty at various points where trouble was considered likely to arise.

Craig Speaks at Celebration.

Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier, in a speech in connection with the celebration, paid a high tribute to the special constables, saying that they came from the ranks of Orange institutions and would save Ulster.

"Ulster breeds men, not savages," he said, "and holds to its precepts of peace and prosperity."

Ulster's opponents, he continued, having failed to break the backbone of the loyalists by burnings and murders, were now trying to play the same game as the Germans, seeking to bring down loyalists by false propaganda.

"I want to assure loyalists throughout the world," he said, "that Ulster Scots are not a race to carry out the foul program laid to their charge by British, American and French papers."

He added that "if America was ever in trouble and had to call upon the manhood of her citizens she would find old Ulster stock that went out to that great continent will be among her best citizens serving under the Stars and Stripes."

Claims Gains for Irregulars.

DUBLIN, July 12 (Associated Press).—Patrick J. Little, head of the Republican publicity department, said tonight that Eamon de Valera had not called to see him, and, so far as he knew, had not called at the publicity bureau.

When questioned as to the progress made by the Republicans, Little replied:

"We are in complete control of the whole country from Kerry to Newtownbarry and from Kerry to County Mayo. We are using all the Post Offices and are collecting customs and excise taxes at the rate of £12,000 weekly.

"Listowel (County Kerry) has been taken by our forces. We captured 200 men, with rifles, ammunition and fifty-three machine guns, as well as some armored lorries. We are in complete control of the city of Cork, where life is proceeding normally, as the republic is an accepted fact.

"We have supervision of the press in the South, especially the Cork Examiner. We are able to put in our own stuff; we have an arrangement about that."

The Republican Publicity Director also said that Free State officers in command in Limerick had refused to fight against the Republicans.

The Provisional Cabinet has decided on a further postponement for at least a fortnight of the first meeting of the new Dail. This action is taken because of the state of the country, it is announced, interruption of communication preventing many members of the Parliament from reaching Dublin. Many members are also in active service with the National Army.

The Cabinet's view is that the restoration of peace is the Government's first responsibility, and, therefore, must precede the assemblage of Parliament.

Rumors in circulation here to the effect that Michael Collins is ill have proved unfounded, as he was at his work today in Dublin.

LONDON, July 12 (Associated Press).—Rumor that an Irish republic has been formally proclaimed at Cork was printed today by several newspapers under Belfast date lines. It is not confirmed from any other source.

The isolation of Southwestern Ireland is practically complete, and both the Republicans and Free Staters are imposing censorship, so that their official statements comprise almost the only information reaching here.

The controller of the Central Telegraph office announced today that there was no wire communication with towns in the counties of Cork, Kerry, Limerick, Waterford or Tipperary, except Roscrea and Kilkenny, in the last-named county. Telegrams for West Ireland are being conveyed from Dublin by [illegible]

DELAY ON 42D ST. PLANS LAID TO CITY

Property Owners Criticise Failure to Force Removal of the Elevated Spur.

DISCUSS TUBE TO JERSEY

Negotiations Under Way, Says the Secretary, to Build Subway Under Hudson.

The improvement and growing prosperity of that section of the city through which runs Forty-second Street from river to river, and the movements for making it even better, were recounted yesterday in reports read at the annual meeting of the Forty-second Street Property Owners Association, held in the east ballroom of the Hotel Commodore. Some of the projects in which the association is interested have been held up, and in his annual report President A. E. Thorne set the delays down to the "indifference of certain of our city officials."

"This is a serious condition," said Mr. Thorne, "and one which property owners and taxpayers resent. The apparent unnecessary delay in certain of our city departments is retarding important and necessary improvements in the Forty-second Street district which the public at large demands.

"The removal of the elevated spur on East Forty-second Street, the continuation of the viaduct through Depew Place around the easterly side of the Grand Central Station and the widening of Forty-second Street east of Madison Avenue stand out conspicuously as improvements that have been delayed too long.

"In each of these projects we have received the unqualified support and cooperation of certain of our city officials, only to be met with indifference and delay from others who might readily hasten the completion of either or all of these.

"With our increasing membership and the added strength this increase gives our association, we should now be able to overcome the obstacle offered by certain of our city officials and obtain their co-operation in completing the important improvements we have been so long working for."

In his report Edward W. Forrest, the Secretary, told of negotiations under way with representatives from several cities in New Jersey to bring about the construction of a subway through Forty-first or Forty-second Street and under the Hudson River to New Jersey. The Transportation Committee, he said, would soon start a campaign to launch the undertaking. Mr. Forrest placed the blame for the city's delay in removing the elevated railroad spur at the door of the Corporation Counsel.

Seymour P. Danzig, a clerk in the office of the Corporation Counsel, values a sound tooth at $10,000. In an action filed in the Supreme Court yesterday he sued Dr. Bertram B. Perkins, a surgeon dentist, for that sum, alleging that Dr. Perkins extracted a good tooth by mistake.

Queens Women Attack Governor and Prendergast on Rates.

Complaint was made at yesterday's meeting of the Committee of the Whole of the Board of Estimate by James B. Emerick, representing a delegation of women in Queens supplied by the Newtown Gas Company, that Governor Nathan L. Miller had paid no attention to a petition asking for the removal of William A. Prendergast, Chairman of the Public Service Commission, who was accused of favoring the gas company.

"The delegation charged that the Newtown Gas Company was making an excessive charge for gas, while its candle power had fallen.

"The Brooklyn Union Company supplies the gas of this concern," said Mr. Emerick. "Why should the people of our section be deprived of the legal candle power in this most prosperous year the company has ever had? We can expect no aid or justice from either the Governor or the Public Service Commission, and we have come to you, Mr. Mayor, as we might to a court of last resort."

Mayor Hylan told Mr. Emerick that Corporation Counsel O'Brien was now looking into the matter of taking over the Newtown gas plant and operating it.

HEAT KILLS ONE, TWO ARE OVERCOME

Mercury Climbing for Two Days Reaches a Maximum of 88 Degrees After Noon.

SLIGHT DROP IN EVENING

Cooler Weather Predicted for Tonight, With Showers and Thunders.

The warm weather which has been prevailing when New York for two days made it yesterday with a temperature that reached a maximum of 88 at 1:15 P.M., which compared with 79 degrees at 2 o'clock Tuesday. The mercury climbed steadily from 1 o'clock yesterday morning, when it was only 69, until it reached the high point, and then descended slowly to 78 at 11 o'clock last night.

In Norfolk, Va., the temperature reached 88 and in Los Angeles 90. The hot wave spread all along the coast. Boston, Jacksonville and Charleston were as warm as New York. The average for the day, however, was only three degrees above last year, when it was 75.

One man died and there were two heat prostrations in and about the city. Benny Nelson, 18 years old, of Woodhaven, L. I., was overcome at 504 East Seventy-fourth Street and taken to Reception Hospital. Frank Scardsley, 38 years old, of 107 Johnson Street, Brooklyn, collapsed in De Kalb Avenue near Raymond Street and went home after treatment.

In Elizabeth, N. J., George Noetus, superintendent of the fire-alarm system, who lived at 520 Westfield Avenue, died from the heat.

It may be cooler this evening, when showers and thunderstorms are predicted.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 12.—Past records for registration at Harvard Summer School were broken today when it became known that 2,050 had enrolled. Director Murray expressed pleasure at the enrolment, particularly because practically all the students are studying to receive credit toward various college degrees.

HAGUE CONFERENCE MAY BREAK UP TODAY

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

M. Krassin remarked that in any event, regardless of governmental arrangements, there would have to be private agreements between foreigners operating in Russia and the Moscow Government. "Otherwise, for instance, the railroads owned by the State would be under no obligation to transport their goods."

Belgian Delegate Replies.

Baron Cattier, Belgium, began the powers' reply. He said that compensation, if not restitution, is absolutely essential to any agreement, and added that the Russian concessions list was not a list of properties to be given back but only a list of those the Russians were prepared to auction off. That was not compensation for former property owners. The Russians had made it plain that they did not admit either the principle of restitution or of compensation. Therefore he could not see any progress possible.

Sir Philip Lloyd Greame then said to the Russians:

"Your position is, then, that you accept no obligations and intend to compensate only if you get credits. All you have said at The Hague gives absolutely no assurance, and the question of private properties remains in the same position as before Genoa and The Hague. You have given us no guarantee that any one will ever get his property back. We cannot usefully carry the discussion any further. We came here to discuss restitution and compensation. Without discussing those subjects the whole conference falls to the ground.

"If we experts here were to recommend that credits be granted to Russia without any settlement of this issue, our recommendation would not be worth the paper it would be written on. It is not us, and it is not you Russians at this table who make credits for Russia. That depends on economic factors beyond your control and on conditions we do not fix. Certainly the Russian delegation shows no desire to meet th ose conditions."

M. Litvinoff retorted that no one could dictate to the Soviet Government.

"Cite only facts," Sir Philip said. "You have been invited to say what restitution or compensation you will make. You decline all responsibility for restitution and refuse to tell us what compensation you could make if you would."

The commission then adjourned, saying Sir Philip Lloyd-Graeme would notify the Russians if it would meet again.

Showdown in Debts Commission.

In the afternoon the debts commission met Sokolnikoff who made a long speech declaring that Russia was increasingly better off both from the point of view of money raised by taxation and in harvests. It would be unnecessary to import more grain after this year. On the contrary, Russia would export.

M. Alphan, France, the Chairman, interrupted to say that the delegates had heard all that, and asked an answer to the question, "What was the attitude of the Russian Government toward Russia's debts?" "I invite you to answer slowly," he said.

The Russian Finance Minister then said:

"The Russian Government does not consider Russia was bound by the signature of the Czarist Government. We have promised the Russian people not to recognize the Czar's debts, and we could not go back on that promise without consulting the Russian people."

Then, to cover up, he added that at any rate the debts could not be recognized unless the Soviets got credits.

M. Alphand said the clearness of the Russian answer made unnecessary putting the questions he had prepared. He asked the Russians whether in case they could be persuaded to recognize their debts they would accept a mixed tribunal to fix the terms of a moratorium and a date for beginning payments.

M. Litvinoff gave the insolent reply that there were many "respectable" Governments in Europe which recognized debts and interest without paying either. "Russia will not follow such an example," he said, "and does not accept any liability until absolutely certain she can meet it."

M. Alphand then asked if the Russians would accept a joint commission of Russians and powers' delegates with an impartial Chairman to handle the debts' question. M. Litvinoff said they would not, because it would be impossible to find an impartial Chairman.

"Do you mean to say there cannot be found in all the world one impartial man?" asked M. Alphand.

"There are two worlds," replied M. Litvinoff, "the Soviet world and the capitalistic world. I am sure neither could supply an impartial Chairman. Unfortunately there is no third world to supply a Chairman. There is said to be a third world in the skies, the only one where angels live, but I do not think any of its inhabitants are at The Hague. Certainly we have not met any angels hereabout."

M. Litvinoff then proposed that a lump sum be fixed, by a promise to pay which the Russians could settle the debt issue. He said if the powers would give the figures the Russians could tell in an hour if they were exaggerated.

Mr. Young, England, replied that there could be no question of exaggeration since Russia's debts were all a matter of record. He said he did not see what the bondholders would gain from taking a lump sum since it only meant a reduction, and he could not see any better prospect of the Russians paying that sum than the one they now owed.

M. Litvinoff insisted that the conference should study a lump figure, but met with general opposition for the reasons outlined by Mr. Young. M. Alphand then adjourned the meeting.

Litvinoff Talks to Journalists.

An hour later M. Litvinoff received the journalists at his headquarters and said the conference was reaching its end. He blamed it on the non-Russians who refused to tell how much credits Russia would get while insisting that the Russians make promises in regard to the claims against them. He reviewed his speeches today. He absolutely rejected the principle of restitution of nationalized property and added: "We are prepared to discuss compensation, but not until we know our economic position during the next few years, that is, until we know whether we are going to get credits."

M. Litvinoff repeated that he thought the conference might as well have ended today, but that he would attend the meeting of the Credits Commission tomorrow. "But it will only be a sort of religious ceremony," he said. "The failure of the conference is now a foregone conclusion, and it is only a question of the non-Russians fixing the blame on us."

He thought the conference had been conducted very unfairly, for while the Russians had given pages and pages of figures the non-Russians had not supplied one figure of the credits to be given the Bolsheviki. "Instead of credits," he said, "we get sermons on confidence. Unfortunately in Europe today confidence is not marketable." He added that the Russians would get credits from private sources, not so large as they hoped to get at Genoa or The Hague, but credits all the same.

M. Litvinoff then gave this interesting view of the conference:

"There are both sides making claims. We claim credits and the others claim payment of debts. If the others will drop their claims we will drop ours."

And this is held to be here a pretty good exposition of the heads-I-win-tails-you-lose doctrine.

"At some future date," went on M. Litvinoff, "somewhere else, we may discuss all these things again. In the meanwhile full recognition of the Soviet Government would help every one concerned."

The Russian Chairman said the Soviets never expected much from The Hague conference and so would not be very disappointed, adding:

"And now I know what is going to happen. There is going to be a very biting report on us and some sort of agreement not to make separate settlements with Moscow. But that does not matter. It is only a paper agreement and will not be kept. Europe cannot permit itself the luxury of doing without a country of 150,000,000 inhabitants. One by one they will come to us.

"But if they do not, Russia isolated can continue to exist. It has been proposed here that we accept the status of Turkey or Peru. We have fought five years to prevent that and we are ready to fight ten more if need be."

M. Litvinoff said he thought the Genoa and Hague conferences had done good because they had enabled both sides to understand each other, and he was going to leave The Hague firm in the belief that the Soviets "would eventually get a square deal," and for a parting shot he said: "Anyhow, the Soviets are better off than the holders of Russian bonds, who thought the experts at The Hague were going to collect for them."

It is generally believed that the Russians will leave Friday night or Saturday and that a group of delegates will remain at The Hague some days to draft reports.

BROWNS BEAT YANKS AND INCREASE LEAD

FOHL'S KICK DELAYS GAME

St. Louis Manager Argues Decision by Chill—Williams Hits Twenty-First Homer.

Leading the well-known horse to water and making him drink was child's play compared to the task of leading the Yankees into first place. Miller Huggins had his plans all laid for the triumphal re-entry into the abandoned position yesterday, but his athletes would have none of it. Waite Hoyt bobbed up with his worst game of several weeks, Scott and Meusel chipped in a couple of errors that they had been saving for the occasion, and the Yanks played stupid offensive baseball. What with one thing and another the Browns won yesterday's game in the "crucial" series, 7 to 4, and are still in first place.

It was a dull, flat and spiritless game, lasting about two hours and a half and prolonged by an unseemly brawl between the Browns and Umpires Connolly and Chill. Every one of the 20,000 fans was glad when it was over. Miller Huggins wasn't there when it ended. He had been banished by Tommy Connolly in the sixth inning, and Miller had to get the doleful results by radio to the clubhouse.

The Yankees tied the score in the fifth inning and precipitated one of the longest arguments in the history of local baseball. Going back to the beginning of the inning, the Browns were three runs ahead, one of them being Ken Williams's twenty-first homer of the season in the second inning. Hoyt opened the New York fifth by beating out a scratchy infield hit to third. Miller crushed a hard drive to the left of Robertson and got to first safely when the infielder succeeded only in breaking down the thrust. McNally hit through the box, but Gerber stopped the ball back of second and stepped on the bag to force Miller.

"Shucks" Fools the Babe.

So far everything was quiet. Ruth was up and "Shucks" Pruett, the St. Louis pitcher, struck him out for the second straight time. Bob Meusel, however, flogged a hot single to centre and Hoyt trotted in from third. McNally sprinted to third and when Centre Fielder Durst threw to the far corner Meusel lumbered down to second. Durst's toss was wild, flew past Robertson and ended its wild course in the St. Louis bench. McNally came home and Meusel followed him with the tying run.

At once there was an uproar. Lee Fohl and the nine St. Louis players rushed at Umpire Ollie Chill and screamed in his face. Urban Shocker, Jimmy Austin, Lefty Leifield and a few others scurried out from the bench and flung themselves at the umpire. They raged and stormed, argued, pleaded and swore, cajoled, threatened and gesticulated. They demanded that Meusel be sent back to third, claiming that he was going to second when the throw escaped Robertson and therefore should go only to third on the ground rule giving a runner two bases on a wild throw into the bench.

Chill stood firm and Fohl led his gang to Connolly, umpiring behind the plate. The latter upheld his colleague, and the storm then whirled around his head. Making no headway here, half the mob went back to see if Chill had suffered a change of mind. After ten minutes of wearisome debate Chill pulled his statue, but it must have stopped, for the conflagration went on for five minutes more. Just when Fohl seemed to be through a fresh thought occurred to him. After fifteen minutes of it the umpires cleared the lot of the gang and the game went on.

Then Pipp singled to right, a hit which would have scored Meusel even if Bustin' Bob had been kept at third. Ward punctuated the argument with a hit to left, but Scott popped to McManus, ending the inning.

The best laugh of the day followed shortly afterward. As the sixth inning began Huggins made some remark from the bench. Connolly told him to keep quiet or get out. A minute later Hug was heaving eleg, and the umpire then chased him. One minute for Huggins, fifteen for Fohl.

Yanks Make Futile Gesture.

The Yankees filled the bases with one out in the sixth, but Ruth took three swings and Meusel flied out. In the eighth the Browns broke the tie and won. Van Gilder, who had relieved Pruett in the seventh, singled to left, and when Tobin bunted Hoyt threw too late to second to stop the pitcher. Gerber laid down a bunt and was safe at first on Hoyt's low throw. With the bases full, Sisler pushed a single through Scott. Van Gilder and Tobin scoring. Gerber was out at third, Miller to McNally, Sisler going to second. Then Williams walked and both runners came over when McManus singled to left and Ruth fumbled. This finished Hoyt, and George Murray finished the inning and the game.

The only rebuttal the Hugmen had to offer was in the eighth. Ruth, who had banned three times in a row, doubled to the centre field bleachers with two out, and Meusel shot a single to right, the Babe cantering home. Van Gilder was relieved by Dave Danforth, who forced Pipp to roll to second base.

The Browns went out in order in their first, but McNally walked and stole in the Yankee half. The great Ruth tapped weakly to the box and Meusel grounded to Gerber. Then Williams started things going in the second by slamming Hoyt's first pitch into the lower tier. McManus followed with a line double to right centre. When Severeid sent Meusel away back for a long fly, Long Bob foolishly tried to stop McManus from going to third, and his high throw hit between the bags and the plate and rolled to the bench, while Mac scored. Durst and Robertson were child's play for Hoyt.

In the third the Yanks failed to improve each shining hour. Schang and Hoyt walked, and Pruett seemed tottering on the brink. But stupid baseball by the Hugmen kept him on his feet. Miller was sent up to sacrifice and wouldn't wait out the lefthander. Elmer bunted the first ball and was out, while Schang and Hoyt moved up. McNally swung with the count three and one and dropped a wicked ground, which Robertson nailed and threw to the plate, catching Schang in a rundown. Wally scrambled back to third, where he found Hoyt reposing. Severeid touched both runners and Hoyt was called out. McNally reached second on the play, but Ruth fanned.

Browns Score Once More.

After which the Browns proceeded to score once more. With two out in the third, McManus beat out a splash toward third, and Severeid prodded a single off McNally's shin. The ball rolled back of third, while Mike stood entranced and let Scotty chase the pill. The Deacon recovered it and then made a needless and wild throw to second to stop Severeid. The ball rolled away from Ward and McManus scored. Severeid was out at third, Pipp to McNally.

The Yanks tied the score, as already described, in the fifth. They got after Pruett again in the sixth and made the little southpaw quit. Schang walked, Hoyt sacrificed, Miller was hit and McNally walked, filling the bases. But Ruth—well, Ruth fanned for the third straight time. Pruett was then yanked and Van Gilder sent in to pitch to Meusel, who likes left-handers. Bob gave Durst an easy fly.

RED FABER IN FORM.

Holds Senators to Four Singles and White Sox Go Over, 4 to 1.

WASHINGTON, July 12—Faber held the Senators to four scattered singles today, Chicago winning easily, 4 to 1. Mostil collected a single, double and triple off Francis and scored three of the White Sox runs.

WHITE SOX GET PLAYER.

Judge Landis Rules Sioux City Star Belongs to Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 12 (Associated Press).—Eugene Elsch, former Sioux City, Iowa, centrefielder, belongs to the Chicago Americans, according to a ruling of Commissioner Landis today. The player was recently sold to the Pittsburgh Nationals at a reported price of $10,000, following which the White Sox protested that they held prior rights on Elsch.

Curves and Bingles

McNally made two dizzy plays in the first inning. He went over to his right for Tobin's hard hit and nailed the fleet Johnny at first with a line throw. Then Gerber bounded between third and short, and Don Miguel slipped across and made a fine stop for an out at Pipp's station.

In the same inning Ward sprinted out into short right and caught Sisler's fly over his shoulder.

But all this good fielding did no good. It was Yankee errors that got Hoyt into trouble. Waite's own fielding was nothing to write home about, and Scott and Meusel uncorked disastrous throws.

"Three out," the crowd shouted when Ruth came up in the eighth. There were, one too, two stray boots for the home run king, who had fanned three times, twice with the bases full and once with runners on second and third. If Ruth had hit the Yanks might have had a chance.

It wouldn't be hard to name six umpires in both leagues who would have tolerated only about five minutes of the St. Louis debate in the fifth. After the original complaint, which Fohl had a legal right to make, the ensuing argument became senseless and absurd.

Van Gilder gets credit for the victory.

Williams hit the first ball for his twenty-first homer. It soared on a neat line into the lower tier. He is now tied with Tilly Walker and two behind Rogers Hornsby.

The Yanks ended with a flourish. With two out in the ninth Schang walked, and then stood stockstill at first while Danforth threw to Sisler. Wally, who was looking toward the plate, heard the crowd shout and then discovered that he was trapped off the base, dead asleep.

Mays and Bayne will probably pitch today.

GIANTS ONCE MORE HUMBLE CUBS, 5-1

HE GETS FINE SUPPORT

McGrawmen Increase Lead Over Cardinals by Game and a Half—Stengel Recovering.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 12.—The Giants fully intend to take a big lead with them when they invade St. Louis Saturday to play their nearest rivals, the Cardinals, and if they continue to play like they did today against the Cubs they are sure to do it. They had their heads up and looked like champions and they again trampled on the dazed Chicagoans, 5 to 1. The Cubs had built up a tidy winning streak of eight straight games before McGraw led his wrecking crew into town and Killefer and his hopefuls appear to be stunned by the manner in which the Giants are treating them.

Today's victory was especially pleasing to the tourists from the metropolis, for the Cardinals surprised and obliged by dropping two to the pitiful Phillies and the Giants were thus enabled to increase their lead by a game and a half.

Big Fred Toney, who was first discovered in the mountains of Tennessee, had one of his old-time good days against the Bruins, and after the first few innings it was largely a question of just how badly he would beat his opponents. Some uneasiness was apparent on the Giants' bench before the game when it was seen that Grover Cleveland Alexander, the dean and the old master of the Windy City hurlers, was going to take the mound. But it was not Alex's day. The champions nicked him for two hits and a run in the opening frame, and from that time on were always in the lead.

Stengel in the Hospital.

The fine showing of the Giants and the defeat of Alexander were not the only events of interest which transpired while the two teams were at the park. Just before the contest it was announced that Casey Stengel, who was struck in the cheek by a pitched ball yesterday, would be out of the line-up for two or three more days. While there are no bones fractured, his face is badly swollen and his nerves are shaken up so that he will be kept in the American Hospital for another day at least. On first examination of Stengel's injury it was believed that the cheek bone had been fractured but an X-ray examination at the hospital showed that this was not the case.

Then there was a mild disturbance occasioned during the game when fifteen alleged gamblers were escorted from the park by plain clothes men who had been stationed in the upper tiers of the stands to break up betting on games. As the patrol wagons drove away with their big cargoes fans in the stands applauded.

Ross Young also added his mite to the general excitement of the afternoon by punching a home run over the right field fence at a time when Meusel was occupying first base in the ninth inning. The Giants really didn't need the two runs badly, although they were not unwelcome, as the Cubs had made their only tally and their most threatening gesture of the day.

Since the Giants really won the game in the first inning, however, the whole story may just as well be told chronologically. Beauty Bancroft started the game with a sharp single to centre and raced on around to third when Krug threw wild as Terry, after picking up the invaders, and two more was a good many more than they needed; besides, they had proved to Stueland that they were the kind of hitters that treated veteran and rookie pitchers without preference or favor.

Added to all that it was growing late and the clouds which had hung over the park all during the game were growing more threatening, so Kelly grounded to Hollocher and Robertson grounded to Terry. Besides the Cubs' futile turn at bat that was all there was to the ball game.

CARDINALS' WINNING STREAK IS BROKEN

Phillies Take Double-Header From St. Louis Team by 8 to 2 and 3 to 2.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 12.—The Phillies defeated the Cardinals in both ends of today's double header, 8 to 2 and 3 to 2. The loss of the first game broke the locals' winning streak of eight straight. Rogers Hornsby hit his twenty-third home run of the season in the sixth inning of the first game. Pitcher Jimmy Ring won his own game in the seventh inning of the closing game with a drive into the right-field seats.

ROBINS ARE AGAIN PLUCKED BY REDS

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, July 12.—Wilbert Robinson and his Brooklyn Robins are wondering tonight when the distressing slump which has struck them for the second time this season will end. Since leaving home with such bright prospects they have not won a single game. Today's defeat was the seventh which they have suffered on their Western invasion, and their eighth in a row. They never had a chance to defeat the Cincinnati Reds this afternoon, for Pat Moran's aggregation played like pennant winners, capturing the game by a score of 4 to 1.

Some idea of how brightly the infield of the Reds shone may be gathered from the fact that it had a total of forty-one chances and accepted all except one. Fonseca put up a wonderful game at second, making twelve plays without the semblance of an error. He had four putouts and eight assists. Pinelli at third base accepted each of five opportunities, while Kimmick made the only error charged to the entire local team, his accepted chances being three putouts and six assists. Daubert made thirteen putouts and one assist without a miscplay.

Big Burleigh Grimes essayed to pitch the Robins to victory. He was badly supported, the Robins rolling up four errors behind him, enough to take the heart out of the best of twirlers. In addition, the Reds had the distinct advantage of fine pitching by Pete Donohue, who held the Robins to six safe hits, Grimes pitched seven innings, during which time nine hits were made off him. He was relieved by Decatur.

Brooklyn Gets Good Start.

The Robins started as if they were going to end their slump in the first inning. Olson opened with a triple and he scored on a double by High. Tom Griffith sacrificed, Donohue to Daubert, but Wheat hit to Donohue and High was caught between third and home. Wheat took second on the out, only to be left when Kimmick threw out Myers. In the first half of the initial inning the Reds made enough runs to win the game. Burns opened by beating out a hit to Janvrin. Daubert sent a long fly to Tom Griffith and Burns was able to get to second after the catch. Harper slashed to centre after Duncan had filed to Griffith, and Burns came home with the run that tied the score. Harper lost no time in dashing to second, which base he made safely, continuing on to third when Miller's throw to catch him stealing went into centre field. Myers's return throw was wild and Harper got home with the tally which really brought defeat to the Robins. On this play Grimes failed to back up third. Fonseca ended the inning by going out, High to Mitchell.

In the second inning each team went out in order, except that Kimmick was safe on a fumble by Olson. In the third Grimes led off by beating out a bunt, but he was caught off first by a quick throw by Donohue. After two were out in the fourth Myers was safe on Kimmick's high throw. He was forced out by Mitchell. In the home team's half of this inning Harper beat out a hunt to Olson, but Fonseca spoiled matters by hitting into a double play and Pinelli fanned.

Janvrin Triples and Scores.

The Reds scored their third run in the fifth. Kimmick tripled to left field and Wingo popped to Mitchell. Donohue hit to Janvrin, who threw wildly to the plate, Janvrin scoring and Donohue going to second. Burns filed to W

TENNIS FAVORITES WIN AT PROVIDENCE

RICE AT TOP OF HIS FORM

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 12.—The field of competitors in the Rhode Island State tennis championships was reduced today to eight survivors in the men's singles and seven teams in the men's doubles, while the semi-finals were reached in the women's singles and doubles. Pyrotechnics were not especially plentiful in the matches played today, but there should be a generous supply tomorrow, when every match in each division of the tournament will bring together players of high ability and prestige.

All the favorites won in the men's singles. William T. Tilden 2d, who is still the world's foremost player despite his resignation of the Wimbledon title, defeated Charles M. Wood Jr., one of the best schoolboy players in the metropolitan district, by scores of 6—3, 6—2, and Vincent Richards, the playing-through champion of Rhode Island, won with the utmost ease from James D. Ewing of the New York Tennis Club by 6—1, 6—2.

Tilden's general idea in playing Wood seemed at first to be to walk through the match with as little expenditure of energy as possible. But he found, before he had gone far in the first set, that no small amount of moving about was necessary to beat his young opponent. The former boys' national indoor champion covered court surprisingly well and was also cagey in playing for a chance to shoot the ball past Tilden as the latter sought the net.

Tilden Gets Down to Business.

Wood kept right on the champion's heels until the games had reached 4—3 in the opening set. Wood had the service in the next game, and came within a point of leveling the count at 4—all. Tilden began to hit harder and place more carefully at that period and ran out the set without dropping another game. But he had to bestir himself all through the match.

The bout between Richards and Ewing was a meeting of two Yonkers clubmates, members of the Amackassin Club as well as of the New York T. C. Richards captured the first eight games of the match and only romped the rest of the way.

Richards will meet Lawrence Rice of Longwood tomorrow in what should prove one of the big features of the tournament. Rice played magnificently today to defeat Philip Neer by 6—1, 6—2. Toward this clash the big gallery in attendance had turned, expectant of a close battle. The result was disappointing in its one-sidedness, but highly interesting in its revelation of Rice's return to his best form.

Harder and more brilliantly accurate driving has not been seen in this tournament than Rice disclosed against the Leland Stanford star. There was tactical meaning in every shot he sent over the net. It seldom required more than two or three strokes for him to manoeuvre Neer out of position, and his finishing shots always found their mark, sometimes almost magically through unexpected openings.

On the other hand, Neer did not do himself full justice. Rice never gave him much chance to assert himself, to be sure, but Neer was wild even on shots that were comparatively simple. His service is usually one of his strongest weapons, but he could not make it effective against Rice. He lost all four of his service games in the opener and three in the second set. He was not only crushed beneath the weight of Rice's keen driving but was outplayed at the net as well.

FIRST SET.

		Pts.	G.
Rice	5 4 4 5 4 4 6—30	6

SECOND SET.

		Pts.	G.

Wallace Johnson captured his third round match with Carl Fischer, his fellow-Philadelphian, by scores of 6—2, 6—2. The chop stroke specialist handled Fischer's hardest volleys without trouble and many of his own deceptively soft shots passed the former Pennsylvania Captain widely.

Johnson's control was flawless. He is expected to defeat Nathaniel W. Niles tomorrow and, if he does, will probably meet Richards in the semi-finals. Rice has beaten Richards once this year, in the Bermuda tournament, and Johnson defeated Richards in the Church Cup matches. So that it is readily to be seen that the Yonkers youth has his work out out for him in the next two days.

Matches on Today's List.

The line-up in the men's singles tomorrow is Tilden against Philip Bettens, Craig Biddle against S. Howard Voshell, Rice against Richards and Wallace Johnson against Niles.

Most of today's fireworks were concentrated in the first set of the New England sectional doubles match, in which Tilden and Richards, the national champions, defeated Bettens and Fischer by 11—9, 6—2. Bettens and Fischer played extraordinarily well at the net, and the gallery went into ecstacies over many of the short-range volleying exchanges.

The opening set was full of incident, with freak shots and comedy spills to enliven it. Richards was the mainstay of the winning combination. Tilden was in careless mood and threw away many points by his wildness. Some of his circus shots found their mark, however, and he steadied considerably in the second set. Bettens and Fischer had the lead at 5—4 in the opener with Bettens's service up, but they never came closer than within two points to taking the set.

The team of Voshell and Hardy entered the semi-finals while Rice and Niles, Neer and Davies, Harry Johnson and Wallace Johnson won their way into the round before the semi-finals.

In the women's singles, the semi-finalists are Miss Helen Wills of San Francisco, Mrs. Frank E. Godfrey of Boston, Miss Leslie Bancroft of Boston and Miss Martha Bayard, the last named being the sole surviving representative of the Metropolitan district. They will meet tomorrow in that order.

Mrs. Godfrey and Miss Bayard had the hardest time advancing today, both playing three-set engagements. Mrs. Godfrey defeated Miss Katherine Gardner by 6—2, 5—7, 6—2, and Miss Bayard eliminated Mrs. Benjamin F. Briggs of Pelham by 4—6, 6—2, 8—6. Mrs. Briggs's court generalship was of the best, but she was outstealthed by the Jersey girl.

In the women's doubles, Miss Bancroft and Miss Bayard will oppose Miss Agnes Sherwood and Miss Rosamond Newton tomorrow, and Mrs. Briggs and her sister, Miss Jacquelyn Green, will meet Miss Florence Ballin and Miss Gardner. All four teams won easily today in straight set matches.

The summaries:

COMMITTEE IS BUSY ON DAVIS CUP PLANS

Will Have Singles and Doubles Players Distinct on Team Again This Year.

The committee in charge of selecting the team to represent the United States in the challenge round of the Davis Cup tennis play at Forest Hills met yesterday to discuss plans for the players to follow in the interval between now and Aug. 10, when the team must be announced, in accordance with Davis Cup regulations. The committee expects to have a busy time, for less than a month remains to study the players and make the ultimate selections.

The members of the tribunal decided yesterday that they would adhere to the policy which was found so effective last year, that of having two players devote their exclusive attention to the singles, with another pair selected for the doubles. The committee is firm in its intention to take nothing for granted, and the records of the leading players in the tournaments which have been held are already being carefully studied. They will also keep a keen eye on all the outstanding stars of the game during the busy days which are just now beginning in the tennis world.

According to its present plans, William T. Tilden 2d, and Vincent Richards will be requested to play doubles together in the Metropolitan championship at the Crescent Athletic Club the week of July 24. Watson Washburn and R. N. Williams 2d, who formed the Davis Cup doubles team last year, will also be asked to play at Crescent. Both teams are expected to play at the tournament of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club the following week, so that a fair opportunity should be given for judging them.

MRS. MALLORY ON WAY TO AMERICA

U. S. Tennis Champion Sails Aboard the Homeric—Hoover Misses Liner.

SOUTHAMPTON, England, July 12 (Associated Press).—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, American woman lawn tennis champion, sailed for home today on the Homeric after a strenuous campaign of several weeks on English courts, culminating in her defeat last week for the grass court championship by Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen at Wimbledon.

Walter Hoover of Duluth, American champion sculler, who achieved his quest for the Diamond Sculls at Henley, also intended to sail on this steamer, but arrived at the dock after the liner's departure, having been delayed uptown by preparatory details. Ten stewards were kept waiting until the last moment to load the champion oarsman's baggage.

When the belated rowing ace arrived at the pier only to see the liner well on her way one bystander suggested that Hoover unpack his racing shell and chase the ship. Shell and sculls, however, were already aboard, and are now on their way for Duluth, while Hoover himself will follow on the Majestic.

Miss Edith Sigourney and Miss Eleonora Sears of Boston and Dean Mathey also sailed today on the Homeric.

It was by the fraction of a second that Walter Hoover, American rowing champion, who missed his boat yesterday sailing from England, caught the outgoing Aquitania when he sailed from here a month ago. He reached the pier just before the gangplank was lifted. In time to explain that delay at the customs office necessitated a stopover in France to have his credentials altered.

EASTERN Y. C. CRUISE ENDED BY FOG BANKS

Special to The New York Times.

NORTH HAVEN, Me., July 12.—For the second year in succession the Eastern Yacht Club fleet has been stalled off Bar Harbor, the objective of the annual cruise, by persistent fog banks. The squadron disbanded at this port this afternoon, with the Fox Island thoroughfare completely blocked by swirling mists from the southward.

Last year, when the fleet tried in vain to reach Bar Harbor, only to be driven back by the mists, disbandment came at Rockland. On that occasion, a little while after the orders dispersing the fleet were hoisted on the flagship, the weather cleared.

The Vagrant, the flagship of the New York Yacht Club, kept on to Bar Harbor and will return West in a few days. The annual race back to Marblehead for the two cups deeded to the club by the late Guy Norman of Newport will be called off from lack of entries, although the Vagrant was ready to compete.

THE SCRAPPER IS VICTOR.

Wins George Cup Yacht Race in Canadian Regatta.

KINGSTON, Ont., July 12.—The Scrapper, owner and sailed by Major Windeyer of the R. C. Y. C., Toronto, won the George Cup race at Prinyer's Cove this morning easily, leading the Huskie, owned and sailed by Ed Lansing of the Crescent Yacht Club, Watertown, N. Y., and the Chiryia, owned and sailed by Arthur Dalton of Kingston. The Scrapper was in the lead from the start and was never in danger, finishing over fifteen minutes ahead of the Huskie. For a time the Chiryia was in second place and was excellently sailed, but the American entry soon pulled into second place and the boats finished in that order.

Toole Orders Game Replayed.

President Toole of the International League yesterday ordered the Rochester and Buffalo clubs to replay the second game of a double header played June 4 which Rochester protested.

AUSTRALIAN TEAM LOSES IN DOUBLES

MISS RYAN IS A WINNER

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 12.—Today was finals day at Wimbledon and Mlle. Lenglen will go home with three championships, one of which she won alone and the other two with partners. In the final of the ladies' doubles she and Miss Ryan had little difficulty in retaining their title by defeating two sisters, Mrs. Stocks and Miss McKane, by 6—0, 6—4. Mlle. Lenglen showed no diminution of skill, despite the strenuous time she had on the courts during the past fortnight, her stediness and accuracy in placing the ball again being the feature of her play. Miss Ryan made an excellent partner, although she lost several points through double faults in serving. Mlle. Lenglen's next victory was with Pat O'Hara Wood in the final of the mixed doubles. They beat Randolph Lycett and Miss Ryan, winners in 1921, by two straight sets, 6—4, 6—3.

The most exciting event of the day was the magnificent fight between the Australians, Patterson and O'Hara Wood, and the Australian Anderson and the Englishman Lycett for the world's doubles championship. Anderson and Lycett won by three sets to two, after a struggle that will long be remembered. Patterson and Wood captured the first two sets at 6—3, 9—7. Then came a wonderful recovery by their opponents, who took the next two sets at 6—4, 6—3. The fifth set went to twenty games before it was won by Anderson and Lycett at 11—9.

Mrs. Mallory sailed for New York from Southampton today aboard the Homeric. Questioned by a reporter as to what passed between her and Mlle. Lenglen after the final of the ladies' championship, Mrs. Mallory is quoted as saying:

"We did not have a row, though a few words were exchanged. Suzanne said to me: 'Well, now you see that I was really ill when I played you in America last year.' I replied: 'You have only done to me today what I did to you when we met last year.' I told her a few other things," added Mrs. Mallory.

Doubles Matches Spectacular.

WIMBLEDON, July 12 (Associated Press).—The closing here today of the international grass court tennis tournament was marked by two of the most spectacular doubles contests ever seen at Wimbledon. In one of these, Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen of France and Pat O'Hara Wood of Australia won the mixed doubles championship by defeating Miss Elizabeth Ryan of California and Randolph Lycett of Great Britain. The other feature was the winning of the men's doubles title by Lycett and J. O. Anderson of Australia over Wood and Gerald Patterson of Australia.

Mlle. Lenglen and Miss Ryan annexed the women's doubles championship by defeating Miss Kathleen McKane and her sister, Mrs. Stock of England, in straight sets, 6—0, 6—4.

Suzanne Lenglen's playing was the feature of the mixed doubles final. Lycett, who, with Miss Ryan, opposed the French star and Wood, seemed tired after his two previous matches of the day. Although Lycett and Miss Ryan played well, they could not match the spectacular shots of their rivals and lost in straight sets, 6—4, 6—3.

In the men's doubles Lycett and Anderson won a great uphill fight after losing the first two sets. Lycett's wonderful playing featured the match and caused his admirers to acclaim him as one of the greatest doubles players in the world. He pulled Anderson through in the thick of the match, when his partner was losing point after point by missing easy balls at the net. Although Lycett seemed disheartened in the early sets, he pulled himself together and took command in winning the last three sets. As a climax he captured three of Patterson's service games after the score was five—all in the final set.

Patterson Does Not Shine.

Patterson's doubles playing did not compare favorably with that of Lycett. He showed an inclination to hang back. It was noticed today that he played back even when Wood, his partner, was receiving the service, and rarely got forward after returning a service ball over the net. The greatest fault charged against Patterson, however, was his frequent netting of balls off service. Observers of today's game agreed that the Australian star is a great server and smasher, but that the form he exhibited today does not promise well for his chances for recapturing the Davis Cup.

The final of the men's doubles began with Patterson smashing in great style. As Lycett, instead of playing his usual strong doubles game, seemed somewhat demoralized and Anderson was weakened as a result, Patterson and Wood took the first set 6—3.

Patterson and Wood also led in the second set at 5—1, when Lycett won his service game. Lycett and Anderson then rallied, threatening the lead of their opponents at 6—5 and again at 7—6, but Patterson scored the final point in a 9—7 victory.

The third set was played at furious speed, Lycett's work improving so greatly that he was the individual star. Patterson appeared to have trouble playing shots off the ground, while Anderson footfaulted several times. The set was carried to three-all, when Lycett lost his service game. Wood, however, followed suit. Wood's playing became weaker and he began missing volleys of the kind he had returned earlier for brilliant aces. Anderson and Lycett showed brilliant all-around play, taking the set 6—4, when Patterson lost his service game in the tenth.

Lycett and Anderson received a great ovation when they tied the match by taking the fourth set at 6—3. From a rather weak opening, the contest had become the most spectacular of the tournament.

Anderson Improves.

Anderson improved steadily. He began returning Patterson's services for winning drives, also making many shoulder-high volleys at the net. One of his shots caught Patterson below the waist, doubling him up for a few moments. Patterson was warmly applauded when the match was resumed.

The serving side won ten hard fought games in the final set, taking the score to 5-all. Patterson dropped his service game in the eleventh, fifteenth and nineteenth, which setback ultimately led to the defeat of his side. Lycett, playing the best all-around game of the four, saved his last service game from a 15—40 score by putting over three spectacular volleys, finishing with a terrific diagonal kill.

At deuce in the final game Patterson's service return was out. Wood regained the point, however, with a hurricane drive against the court, then Patterson drove outside again. Wood's return of the next service went high into the air and Anderson, running back, was just going to smash it when Lycett, crying "Out, out," shoved his partner aside. The ball fell six inches over the baseline, while a great shout from the crowd greeted the new champions.

Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen was mobbed by admiring crowds after her two victories today. She kissed a number of school girls who congratulated her. When told that Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt, the American woman champion, before sailing today had explained her recent defeat by saying she was not up to form, and that the whole tournament had been spoiled by rain, the world's champion laughingly refused to say anything, and apparently was anxious to avoid any further controversy. She left the impression on questioners that she was anxious to avoid any statement that might cause ill-feeling.

TRYSTER IS FIRST IN THE FLEETWING

GREAT RUSH BY EXODUS

Comes From Fifth Position in the Stretch to Finish Second—Whisk Takes the Woodland.

Tryster, the fleet black son of Peter Pan, carried the light blue and brown of Harry Payne Whitney across the finish line in the eleventh renewal of the Fleetwing Handicap on the Empire City course yesterday afternoon in the wan of as fine a collection of sprinting talent as has faced the barrier hereabout since the current racing season opened. A length behind the winner came the Greentree Stable's Exodus, finishing on the extreme outside, beneath the noses of the judges, after a mighty rush down the stretch that carried him from fifth position in the field of flying thoroughbreds to second place in less than a furlong. Knobble earned the remaining slice of the money for the Rancocas Stable after undergoing a rough voyage in the first part of the short six-furlong route.

When the barrier snapped upward, Knobble's nose showed in front for an instant, but he was knocked back as Nolan brought Pan Rose across the field and swung into the lead. Calamity Jane, stable companion of the ultimate victor, flashed out to measure strides with the Triple Springs Farm's fast mare, and the two took the field of nine starters to the quarter pole in 23 4-5 seconds and to the half in 0:47 2-5, a merry gait on the rather soft surface of the Yonkers track.

At the turn into the stretch both of the leaders were weary, and when Merris let down Tryster, which had been rated a length or two off the pace, he came like a black thunderbolt to take the lead with ease and win under a mild drive. The fiery finish of Exodus was the only thing that prevented the Peter Pan colt from taking the major honors off by himself and going away, but the Greentree Stable's sprinter was the fast est article in the field at the very close, although he never gave the winner any worry. Knobble, which was interfered with in the first half after being forced back at the start, came along in the stretch to beat Calamity Jane for third money.

Whitney Pair the Favorite.

The Whitney pair were warmly favored in the speculation in the race, being played from a high of 9 to 5 to close at 12 to 10. There was considerable backing, too, for Knobble and his stablemate, Thunderclap. The latter ran a dull race.

The value of the prize to the winner was $4,590. Tryster covered the course of about six furlongs in 1:08 3-5, the same time credited to Dominique in capturing the event last year.

The Woodland Selling Handicap, the secondary feature of the card, proved merely a nice breather over the route of a mile and seventy yards for the Maxwell Stable's Whisk. This five-year-old was at the top of his form and galloped in front of the other six starters for the full journey, winning easily by five lengths from S. Ross's Crank. Tutter, from the Henry Alterman string, came along under a drive at the close to wrench the show position from the favorite, Johnny Dundee's War Mask.

George Odom, the winner of the first race, a five-furlong sprint for the youngsters, in the person of Cyclone, a fine looking black colt by Heno. The early pace was set by Tall Timber, the R. T. F. Wilson candidate, but McAtee led Cyclone close to the leader from the barrier almost to the top of the stretch. Then he called upon his mount, which came on to win going away by a couple of lengths. Tall Timber was easily next best and saved the place from the Rancocas Stable's Suweep without difficulty.

Algoa Beats Lord Herbert.

The claiming race at a mile and a furlong, run as the second number on the card, was a duel all the way between J. J. O'Toole's Algoa and Edward Arlington's Lord Herbert, the former gaining the verdict by a narrow margin. The result was due chiefly to the fact that Laverne Tator outrode young Breuning. Lord Herbert was closer up than usual, and was wearing down the winner at the end. W. W. Casey's Moody took third money, eight lengths back of the contenders. The Casey gelding was backed down from 15 to 1 to close at 8 to 1. Lord Herbert was an odds-on favorite, but remained consistent by disappointing his backers.

THE GREAT ROSE IS VICTOR IN FEATURE

Trots Last of Three Winning Heats in Tecumseh Stake at Toledo in 2:02 1-4.

TOLEDO, Ohio, July 12.—The Great Rose won the Tecumseh Stake for 2:12 trotters, the feature event of today's Grand Circuit races, in hollow fashion, taking three heats.

The Laurel Hall was a contender for two heats and then was withdrawn. Cox started the horse, although he was lame. The first heat in 2:04¼ took much of the Good Time Farm entry's speed.

The Sherwood Cup, for three-year-old trotters, another added money event, went to Lee Worthy, the second choice, in straight heats. Collateral, after chasing the winner to the wire in the first heat, weakened, and Baron Etawah was runner-up in the next. Alma Worthy, the favorite, was outside the money.

In the 2:05 pace, one heat of which was won Monday by Grace Direct, the judges displaced S. E. Easing, her driver, after Logan Hedgewood won the first heat today. H Shevely drove the mare in the third heat and won. Decision was reserved by the judges in Easing's case.

LINKS ARE UNPLAYABLE

U. S. G. A. Committee Forced to Take Unique Action—Final Round Will Come Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

GLENCOE, Ill., July 12.—On the opening qualifying day of the national open golf championship at the Skokie Country Club, Jock Hutchison of Glen View established a new record with two brilliant rounds that aggregated the low total of 135 for thirty-six holes. Yesterday Walter Hagen, famous home-bred winner of the British open title, made a record almost equally good by negotiating the distance in 141—superb golf under the prevailing conditions. Today the record-breaking honors went to the credit of the weather man, who broke every precedent in the history of golf. He postponed a national open championship—something unique in American golf annals.

A week ago every Chicagoan was praying for rain. For full forty-five days there had been a Sahara drought which had transformed the beautiful Skokie course into a hard-baked battlefield, where even short drives were getting tremendous distances. So intense had been the heat that huge cracks appeared here and there on the course, while the greens were tricky and as hard as billiard tables. The outlook for championship golf had disappeared, and there were frequent prophecies that luck, always an important factor, would play the hand of the winner.

On the eve of the championship rain began falling, and both days have been wet ones. In neither instance did it interfere materially with the play, however, but at 7 o'clock this morning the heaviest rainfall of all broke, and for a solid hour or more it poured. When the first of the third-day qualifying pairs appeared at the first tee the course gave one the impression of the Wisconsin lake region viewed from the air. Along all the fairways there were huge ponds of water; traps were immense tubs that caught and held the rain, while the greens were transformed into miniature lakes and rivulets. One, the new seventeenth, was actually washed out of commission, so badly damaged that hopes of using it in the championship proper have been abandoned.

Officials Take Action.

James D. Standish Jr., one of the Vice Presidents of the United States Golf Association, under whose auspices the tournament is being conducted, took a cursory view of the situation and ordered a postponement for an hour in order to give the officials time to inspect the course and to arrive at a definite decision. At the end of that time, conditions not having changed for the better, the suggestion was made that instead of qualifying at thirty-six holes to-day's field be allowed to qualify at half the distance. This suggestion, however, failed to meet with the approval of the professionals, and the tournament was made. The tournament was postponed a day, bringing the championship play proper on Friday and Saturday.

Never before in any championship has such action been necessitated. Only twice in any tournament of note in this country has there been a postponement on account of weather conditions. Once, during a Western open at Denver, rain had forced the turning of the clock's hands backward and the completion of the tournament on a temporarily arranged nine-hole course. The other time was during the Western amateur at Grand Rapids, Mich., when there was an unusually heavy fall. Here, however, the tournament was not postponed, but it was necessary to rig up an improvised course for the concluding round.

The shifting of the final day to Saturday immediately brought up the question of what would happen in the event of a tie for the championship—would it be played on Sunday or on Monday?

Mr. Standish declared emphatically that it would not be played on Sunday. "It is contrary to the traditions of the United States Golf Association," said Mr. Standish, "to play tournament golf on Sunday."

Later, however, officials of the U. S. G. A. were not decided, and it was stated that there would be no provision made until tomorrow. The question is more involved than it would appear. In the first place, there may not be a tie. Another point that will have to be considered is this: George Duncan, the Scottish professional, is said to be opposed to playing tournament golf on Sunday, as are some of the others who might possibly be the principals in a play-off.

With the present conditions, with practically all of the big ones safely in the list, the stock of Hagen and Hutchison is rising daily. It is generally believed that one of the twain will be the winner, with the issue a toss-up. Hagen's driving ability, plus the other strong points in his game, and Hutchison's unerring skill with his mashie will, it is believed, give them a great advantage in the kind of golf that has prevailing. Barnes, the titleholder, is expected to be up in the running, but is not considered as having quite as good a chance as the other two.

More Players Qualified.

Yesterday's qualifying list was increased by four today when the committee of the U. S. G. A. ruled on the case of Charley Thom, professional of the Shinnecock Hills Club on Long Island. When yesterday's round was finished the field of twenty-four was closed with those having scores of 152 or less, and they included Thom. Frank A. Godchaux, the New Orleans amateur, and John Cowan of Waverly, Mass. Afterward it was discovered that Thom's scorer had erred in not penalizing Thom a stroke at the thirteenth hole, where the player was in a trap and in casual water.

He was permitted to drop out of the water and play the shot without a penalty, giving him a total of 152, and shutting out the scores of 153, which included Frank McNamara of Ortega, Fla., former Cherry Valley professional; Bob Peebles of Louisville, Willie Ogg of Worcester, Mass., and Alfred T. Hackbarth of Park Ridge, Ill.

Under a strict interpretation of the rules Thom would have been disqualified for attesting a card that was inaccurate, but the committee, after considering the case, ruled that his score be merely changed to 79 from 78, giving him a total of 153. This change left all the 153 scores in the championship, including Thom, McNamara, Ogg, Peebles and Hackbarth.

TAYLOR AND HERD ARRIVE ON OLYMPIC

British Golfers Here for Exhibition Tour—First Formal Match at Wykagyl.

J. H. Taylor and Alexander (Sandy) Herd, noted British golf professionals who are to make an exhibition tour of the United States during the next three months, stepped ashore from the Olympic this morning into the midst of torrid New York, to find much the same kind of weather that greeted George Duncan and Abe Mitchell a year ago. The visiting pros, however, were pleased to get ashore in any kind of weather, although they had a delightful voyage.

"Although I am notoriously a bad sailor," remarked "J. H." as everybody greets him, "and anticipated a disagreeable crossing, we had a splendid passage, and we both enjoyed every minute of it."

Taylor and Herd were met at the dock by Sumner R. Hollander, who booked their tour, and a number of friends, and were taken to the offices of Holman, Inc., where an impromptu reception was held, many dropping in to bid them welcome and wish them success on their circuit through the Eastern and mid-Western States and parts of Canada. Early in the afternoon they went out to the Knollwood Country Club at White Plains, where they will make their headquarters until the actual starting of their exhibition matches.

A few informal rounds have been planned before their first competition in order to shake their sea legs and become a bit acclimated. Today they will go to the Westchester-Biltmore Country Club for a couple of rounds with Tommy Armour and Sumner Hollander and next Monday will play at the Siwanoy Country Club, Mount Vernon. That evening the visiting pros will be guests at a dinner at Siwanoy.

Taylor, who is one of the greatest and best known golfers the game has seen, acted as spokesman for the pair in the various interviews to which they were subjected after stepping ashore.

"First," said John Henry, "we wish to claim the indulgence of the American golfing public. We are not here to conquer. There was a time—a score of years ago—when I claimed myself a topnotcher. When I tell you that we carry the combined weight of 104 years you will see that we naturally have no great expectations in the matter of victories. In fact, we expect to lose more matches than we win. But we come here to bring to the best traditions of the game of golf, and will be pleased and satisfied if our exhibitions give pleasure to your golfers and are helpful in some measure to your players."

The first scheduled match on the itinerary of the visiting pros will be at the Wykagyl Country Club at New Rochelle next Wednesday, July 19. In the morning Herd and Taylor will play in a two-ball foursome against the Wykagyl professionals, Jimmy Reith and Fred Moore, and in the afternoon there will be a four-ball, best-ball match against Jerome D. Travers, former American amateur and open champion, and T. Y. Bermingham, the Wykagyl club champion.

CALDER MAKES PLEA FOR O'SHAUGHNESSY

COMMENDS DEPUTY STUART

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Senator Calder of New York and Charles Dewey Hilles, Republican National Committeeman from that State, talked New York politics with President Harding today. They called at different times and Mr. Hilles went back to the White House this evening to dine with the President, with whom he is a great favorite and on whose judgment Mr. Harding places much dependence.

The main purpose of Senator Calder's call at the White House was to urge Nelson O'Shaughnessey of New York for the appointment as Minister to Cuba. Mr. Calder would not indicate definitely whether they discussed the appointment of a Collector of Customs for the Port of New York to succeed the late George W. Aldridge.

When Senator Calder was asked about the collectorship he suggested that the Custom House was in good hands, as H. C. Stuart, the deputy and acting collector, had been a most competent assistant in the office for twenty years and frequently had full charge of the Custom House administration. He said nothing to indicate whether he favored Mr. Stuart's appointment.

The understanding in New York political circles here is that the collectorship will not be filled until some time in the Autumn, perhaps not until after the November elections. The intention is to have Senators Wadsworth and Calder, National Committeeman Hilles and leaders of the Republican State organization agree on a candidate to recommend to President Harding.

Not Disturbed by Hearst Boom.

After his first visit to the White House Mr. Hilles admitted that he had talked New York politics with the President. He would not give any details of their discussion, which was brief. It was supposed that the President and Mr. Hilles had a full exchange of views on political matters when Mr. Hilles dined at the White House later. When he asked what he thought of the Hearst boom for Governor of New York and the condition of New York Democratic politics generally Mr. Hilles said it was very satisfactory from a Republican point of view.

Another of the President's political visitors today was John T. Adams Chairman of the Republican National Committee. He calls at the White House frequently. His visit caused more than the usual interest on account of reports circulated yesterday that Mr. Adams was intended to resign the chairmanship. After his call on President Harding it was learned that Mr. Adams had no intention of resigning. He is well liked by President Harding, who was mainly responsible for his selection and was said to be giving complete satisfaction in his conduct of national committee affairs.

The report concerning Chairman Adams was a phase of the understanding that Elmer Dover, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, had placed his resignation with President Harding's hands to be accepted when and if the President desired. Mr. Dover had been a candidate for the Chairmanship of the National Committee at the time Mr. Adams was chosen and yesterday's story had it that his resignation would be followed by the retirement of Mr. Adams to make way for Mr. Dover.

Dover's Position Untenable.

Additional information obtained indicates the directness of the report that Mr. Dover's resignation as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury has been tendered to President Harding. No surprise has been occasioned by the report, as it was generally agreed in political circles that the refusal of Secretary Mellon to support Mr. Dover in his efforts to appoint Republican workers in place of present officials of the Treasury made Mr. Dover's position untenable.

Senator Calder learned from the President when he recommended Mr. O'Shaughnessy's appointment as Minister to Cuba that there was no immediate prospect of filling that office. The President explained that conditions in Cuba were so unsettled that he was not likely to make any appointment until they had cleared.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy was in the diplomatic service from 1904 to 1916. He is especially familiar with Latin-American countries.

Horace G. Knowles Says Withdrawal is a Credit to Harding.

Horace G. Knowles, former American Minister to Rumania, Bulgaria, Servia, the Dominican Republic and Bolivia, and the legal adviser and representative of the deposed constitutional Government of the Dominican Republic, speaking of the plan for the withdrawal of the United States military force from that country, announced Tuesday by Secretary Hughes, says it is really more than he expected, is entirely acceptable to him and believes it will be enthusiastically received and approved by the Dominican people. Likewise it is approved by the Haitien-Santo Domingo Independence Society.

"I am sure Washington intends now to act in absolute good faith with the Dominicans," he said, "and will do every reasonable thing in its power to restore to them their national sovereignty unimpaired. A real opportunity is now within the reach of the Dominican people and my acquaintance with them makes me feel sure that they will not only fully appreciate it but take the most complete advantage of it.

"The promise of President Harding, made both to his fellow-citizens and to the Dominicans just before the Presidential election, has been slow of fulfillment, but now that it has come, it is of a kind that does credit to his Administration and that will be satisfactory and most beneficial to the patient and long-suffering Dominicans."

"Plantation Revue" Next Monday.

NEW GOULD BRIDE HAS TWO CHILDREN

farm. While he was at Manursing Island Mr. Gould arrived. He said Mr. Gould wore a band of crêpe upon his hat, and McCall's inquiries among the servants resulted in the explanation that the first Mrs. Gould had died. Last Spring Mrs. Sinclair sold her place near Brewster to William Almling, who had acted as foreman of the farm, succeeding McCall. The farmhouse has been converted into a tea room.

The estate on Manursing Island has a value estimated up to $250,000. On the south side a sea wall has been built to withstand the seas rolled up by the sudden squalls that frequently sweep over Long Island Sound. Other parts of the estate which formerly were marshes have been filled in and developed into beautiful lawns. On an elevation and near the water's edge is the gray stone house with many gables, surrounded by a number of smaller houses for guests and servants. The place was well supplied with motor cars and two drivers are included among the force on the estate.

The entrance to the estate was guarded last night by two special policemen and a watchman who said they were placed there after the members of the household had been besieged during the day with continuous inquiries about the marriage of Mr. Gould and Mrs. Sinclair. The place is about half a mile from the Biltmore Beach Club, a feature of the Westchester-Biltmore Country Club. It also is adjacent to the estate of William H. Browning of Browning, King & Co. The grounds include a modern playground for the children, and there are swings, shoot-the-chutes and other outdoor playthings for the little folk.

Although the children of Mr. Gould are understood to have been advised of the marriage of their father by a cable from him several days ago, none of them was willing to comment. Kingdon Gould, who, with his wife, was at his father's country place, Georgian Court, Lakewood, N. J., denied himself to newspaper men yesterday. Mrs. Carroll Wainwright, formerly Edith Gould, and her husband spent yesterday at the city home of George J. Gould, 857 Fifth Avenue, but they were out to reporters.

The name of Vera Sinclair appears in old newspaper files among the cast of "The Girl in the Film," a musical farce adapted from the German by James T. Tanner and produced on Dec. 30, 1913, at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre by George Grossmith, London comedian. Miss Sinclair, an understudy for Miss Emmy Mehlen, took the part of Olivio when she appeared with that company, which was mostly English.

It was soon after she appeared in that production, according to the latest reports along Broadway last night, that Miss Sinclair, whose striking beauty had won her recognition, met George J. Gould. The play did not meet with financial success, and when it closed its run in this city Miss Sinclair did not return to London with the majority of the company. She is understood to have occupied a city residence in West Seventy-fourth Street, near Riverside Drive. Her portrait was recognized last Spring among a collection on exhibition at the Reinhardt Galleries. She was shown as a young woman of slender figure and with auburn hair.

Loses City Homes if He Marries.

The marriage of Mr. Gould, it is believed, will result in his loss of a life interest in the city residence, at Fifth Avenue and Sixty-seventh Street, and the house at 177 East Sixty-seventh Street, bequeathed to him by his first wife, Mrs. Edith Kingdon Gould.

The provision in the will is as follows:

"Ninth—I give, devise and bequeath unto my beloved husband, George Jay Gould, for and during his life and until he remarries, these two certain pieces of real estate, situated at the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Sixty-seventh Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, and at 177 East Sixty-fourth Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, with all the buildings and improvements thereon and appurtenances thereto and together with all personal effects, furniture, books, paintings, statuary and all other articles of use, ornament or curiosity therein belonging to me, except the two Meissonier paintings specifically bequeathed above and except my jewelry. Upon the death of my husband, George J. Gould, or upon his remarriage, or in the event that he shall release to my trustee hereinafter named his life interest, then in such event I direct my said trustee hereinafter named to sell, dispose of and convey said two pieces of real property with the buildings and improvements thereon and appurtenances thereto, together with all the furniture, books, paintings, statuary, and all other articles of use, ornament or curiosity therein, at public or private sale and for cash or on credit, as my said trustee may determine. The proceeds of such sale I give and bequeath to my trustee hereinafter named to be added to and form part of my residuary estate and to be held and administered under the terms and conditions contained in the thirteenth clause of this will."

CURRENCY NOT WEALTH.

The sudden flurry about the German Government being upset by the fall of the mark has largely disappeared. Chancellor WIRTH may fall, but it will not be on the question whether the mark is worth a quarter of a cent or a fifth. The reckless inflation of Germany's currency has been disastrous in many respects, but it does not really touch the national wealth. Bank notes are, after all, only a convenient instrument for the exchange of goods. The goods are the real thing. Ask how it fares with German agriculture. Get the returns of transportation. Find out what the factories are doing. Then you may arrive at a juster notion of German resources than you possibly could get by merely taking note of the millions of printing-press marks added to the circulation every week.

Endless inflation of the currency is, of course, as demoralizing to the character of the people as it is harmful to the on-going of sound business. As BURKE remarked in connection with the assignats of the French Revolution, a constantly swelling volume of paper money arouses the gambling instinct. Everybody rushes into speculation in the hope of turning artificial wealth into something real. No one wishes to keep or save money of which the value fluctuates daily, and usually downward. One result is to stimulate the purchase of luxuries. Take up a copy of the German Illustrirte Zeitung and you will find its advertising pages filled with announcements of furs and diamonds and other expensive articles. The inference would be that the German public had unlimited funds to spend. The truth is that the funds are of such doubtful value that people hasten to get rid of them on any terms. But while this is true, and though the fact that German public finance is in a bad way cannot be denied, still the investigator of the actual wealth of the German people will look elsewhere than at the bales of paper marks under which porters stagger to and from the banks. It is the products of the fields, the mines, the workshops, which tell the true story of wealth in Germany, as everywhere else.

PENDING STRIKE SETTLEMENTS.

Even strikers regard strikes as only a means to an end. The sentiment in favor of strike settlements is unanimous. Agreement of the disputants is the best way and seems probable for the railways. Arbitration ranks next best, and seems likely in the coal trades. Domination by either party, with surrender by the other, is the worst way. If the breach of industrial peace has increased the disposition of disputants to agree with their adversaries while in the way with them, the troubles will have taught their lesson. The United States is strong for the rule of reason, as are really most of the strikers. The exceptions are the radicals who denounce the Government as a "scab herder," and summon workers to revolution with the familiar exhortation that they have "nothing to lose but their chains." The United States is a Government which speaks softly through the President's proclamation, but its little finger is thicker than the loins of all the unions.

The President's "big stick" is law and reason. He waives everything else, but has no power to waive the law. The President hopes that the coal trade will arbitrate, but no arbitration can decide that only unionists shall mine coal. ROOSEVELT'S commission made an award not even allowing the unions to sign the settlement. There can be neither arbitration, agreement nor compromise which does any injustice to any worker ready to work on terms otherwise reasonable. The President's proclamation and his speech at Marion on the Fourth of July are in effect an epitome of the only possible award acceptable to Americans.

It must be understood that the Transportation act is not to be repealed by the strike route. If there are differences of opinion on what the law requires of each of the parties under it, the proper remedy is application to the courts, with appeal to Congress for amendment if necessary. Those who break the peace and seek to substitute their will for the law put themselves in the wrong whatever they demand. Arson, murder, blockades, are bad ways to reform within nations. We are all members, one of another, in what Mr. COOLIDGE terms an "interdependence" as sure as our national independence. Each man should * * * find his own in all men's good,

HEARING FROM THE COUNTRY.

It will be two weeks tomorrow since the House of Representatives took a recess "to carry the Subsidy bill to the people." Three hundred or more earnest Republican statesmen were, according to this theory, let loose upon the public to convince each voter of the merits of the Administration's proposals for building up a great merchant marine. We may be hard of hearing, but we have noticed no popular agitation about the Subsidy bill; we have not even heard the clarion voice of any Congressman explaining it to the public. It looks as if the people had made up their minds about the subsidy before their Representatives got back from Washington.

The Senate, which remains in Washington, seems to be hearing from the country. A canvass of Republican Senators revealed a majority against taking up the Subsidy bill at all this session. Senator JIM WATSON long ago boasted of the fact that this Congress had done nothing, which he seemed to think was the best that could be expected of any Congress. Evidently his colleagues will not stultify him; it will remain a do-nothing Congress to the end of the chapter.

Where, however, are those Representatives who were sent out two weeks ago on an evangelistic campaign? So far as the eye and the ear can determine, they are doing nothing. Neither the tariff, the bonus, nor the subsidy engages their eloquence. If they are interested in anything, it is in fixing up their "fences"; but for many of them that is likely to be beyond human power. The best news the country could get would be that the Senate had followed the example of the lower house and retired to private life to await judgment on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November.

TARIFF REBELS.

How many more Republican Senators will refuse or threaten to refuse to take their tariff medicine? Insurgency can't be localized in the Middle West. It has spread to the East. Mr. EDGE serves notice. The worst is expected from Mr. MOSES. And only about a third of the multitude of amendments has been disposed of. Senator EDGE's threat to vote against the bill depends on the not improbable disappearance of the sections which give the President large powers to raise or lower rates, according to conditions; to change the classification of any article or articles to equalize domestic and foreign conditions; and to proclaim American valuation as the basis for imposing duties when foreign competition can't be met otherwise. "Some elasticity in the administration of a tariff law" he insists upon. The majority of Republican opinion in the House is averse to such elasticity. If the Senate yields, Mr. EDGE will vote "No" on the final passage.

He is faithful enough to party discipline not to speak his full mind, but the real ground of his dissatisfaction with the tariff is evident from these words:

> The abnormal trade conditions of today and the accompanying necessity for continually revising economic business relations make it absolutely impossible for any tariff law to long meet situations which are changing so rapidly. It is unthinkable, especially in view of the time consumed in the consideration of this bill, that Congress should be the only authority permitted to readjust tariff schedules.

In this more is meant than meets the ear. Mr. EDGE's deep interest in the extension of our foreign trade in the period of reconstruction, notably manifested in the law which bears his name, must make him peculiarly averse to a tariff to check imports. The passage of this bill without the provisions for "elasticity of rates might prove a national calamity." The temperance and discretion of his language make all the stronger its inevitable implications:

> A tariff which, while affording better protection, still results primarily and practically in a general rise of prices at home, without a corresponding encouragement of world's trade, narrows our possibility for development to a trade confined to ourselves, which is not in my judgment a real interpretation of a broad and enlightened protective policy or a lasting solution of our economic ills.

The sum of it is that Congress is determined to pass a tariff bill which the country doesn't want, which many members of Congress object to; a tariff that takes foreign trade by the throat and picks every consumer's pocket.

LEAVING SANTO DOMINGO.

The special Senate committee appointed to investigate the American occupation of Haiti and Santo Domingo held back its report on the latter. The reason assigned was that special negotiations were understood to be nearly completed between the State Department and representatives of the Dominican people. This forecast is now verified. Secretary HUGHES announces the plan under which the Dominican Government is soon to be restored to full control and American troops withdrawn. The steps which it is necessary to take will require some time, but the pledge of our Government is now precise and binding, and the whole matter depends upon the good faith of the Dominicans in carrying out the agreement to which their representatives at Washington have put their names. In brief, the undertaking is to validate the acts of our interim Military Government in Santo Domingo; to protect all obligations and contracts which have been entered into; and to continue in force the convention of 1907 until the Dominican foreign debt, to secure the payment of which that convention was made, shall have been fully discharged.

This reasonable and friendly agreement should do something to lighten the gloom of Senator BORAH. In his recent speech he saw nothing but an intention of the United States Government to remain forever in Santo Domingo, and to turn it over to exploitation by American bankers and land speculators. He and other critics may still contend that the condition laid down by the State Department is an impairment of Dominican sovereignty. But it should be thought of rather as a needed guarantee against a recurrence of misrule in Santo Domingo, with a consequent new demand for American intervention.

The whole case is now referred back to the Dominicans themselves. If they have the earnest intention and ability to set up a stable Government of their own, complete evacuation of their territory by American forces will surely follow. The good-will and unselfish purposes of our own Government are clearly established by the terms of the program for Santo Domingo which Secretary HUGHES has successfully negotiated.

WOMEN IN CHILDREN'S COURTS.

Attorney General NEWTON's opinion that laymen in general, including women, are eligible as Judges of the children's courts seems legally correct and is certainly instinct with common sense. The constitutional amendment under which the courts are established refers to inferior local courts, in which the Judges are often not lawyers. It is true that the Judges of the children's courts are to have powers somewhat broader than those of other local magistrates; but if the act had intended to confine the selection to the legal profession it would hardly have neglected to say so.

The charge that the Attorney General's opinion is influenced by "politics," by an intent "to cater to the woman's vote," is specious. If there are subjects in which women have a peculiar interest, a peculiar authority and responsibility, the children's court is by no means the least of them. Many of the questions raised centre in the juvenile delinquent's hygienic and social environment. The attitude and function of the children's Judge is primarily parental. Miss RUTH TAYLOR, who has already been nominated for the post in Westchester, is a social worker of ability and experience. There is, of course, no reason why lawyers should not be appointed. Granted the necessary qualifications of character and heart, a legal training is desirable. But it is a secondary, not the chief, consideration.

The Attorney General's opinion is in line with progressive developments in many kindred fields. Mr. GEORGE E. VINCENT'S "Review" of last year's work of the Rockefeller Foundation stressed the importance of social hygiene, which is supplementing and bids fair partly to supersede the work of the medical practitioner. Schools for social workers in this field have been established at the Medical School of the University of Pennsylvania, at Johns Hopkins and at the Harvard Medical School, and have been liberally aided by the Rockefeller Foundation. If magistracies in children's courts are to be open to social workers, these universities might well include in their courses pertinent instruction in law.

HEFLIN ON HARVARD.

Harvard made Senator UNDERWOOD a Doctor of Laws, unaccountably slighting his colleague, Mr. JAMES THOMAS HEFLIN, who makes many miles more of speeches. This was bad, but the worst remains behind. Mr. W. P. G. HARDING, Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, also received an LL. D. To Mr. HEFLIN the Federal Reserve Board is the sum of all villainies and Mr. HARDING the horned devil himself. In the presence of as many as half a dozen Senators Mr. HEFLIN hammered this wicked deed. Thumping on the classical dictionary, he evoked HORATIUS at the Bridge and LEONIDAS at Thermopylae. He told the somnolent six that those heroes "never displayed such grim boldness and reckless daring as did the members of the Harvard Faculty when, in defiance of the pride and interest of the honored living, and with utter disregard to the memory of the illustrious dead, they conferred the degree of LL. D. on W. P. G. HARDING."

What inspired the crime? What inspires all crime? Wall Street! The Fates spared THEODORE ROOSEVELT, "a graduate of Harvard in her better and brighter days," the ordeal of "seeing and hearing the money-changers of Wall Street chuckle." No good man can wish to interpose between the guilty Cantabrigians and the uplifted bludgeon of Mr. HEFLIN, but isn't he hitting the wrong men? Is it the Harvard Faculty that confers honorary degrees? Isn't there a board of haughty Brahmins called the Corporation, the President and Fellows of Harvard University? This soulless corporation, these impervious oligarchs, have even been known to neglect the valuable advice and directions of Mr. ROOSEVELT. They are animals capable of anything, even of chuckling at Mr. HEFLIN'S animadversions.

WENDELL PHILLIPS loved to declaim against the alliance of "Harvard College and the slums." Only too well known is its long subservience to the Cobden Club and British gold. Now Mr. HEFLIN finds it the slave of the money-changers. For the benefit of his health, will he not desert the Federal Reserve Board and Mr. W. P. G. HARDING for a few days, and devote his wonderful powers of ratiocination to the Harvard Corporation? Some of our best psychiatrists believe that Mr. Dick would have found intervals of relief, if not a positive cure, by diffusing his attention, by varying his devotion to KING CHARLES's head with periods of study on STRAFFORD's.

BIG ELMS FOR THE MALL.

Mr. CULVER admits, in his letter printed today, that the project of reconstructing the Central Park Mall with large trees is thoroughly feasible. Mr. BOSSOM, from his point of view as an architect, emphasizes the fundamental need of an imposing array. The Mall is the central feature, the main axis, of the Park composition as a whole. The design of OLMSTED and VAUX "compares more than favorably" with that of "any of the famous parks throughout the world"; but with the trees reduced to saplings, as they are now, or even with the half-grown trees to which Mr. CULVER inclines as "more practical," the Mall is dwarfed and the entire composition impaired.

With Mr. BOSSOM's remark that New York "is big enough to keep its Park in first-class shape" there can be no cavil, but the last thirty years have shown that something more is requisite than bigness. There must be authoritative knowledge, bold enterprise and eternal vigilance. It is to supply this need that the Society of "Elms on the Mall" has been formed. No man exceeds Mr. PARSONS in knowledge of the Park and of the vicissitudes and dangers that beset all efforts to maintain it. A society of forty tree lovers, each of whom has a personal interest in a particular elm, though having no official status, will constitute the best possible board of guardians. Whatever happens to the rest of the Park, the Mall will stand as a memorial of the original design and of the possibility of preserving its integrity in all its parts. The problem will no longer be one of choosing among varied and sometimes conflicting judgments. What can be done on the Mall can be done elsewhere. The City Administration that fails to preserve any feature of the general design or to restore those features that have already decayed will stand accused by the Mall—and by the society that is to watch over it.

That New York is not only big enough but intelligent enough to restore the Park to its pristine beauty is evident in the many letters received. That it is also liberal enough appears from the fact that already a considerable number of the writers have pledged themselves to the subscription of $1,000, which enrolls them among the forty members of the "Elms on the Mall."

SUMMER-FALLOW.

There is a plowing and sowing in midsummer which is known as the "Summer-fallow." It is a cultivation not directly for the crop immediately grown, but simply for the improvement of the soil that the ultimate crop may in due time be the more bountiful. So is there now a season of intellectual "Summer-fallow," when men and women, chiefly teachers, whose minds have borne fruit season after season, plow and sow and harrow, study, recite and dispute chiefly that their minds may be put into better state for bringing forth manyfold.

Many of our universities and colleges which only a few years ago were places of professional repose and of tranquillity undisturbed by students, from the time of the Summer solstice until the approach of the autumnal equinox, have become campus of vibrant intellectual life. Great throngs gather about teachers as once they gathered around mediæval Abelards, except that these of today have not to undergo such privation or discomforts as did their eager intellectual precursors, who sometimes dwelt in houses built of sod and lived on the meagrest of fare. A thousand courses are given in Columbia alone and more than thirteen thousand students are already registered. But what is happening in Columbia and in New York University is happening all the way across the continent. It is inspiriting for those who have at times a hopeless feeling about democratic aspirations.

Quite apart from the intellectual benefits which result from this fallowing process are the social and political values which come of bringing together the most inspiring, mature student minds from all parts of the Union. The West and South come especially to know the East and North, because, for climatic reasons, the movements are chiefly in these directions. Moreover, there is an exchange of teachers between East and West. Men from the Pacific Coast are among the lecturers here and men from the Atlantic Coast are lecturing in California. Incidentally, it is to be regretted that the immigration laws have not made exception in favor of bona fide foreign students who want to enter American institutions of learning, even if beyond the 3 per cent. limit. It will be said that we have enough of our own, but room can be found, in the Summer months at any rate, for their admission to these great schools of national and international enlightenment.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

His Success Earned by Service.

American journalism, and not only that of the South, suffered an appreciable loss in the death, this week, of EDWARD WARE BARRETT, owner and editor of The Birmingham (Ala.) Age-Herald. That is not because he had acquired, twenty-five years ago, a paper that was struggling precariously for continued existence and raised it to a firmly established position of influence and prosperity, but because he did this without any deviation from the principles and ideals of honesty and public service that alone justify journalistic success and make it worth attaining.

That he wanted an increased circulation and larger advertising patronage is to be assumed, as he was a practical newspaper man as well as an idealist, but he sought them indirectly, and they came, as it were, incidentally, the result of his public's well-earned respect and confidence. Actively exercising the functions and powers of both proprietor and editor, he controlled his paper completely, and though he always was generous in ascribing its merits to the intelligence and industry of the members of his staff, those merits were, after all, the expression of himself.

The words in which, the morning after Mr. BARRETT's death, his paper announced the fact were far from a perfunctory formulation of grief. They clearly revealed a bereavement personally felt by all of his associates in the making of the paper—a recognition that there had gone from them one of whom they thought not as an employer, but as a fellow-worker who was also a friend, generous, helpful in times of need, comprehending and sympathetic.

Mr. BARRETT began his newspaper career in the composing room of The Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle. Later and for many years he was the Washington correspondent of The Atlanta Constitution under HENRY M. GRADY's competent direction. He bought The Age-Herald in 1897, and to it devoted for the rest of his too short life all of his interest and ability.

Her Scorn Wakens Memories.

Mrs. ASQUITH—significantly known to all as "Margot," possibly because some instinct denies to her the meaning of "Margaret"—has been talking again. This time she has expressed her opinion of American men. Only a few of them pleased her, it seems. The others, the typical majority, she describes as rude creatures, with few thoughts or none except for making money.

This has been said before by foreign visitors, and of course it is true enough—in the sense and to the degree that it is true of other peoples in lands with well-developed commerce and industry. The French call the British a nation of shopkeepers, and that, to anybody who knows how sharply fixed on the main chance are most Frenchmen, is almost, but not quite, as amusing as it is to hear Mrs. ASQUITH scolding us for our over-appreciation of money.

She herself has been curiously unsuccessful in proving to her own countrymen her own disinterestedness. They even charge her with selling in the shape of sensational memoirs her own secrets and those of other folk. And was it purely as a missionary and philanthropist, eager to help and edify us, that she came over here? There was some reason for suspecting that her object was to capitalize the curiosity which her widely advertised eccentricities and unconventionalities had excited on this side of the water. That wasn't in the very best of taste, perhaps, but there was no law against it and it was business—what is called "good business."

She had practically nothing to give in return for our money except a sight of herself. That, however, was all right as a bargain, for nobody was compelled to pay the price of admission to her show, and those who thought after seeing her that they did not get their money's worth had only themselves to blame. Some of them blamed her, but that was foolish as well as discourteous—as foolish as it would be to get angry at what Mrs. ASQUITH is saying about us now.

Nobody Loves Commuters.

Why is it that at this time, as so often before when the railways have found it necessary to reduce service by cutting out trains, it is on those used by the commuters that this form of economy is practiced first?

That is a purely rhetorical question, for the answer is obvious—the typical commuter can get into town by only one railway line, and, no matter to what inconvenience or expense he may be subjected, his patronage will not be lost. The makers of long journeys—the through passengers—are different. Usually, if they do not get what seems to them good treatment from one road, they can take another to their destination and will do it.

For the same reason, the commuter's trains—all of them—arrive at and are sent out from the most inconvenient tracks in a station, if there are any inconvenient tracks in a station, and he is made to climb all the stairs and ramps, while the travelers by the big-named expresses have their easier and preferential way in these matters carefully considered. This may be business, but it is irritating—to the commuters. They journey every day, and always of necessity, while the long-haul passengers travel only once in a while, and climbing a flight of stairs at like intervals would be to them a little thing.

Mosquitos Abound This Year.

From all the suburbs and from all the dwellers in suburbs except the real estate dealers, come reports of mosquitos in swarms and clouds. The plague usually is ascribed to the frequent rains that have marked the Spring and Summer, and that, of course, in a way, is the reason for it, the rains having made innumerable breeding places for these savage and venomous insects. Really, though, they owe their existence more to the carelessness of their victims than to the peculiarity of the season.

The trenching of the marsh lands too often has been neglected, and too often people are not vigilant in preventing the formation of continuing pools of motionless water near their houses. It is from these pools—frequently they are in a sagging eavestrough—that the house mosquitos chiefly come, and there is no excuse, whatever the weather, for the maintenance of these hatcheries. The mosquito is a preventable evil, always and anywhere, and it can be prevented, anywhere and always, by the exercise of intelligence and the spending of a little money.

Wherever mosquitos are found, therefore, they convict municipal officials and private citizens alike either of ignorance or of negligence.

ELMS ON THE MALL.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am glad to state that "I am no votary of fond desire" in the matter of confirming a judgment at odds with the plan of restoring the Park Mall to its pristine form as to the essential feature in trees. My contention, if it can be called such, lies within the question of practicability—all things considered—of the size of the trees, and in this I simply express the belief that the chances of success are two to one in favor of the smaller trees and the available field for their procurement and safe handling.

As you remark, much that I have said favors the present plan and I would have it so. For instance, in Brooklyn, we successfully transplanted trees, several hundred, in fact, ranging in diameter from 5 to 18 inches, but it must be borne in mind that this work was done under the most favorable conditions and a clear field for operations, many trees being moved and planted on the same day. We had substantial apparatus and intelligent and reliable help; with this same machine, subsequently loaned to the Government at Washington, a number of the trees now growing about the then new Capitol grounds, were successfully moved.

In conclusion, permit me to state that it was not my intention to apply the phrase "vast and impossible" to the Mall scheme, for out of my own experience I could not believe such an undertaking either vast or impossible. I meant to criticise the acts of those in authority at several periods in the past, who, taking advantage of occasions of public agitation of needed works of restoration in the Park, prepared large and practically impossible estimates of cost of the work proposed to be done, either with the purpose of defeating the project or of making provisions for needless or extravagant expenditures.

JOHN Y. CULYER.
Mount Kisco, N. Y., July 9, 1922.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is most gratifying to admirers of Central Park to see the very active interest that is being taken in the proposal made by Mr. S. Parsons to replace the existing trees along the Mall with others of a finer type.

Central Park compares more than favorably with any of the famous parks throughout the world, but its main avenue has been allowed to fall below the high standard anticipated in the original conception. The installation of mature elm trees, whether of twelve or eighteen inches across the trunk, would be a great source of added beauty to this wonderful breathing spot of New York; and as to the practicability of such an idea, any architect who has laid out and developed a similar avenue on estates on Long Island can readily testify that it can be accomplished without insurmountable difficulties.

The proposed memorial feature of having individuals provide special trees is good, but it does seem that New York City is big enough to keep its own Park in first-class shape without calling upon its citizens individually to do this, though I am sure they will all do so if it cannot be improved by other means.

The space that you have given to this project will go a long way to insuring its success, I am sure.

ALFRED C. BOSSOM.

Times Square Sunday Traffic.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some day soon there will be a very serious accident in Times Square.

When the traffic policeman is off duty and the safety zone posts are removed at the junction of Broadway, Forty-fourth Street and Seventh Avenue, especially on Sundays, the vehicular traffic is allowed to dash in all directions and at any speed without any apparent regulation.

Again, why not have one-way streets all the twenty-four hours, viz., odd streets west only and even streets east, with right of way on avenues?

Wading in Central Park.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Reading in THE SUNDAY TIMES an article concerning the new wading pools for city children, I am wondering why the pools that are already in Central Park are not in use. There are two at Seventy-second Street which would make wonderful wading places for small children, but I noticed the other day the children were not allowed in by the Park police.

Why not use what we have at hand?

MY OWN LITTLE WORLD.

The code of Your World is so unfair;
You smile, yet I know that you do not care,
But there is a place, and I'm going there—
Back to My Own Little World.

The heart of Your World is so unkind,
For the eyes of your Soul have grown too blind,
But I shall not care, for I shall not mind,
Back in My Own Little World.

The ways of Your World are so unjust;
You smother the things that I love and trust,
But there it will mean to me "less than the dust"—
There in My Own Little World.

Still I shall live where the sunlight beams,
Still I shall see where the moonlight gleams,
But nobody else may share in my dreams—
There in My Own Little World.

ASKS IMMIGRATION REFORM.

Wallis Urges Selective Restriction at Ports of Embarkation.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 12.—Selective restriction of immigration at the ports of embarkation in Europe was urged by Frederick A. Wallis, former Immigration Commissioner at Ellis Island, in an address before the Christian Endeavor State Convention here today, as a solution of the immigration problem.

"There are two great measures needed to solve the problem of the immigrant," he said. "First is the examination and inspection of every man, woman and child on the other side of the ocean long before they are allowed to board the ship for the United States. The second is of no less importance—that this Government should have some right to say whether these people should come here.

"Not that we would separate families, as is being done at Ellis Island today, but that we would let it be known on the other side that so many thousands of men were needed for the wheat fields of the West, the cotton plantations of the South, the coal mines of West Virginia and Pennsylvania, the textile mills of New England, and so on.

"America is intended for Americans, and every foreigner coming to these shores expecting to earn his livelihood, and probably send funds regularly to the old country, should be made not only to register but to become naturalized and a part of this Government. If he is coming over to share in the privileges and benefits of this land of promise and fulfillment he should contribute his share of the upkeep of the Government, and if he is not willing to do that, then he should immediately be sent back to the country from whence he came."

Episcopal Council Fixes Budget for Convention in September.

At a meeting of the Presiding Bishop and Council of the Episcopal Church yesterday in the Church Missions House, 281 Fourth Avenue, it was voted to present to the triennial general convention, which will be held in Portland, Ore., beginning Sept. 6 and continuing three weeks, a resolution setting $21,000,000 as the budget to be raised in the next three years for the foreign and home mission work.

Instead of simply asking the Episcopal churches to donate that sum, however, an itemized list of the needs of the hospitals, colleges, seminaries and mission stations will be placed before the communicants, with the amount each "need" will cost. In this way it is hoped to create a greater personal interest.

The Council voted to petition the House of Bishops to release the Right Rev. Logan H. Roots, Bishop of Hankow, China, from his administrative office during the next three years, so that he can devote all his time to the reformed National Christian Council of China, to the secretaryship of which he has been urgently called. Bishop Roots, who has been Bishop of Hankow for twenty-two years, presented the request in person. He explained that the Council is a federation of churches which represent 300,000 Chinese Christians.

TUPPER LAKE FOR VETERANS

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Decision to erect a 500-bed $1,500,000 hospital for tubercular former service men at Tupper Lake, N. Y., instead of the proposed 250-bed institution at Liberty, N. Y., was announced today by Acting Director Rogers of the Veterans' Bureau.

Mr. Rogers also announced that the Veterans' Bureau is to make available to the Treasury $750,000 to enable it to increase the capacity of the hospital to be erected at Chelsea, N. Y., from 250 beds to 500 beds, making the total cost there $1,500,000.

These projects, Mr. Rogers said, will give the New York district facilities for caring for 1,000 tubercular former service patients.

Decision to abandon the proposed site at Liberty, N. Y., Mr. Rogers stated, was made upon recommendation of the General Hospitalization Board, which found that the land there was unsuitable, and selected instead 150 acres at Tupper Lake, to be donated by the Chamber of Commerce of that town. Survey of the land at Tupper Lake, he added, was already under way, and bids for the construction of the new institution would be called for shortly.

NEW STAMPS ARE ON SALE.

First of Special Delivery Issue is Present to Harding.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The new special delivery stamps, showing a messenger boy on a motorcycle delivering a letter at a colonial house, were placed on sale, this morning at the Philatelic Agency of the Postoffice Department and Postmaster General Work made the first purchase. He will give the stamp to President Harding with a dye-proof prepared from the master proof of the stamp.

The second stamp went to Mrs. Irving Glover, wife of the Third Assistant Postmaster General, who is an enthusiastic philatelist.

In connection with the sale of the new stamps, the Postoffice Department announced that future issues of postage stamps will be in such designs and colors as to be "easily distinguishable and memorized."

PLAN A HOTEL COLLEGE.

A Four-Year Course and Degrees for Manager is Association's Aim.

BOSTON, July 12.—Details of a plan for raising a half-million dollar fund to establish a training school for hotel managers at Cornell University, a research bureau for hotel accounting at Chicago and vocational training schools in several parts of the country for hotel personnel, were made public today by the American Hotel Association, in annual convention here.

The course at Cornell will be for four years with three months of practical work each year in leading hotels. The degree of Bachelor of Science will be awarded to graduates, who will be qualified as managers and assistant managers.

CANADA SILENT ON ENVOY.

No More Steps Taken for Diplomatic Representation at Washington.

LONDON, July 12.—The question of Canadian Government representation at Washington was brought up in the House of Commons today by Colonel Arthur Murray, Member for Kincardine and West Aberdeen, who asked what was being done in the matter.

Winston Churchill, Secretary for the Colonies, replying, said no progress had been made in the matter recently, and the Canadian Government had taken no further steps with reference to the proposal that Canada should have its own representative at Washington.

HARDING NAMES R. C. WHITE.

Appoints Him Assistant Secretary of Department of Labor.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Robe Carl White of Muncie, Ind., at present Chairman of the Board of Review of the Department of Labor, was named today by President Harding as Assistant Secretary of the Department of Labor.

This position was recently created by an act of Congress, and Mr. White will have exclusive charge of all immigration matters. Mr. White has been identified with the Labor Department since January 4.

DYE LAWYER DENIES BERLIN INFLUENCE

NOT EMBASSY COUNSEL

Copy of Its Opinion, Circulated in Germany, Caused Attorneys to Bring Suits.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Statements attributed to James Wilson Brown, 26, a Washington attorney, that President Harding's letter ordering the seizure of German patents from the Chemical Foundation was actually drawn up here, approved in Germany and then passed off as the White House, as 100 per cent. Americanism that would win at the polls in November and also temper Senate opposition to Attorney General Daugherty, were denied here today by Mr. Brown. He said the suggestion that he had made such a statement was ridiculous.

Mr. Brown is a member of the firm of Nippert & Brown which represents German clients interested in the suits against the Chemical Foundation. Mr. Brown denied that his firm had consulted any public official with regard to the Chemical Foundation.

The suggestion has also been made that Mr. Brown was counsel for the German Embassy, but he said that he could not so regard himself, although he had represented the Embassy at various times.

"This firm has had German clients in certain matters, just as it has had American clients in proceedings against the Alien Property Custodian," Mr. Brown explained. "We are in a small business to take cases of legitimate merit. We may have other German clients at other times. I wish to say, however, that we have no general retainers from any group of Germans.

"As far as the statements attributed to me are concerned, they are ridiculous and absurd. I do not know their origin, and the only possible inference I can draw from their being laid at my door is in an attempt to discredit any statement that might later come from this firm."

The formal statement made by Mr. Brown follows:

"In view of certain unbased reports which have been brought to our attention which appear founded on the belief that this firm is responsibly connected with large interests to whose advantage it is that the patents now held by the Chemical Foundation be returned to the Alien Property Custodian, pursuant to the demand of the Alien Property Custodian on the authority of the President, we would state that such belief is absolutely unfounded and the reports erroneous. We have to date refused to make any statements in connection with this situation, for, while familiar with this situation, we have, on behalf of our clients, such a minor interest in it that we considered any statement on our part inappropriate.

"But since the above rumors have been started and repeated in print, we have no objection to stating our whole interest in this matter.

"This firm has for a very considerable time represented a number of persons, former owners of specialized patents transferred to the Chemical Foundation and now held by it, and also represented several former owners of patents under which licenses were granted during the war by the Federal Trade Commission, and which patents were afterwards assigned to the Chemical Foundation and are now held by it, on account of which the Chemical Foundation started suits for recovery of royalties on such licenses pursuant to Section 10 of the Trading With the Enemy act. This firm does not represent any German chemical or dye industry, and its representation of German owners of chemical or dye patents does not exceed a dozen patents.

"In view of our connections, as above stated, about two months ago this firm found it desirable to transmit to them for their benefit an opinion which stated in brief that the German former owners of the patents licensed by the Federal Trade Commission were the proper claimants of royalties accounted under Section 10 of the Trading With the Enemy act; that it was a question whether in a number of conveyances of patents the Alien Property Custodian had authority on such proceedings to have to pass for simple title; that it was also questionable whether licenses of patents granted by the Alien Property Custodian were not reviewable under Section 10 of the Trading With the Enemy act.

"It is our information that this opinion was widely distributed in Germany and created considerable interest, and that certain copies were referred to numbers of attorneys in this country with the request that it be considered as applicable to their own general clients' interests.

"During the week of June 26 a member of this firm was requested by several firms of New York attorneys to have consultations as to the form and scope of a proper bill to be brought before July 2 to protect their various clients' interests in the license fees above mentioned. These consultations were had and the several attorneys in question and this firm brought the several suits necessary for the protection of the interests we represented on or before June 30. These suits are all of record in the several United States Courts having jurisdiction. These suits are connected with the Chemical Foundation only in respect that the Chemical Foundation has filed its own separate similar suits claiming the same royalties as its own.

"At no time has any member of this firm been requested to interview any public official, or take up with any public official the matter of the Chemical Foundation, nor has this firm done so.

Alfred E. Nippert, the other member of the firm, is now on a visit to Germany. His name attracted attention in the Summer of 1916, when he brought a message from the Kaiser to the American people, asking for aid for the East Prussians taken to Archangel by the Russians. Mr. Nippert, who was then Judge of the Court of Common Pleas in Cincinnati, went to Germany to see the $400,000 contributed by the American Commission for Relief in Poland, of which he was President, was being used.

MRS. P. C. HEWITT MARRIES A BARON

BRIDE'S FOURTH MARRIAGE

Former Mrs. Bruguiere, Reports Said, Refused to Wed Shah of Persia, Who Proposed 17 Times.

Copyright, 1922, by the Chicago Tribune Co

PARIS, July 12.—The widow of Peter Cooper Hewitt, formerly Marion Andrews of Baltimore, was married today by Abbe Magnin at St. Roch's Catholic Church to Baron Robert d'Erlanger, an English artist.

One of the witnesses was the Baron's grandmother, the Baroness Slidell d'Erlanger, of the French family of the same branch.

It was Baron d'Erlanger, who is middle aged, who put Nurse Elizabeth Kelly out of the Hewitt apartment in the Ritz during Mr. Hewitt's illness. Miss Kelly was accused of a theft of jewels.

Baron d'Erlanger and Mrs. Hewitt were seen together at the Paris race track for many years. The couple left for Italy on their honeymoon and on their return will live in Passy. Baroness d'Erlanger has two children, Baby Anne Hewitt, and 15-year-old Pedar Bruguiere, a son by a former marriage.

This is the bride's fourth marriage. She is the daughter of the late Tunstall T. Andrews of Virginia, and her first husband was Pedar Bruguiere, a son of Emil Bruguiere of Newport. After her divorce from him she was married quietly to Stewart Deming, but this second marriage lasted only a short time and she left for Europe returning upon her return the name of Mrs. Marion J. Bruguiere.

Her third husband was Peter Cooper Hewitt, the noted inventor. At the time of their marriage in December, 1918, the wedding created a stir, as there had been no previous announcement of Mr. Hewitt's divorce from his first wife, Miss Lucy Work, daughter of Frank Work of this city and a sister of Mrs. Burke-Roche. Their marriage in 1887 was one of the events of the season. Mr. Hewitt, who was 60 years old at the time of his death, was just twice the age of his second bride. He died following an operation for abdominal trouble in Paris Aug. 25, 1921. By his will his widow received two-thirds of the income from his estate as long as she did not remarry, in which event she was to receive one-third.

According to recent reports from Paris, the bride refused to marry the Shah of Persia, though he proposed to her no less than seventeen times. She said at the time that regal honors did not tempt her and that the Shah was definitely out of the running. Her Paris home is one of the finest residences in the city and she said that she did not propose to leave it.

NEW WORK IN MUSIC

GREENWICH, Conn., July 12.—All musical and fashionable Greenwich was present this afternoon at a musical causerie given at the home of Mrs. Ernest Thompson Seton for the benefit of the Anna Howard Shaw Memorial. In illustration of a brilliant lecture on "Modern Tendencies in Music" by Miss Jeanne Marie Maier, a musical composition of a completely revolutionary character, providing a new idiom in music, called "The Tides of Manannann," by a young Western composer, was given in public for the first time.

This composer is Henry Cowell, born in Menlo Park, Cal., in 1897. He played the violin in public at six years of age but his health breaking down, had to abandon music until his sixteenth year. From twelve years of age he supported his mother by selling flowers in the streets, at last obtaining a job as a gardener to a musician in exchange for lessons. He was heard playing his own composition by a San Francisco musician, who was so impressed that he obtained a scholarship for him at Stanford University.

"The Tides of Manannann" is the first part of an Irish trilogy founded on an Irish myth discovered a year ago, and dating back to Druidical times. It is a series of remarkable clusters of tones and overtones, and the hand slides across the whole keyboard, the fingers being bent low and playing the low notes of the bass harmony, and the fingers the high notes, both low notes and high notes forming melodies in counterpoint. The theme is played with the right hand in a steady rhythmic flow which, in conjunction with the great "tone clusters" composed of the higher harmonies from the eleventh up in units, gives a magnificent stirring whole which is entirely new in every point.

This work was played by Mme. Marguerite Nikolaric, who is the only pianist, save Mr. Cowell himself, who has been able to master its technical difficulties. Mme. Nikolaric was recalled many times, and finally consented to play the piece over again.

Other interesting works by young modern composers in illustration of Miss de Maier's talk were played by Frederick Bristol and were received with much applause.

GITLOW AND LARKIN MUST SERVE TERMS

ALBANY, July 12.—The conviction in 1920 on charges of criminal anarchy of Benjamin Gitlow, former Socialist member of the New York Assembly, and James Larkin, an Irish agitator, was affirmed today by the Court of Appeals. The men must serve the prison sentences of five to ten years imposed by the Supreme Court.

New trials were granted to Isaac E. Ferguson and Charles E. Rothenberg, radical agitators convicted of criminal anarchy. The reversals were based largely on errors in the trial courts.

The opinion of the Court was written by Chief Judge Hiscock. It reviews at length "the Left Wing manifesto," which the defendant Gitlow took part in printing and circulating, and makes many quotations from it for the purpose of showing that it boldly and uniquivocally advocates the overthrow of our Government by revolutionary mass strikes, destroying the political and property right of all other classes except the proletariat and then setting up in the place of the Government thus destroyed a proletarian dictatorship, which, however, should be only a temporary agency in bringing about a condition of communism with control of industrial production, but with no government of individuals in any such sense, as that term could be used.

He points out that while the manifesto does not in explicit terms advocate the use of force and violence by which to overthrow our Government, this was quite unnecessary. It is said in the opinion that "some things are so commonly incident to others that they do not need to be mentioned when the greater subject is described."

Judge Hiscock spends little time in discussing the proposition urged by the defendant that the statute against criminal anarchy was a violation of the constitutional provisions guaranteeing free speech.

The Donnelly anti-trust law was unanimously sustained by the Court of Appeals in a decision handed down today affirming the conviction of John Fetterick, John L. Knight, Charles Murphy and Wells & Newton, Inc., of a violation of the law regarding the award of plumbing contracts, uncovered by the the greater subject is described."

Boddy Conviction Upheld.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 12.—The conviction of Luther Boddy for the murder of Francis J. Buckley and William A. Miller of the New York City Police Department was affirmed by the Court of Appeals today. The conviction of Boddy was based largely upon the testimony of witnesses, who declared that Detective Buckley, dying, had exclaimed, "Get Boddy! He shot Miller and me!"

The date of Boddy's execution will be fixed by the Court of Appeals when it convenes in the Fall.

MILLER SEES FURTHER DECREASE IN TAXATION

ALBANY, N. Y., July 12.—"As the result of the conservative policy pursued and of the economies effected in the conduct of the public business, the Treasury is in a condition to carry the State through the present period of lean revenues without any increase, and with the possibility of a still further decrease in taxation," said Governor Nathan L. Miller tonight in the statement on the financial condition of New York State at the close of the fiscal year, June 30, 1922.

With the return of normal economic conditions, the natural increase in revenues can be counted on to provide for the legitimate and inevitable increase in the cost of government," he added, "and with the development of a more scientific budet system it should be possible more and more to limit the appropriations to the actual needs of the State."

The surplus at the close of the fiscal year was $41,261,294.18, the statement said. The actual budget expenditures for the year were $126,082,112.45, or $16,879,887.62 under the appropriations in force at the beginning of the year. Similar expenditures for the year ending June 30, 1921, only half of which was under the present Administration, were $185,008,174.90 or $9,611,731.70 under the appropriations.

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—4 to 4¼% for the best names. Tuesday—4 to 4¼% for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

Good Fur Buying in Prospect.

Buying of raw furs in this market has slowed up considerably, compared with the demand of a few weeks ago, but prospects of the resumption of active buying around Aug. 1 were said yesterday to be very bright. The early purchases made by the cutters-up and the manufacturing furriers were largely for sample purposes, but the business that is in prospect will engage skins for use in filling orders for the finished garments. The ending of probabilities of labor trouble in the cutting-up trade means an especially active business in trimming furs. The demand for domestic furs continues to be topped by raccoon, muskrat, beaver and wolf, with coming into demand coming next. The best call for the foreign skins is said to be for caracul and kid crosses.

In Defense of Testing House.

Denial of the statement that the use of the Shanghai Testing House means the elimination of the foreign inspector from the Shanghai raw silk market was made yesterday by Ramsay Peugnet, Secretary and Treasurer of the United States Testing House Company, Inc. Mr. Peugnet, in support of his denial, quoted D. E. Dowty, Vice President of the testing company, who stated a year ago that the testing house would not eliminate the capable raw silk inspector, but would make his services more necessary. This is because the physical and chemical tests do not replace inspection, but supplement it. Mr. Peugnet declared the charges for testing were not unreasonable, being equivalent to those in the United States.

Compartment Suit Case.

For long trips, automobile tours and general travel a new type of suitcase has been devised and is now being offered to the trade. Made of either leather or drill, this piece of luggage has three separate compartments, so that the small articles of apparel may be packed snugly, while the larger articles, such as suits of clothing, have an individual compartment. One of the advantages is that packing or unpacking one part of the suitcase does not disturb the other sections. The case is no larger or heavier than the ordinary suitcase. The construction is solid. Sizes in which the suitcase is available are 24, 26, 28 and 30 inches.

Fall Mourning Hats Stylish.

Mourning hats this Fall will make up in style what they lack in color, if those which have so far reached this market form the other side can be taken as examples. Although some of these models make use of taffeta, georgette crepe is the dominating material. The shapes include medium-sized mushroom effects, which in many cases show slightly rolling fronts, bell crowns and both close and rolling cuffs. Cloches, roll-edged sailors, tricornes and various types of turbans also are seen. The trimmings include a sparse use of dull beads, frilling and quills made of ribbonene, pleating or tucked georgette. Rosettes and bands of narrow plain or moiré grosgrain ribbon are also used, as are tucking, white crinkled crepe and appliqués of crepe grapes, calla lilies and foliage.

Raw Silk Situation.

The local raw silk market is quieter, and prices have receded slightly from the high level attained last week, in consequence of an easier tone on the Yokohama market. Buyers are acting cautiously, according to H. L. Gwalter, Inc., and transactions are mostly confined to current needs and to courses. Yarns continue in good demand and are scarce. Holders, on the other hand, are not generally dressing sales, feeling confident that the present setback is only of a temporary character. The Yokohama market has lost about 50 yen of the advance scored last week. At the decline buyers are beginning to show more interest, and good-sized orders are said to be in hand at prices slightly below the market. The Canton market is quiet, but firm, with quotations fluctuating in accordance with the silver exchange. Shanghai is quieter, prices being again rather out of line in consequence of the decline in Yokohama.

More Underwear Lines Priced.

While more lines of lightweight underwear were priced in this market yesterday than on Monday or Tuesday, several of the important factors in the trade again failed to make quotations on their goods. The most generally heard price for men's separate balbriggan shirts and drawers yesterday was $3.25 a dozen, although one line was opened at $3. The line that is regarded as the leader of the better grades of "balbs" was not priced. For balbriggan union suits $5.50 a dozen was the most general figure, with $5.25 quoted in at least one quarter. Her lightweight ribbed goods prices ran from $6.75 to $7 a dozen. Some business was done yesterday, but well-posted members of the trade admitted that buyers were not wholly satisfied with the prices quoted. The question now seems to be whether the big operators will buy unless these figures are shaded. Opinions differ as to the amount of heavy underwear being bought at this time, and the best indications are that the call for these goods is not evenly distributed.

Sales of Glassware.

Manufacturers of high grade glassware are looking to considerable improvement in business during the next two months. Buyers will then be in the market for fall and holiday merchandise. The popularity of colored glassware is expected to be carried into the coming season. Several of the leading department stores have featured this type of glassware, particularly the orange or yellow console sets, consisting of two candle sticks and fruit bowl. Gold encrusted glassware is expected to sell well. Manufacturers of heat-resisting glassware are featuring their lines in a number of retail establishments. This ware, which is entirely impervious to heat, is now being made in a pearl shade that is much more attractive than the plain crystal. Although originally designed for cooking uses the glass has also been made into tea, salad, berry and other sets.

Linen Knickers for Sport Wear.

Manufacturers of men's sport wear report an excellent demand for linen knickers. The call has been so good recently that some makers have found it necessary to cut up twice as much material as they originally intended. While it was originally thought that the vogue of linen knickers would help sales of white flannel trousers, this has not yet proved the case. It is still too early to judge the volume of white flannel trouser sales, owing to the fact that this month, which is generally the biggest month for demand, is not yet over. Some retailers, especially those catering to the higher class trade, say their sales of white flannels have been good.

Preparing for Fall Business.

Although business in the local jewelry trade is none too active at the moment, the manufacturers are preparing for what they believe will be one of the most active seasons in some time. Most of their activity is given over to making up stock of the usual standbys, but with it is mixed quite a little special work. Makers of the higher-class goods are greatly encouraged by the steady rise in diamond prices and the rapid sale of well-cut American stones. One of the largest diamond cutting concerns in the country will resume operations soon after having been idle for about a month because of raw material shortage. This concern, along with other American cutters, opened its shop some time ago, after having been closed a year. The call for the cut stones proved so great that its stocks of rough ran out about a month ago and had to be replenished. As soon as the rough gems come through the Custom House work will be started.

Gray Goods Continue Quiet.

Quiet was again the keynote of the local gray goods market yesterday. Only the most staple constructions of print cloths were traded in and, for the first time in a long while, prices were shaded in sixteenths. A few spot lots of 38½-inch 64-60s were reported sold at 8⅝@8 3-16 cents, with 39-inch 68-72s bringing from 8 9-16 to 8⅝ cents, according to who sold them. For 68-square, forty-yard sheetings buyers paid 9¾ cents, while 5.50s brought 7⅞ cents. For 6.15s 7 cents was the price with sellers holding 4.75s and 5-yard goods at 9 and 9½.

TAXICAB BOND LAW UPHELD BY COURT

BANTON WANTS TEST CASE

Says He Will Help Speed It to Final Determination as to Constitutionality.

Supreme Court Justice Finch yesterday denied the application for an injunction to restrain the authorities from enforcing the statute requiring taxicab owners to furnish a bond as a guaranty that any judgment obtained for injuries would be paid. The court in upholding the constitutionality of the law said: "The act, in regulating a class of common carriers for hire, is a valid exercise of the police power, and the means adopted appear to be reasonably appropriate to the end sought. It is clear that the Legislature has devised a plan effectively to regulate this class of carriers by fixing responsibility, even though in certain cases it may be only to a small extent."

District Attorney Joab H. Banton announced last night that he would enforce the bonding law and that a test should be welcomed by both the District Attorney and the taxicab owners. If it should happen that a driver should openly refuse to insure his cab and drive it and invite arrest by the police, the District Attorney said, he would try to facilitate the matter in the courts so as to get an early determination of the constitutionality of the new law.

MORSE HELD, THEN FREED.

Released on Writ After Being Ordered Returned to Court.

PORTLAND, Me., July 12.—Charles W. Morse of Bath and Rupert M. Mack of Augusta today were ordered returned to the jurisdiction of the Southern Federal District of New York to stand trial there on indictments charging them and twenty-one others with conspiracy to defraud the investing public by using the mails to promote the sale of United States Steamship Company stock. United States Commissioner Arthur Chapman, before whom hearings have been held on the question of their removal, ordered them turned over to the custody of the United States Marshal, Stillman B. Woodman. Bail was fixed at $10,000 for Morse and $5,000 for Mack.

They were released later on a writ of habeas corpus issued by Judge Hale of the Federal District Court. Hearing on the writ, which is a virtual appeal from the decision of Commissioner Chapman and asks for a review of the questions of law involved in the removal proceedings just concluded before him, was begun immediately, but by agreement of counsel was continued until July 24.

On the same day Judge Hale will give a hearing on the petition by the Government for the removal of the two men to the New York Southern District Federal Court.

The final day of the proceedings before the Commissioner was marked by lively tilts between counsel. When Assistant United States Attorney General Fletcher Dobyns, in demanding the bail for Morse be fixed at $50,000, declared that he already had attempted to leave the country, Morse half rose from his chair and shouted: "That's a lie. It's a downright lie."

Auto Injuries Kill Utica Millionaire.

UTICA, N. Y., July 12.—Frederick H. Kutter, 23 years old, died this morning as the result of an injury received soon after midnight when the motor car he was driving a few miles north of the city went into the ditch. Kutter was one of the wealthiest men in this city. To his large fortune was added a few months ago considerably over one million dollars left to him by an uncle. He was not married, and is survived only by his mother.

POLICEMAN HELD FOR TRIAL.

Arraigned on Charge of Fighting Man Who Took Him Home.

Peter Vaughan of 400 St. Paul's Place, the Bronx, a probationary patrolman, was held in $300 bail for trial in Special Sessions when arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Jesse Silberman in the Morrisania Court. He was charged with assault on Daniel Byrnes, 63 years old, of 617 Eagle Place, the Bronx.

Byrnes said he met Vaughan early Sunday morning while both were intoxicated, and took him to his home, where they got into a fight. Vaughan waived examination.

The Fourth Putt in the Fourth Estate

Ring Lardner's favorite shot in golf is his fourth putt. He confessed this weakness in a burst of confidence one evening and bound his hearers to secrecy. But somehow it got around.

However, Mr. Lardner has no monopoly on the fourth putt business. The great majority of golfing writers or writing golfers (as you choose to call them) use up a lot of putts on the green. The only ones who consistently get down in two putts are those who follow the practice suggested by Mr. Wodehouse—take one good fair putt at the hole just for luck and then pick the ball up and set down a 4, 5, or 6 on the card as the case may be.

Of course it isn't necessary to be a great putter or a great golfer to be a great golf writer. But it does come in handy.

For instance, Grantland Rice can break into the 70's on any fair day. He has a collection of silverware that should threaten his amateur standing. Still, his fame rests less on his ability to flirt with par than it does on his day-to-day accomplishments as a sporting writer.

Whether it's golf, baseball, football, or pugilism, Grantland Rice jumps into print with the pleasantest account of the affair written.

Which leads us to admit, modestly, not only that Grantland Rice is a resident member of the Tribune staff, but that he is also the major domo of our sporting pages.

SMOOT OFFERS CUTS IN COTTON TARIFF

Amendments From Senate Finance Committee Reduce Rates Previously Approved.

ACTION CAUSES SURPRISE

OTHER CHANGES SCHEDULED

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The Senate reached the tariff cotton schedule late this afternoon, and Senator Smoot, from the Committee on Finance, submitted thirty-four amendments, a majority of them reducing the rates on cotton yarns and fabrics which had been previously voted into the bill by the committee. More amendments which, it is understood, will lower the rates in other schedules, will be submitted as these are reached.

The action of Senator Smoot, who will succeed Senator McCumber as Chairman of the Finance Committee when the latter retires from the Senate next year, was unexpected by the Democrats and many of the Republicans. The Democratic leaders interpreted it as an admission by the committee that the rates originally voted into the measure are entirely too high, and that today marks the beginning of a "revision downward" policy all along the line for the two-fold purpose of meeting the objections from a large part of the business and financial world, and holding in line those Republican Senators who are known to be lukewarm in their support of the bill.

The first of the amendments proposed by Senator Smoot reduced from 5 to 4 per cent. ad valorem the duties on cotton yarns when printed, dyed or colored with "vat" dyes. The next was to reduce from 45 to 40 per cent. ad valorem the maximum duty on sewing, crochet, darning, knitting and other cotton threads. Proportionate reductions are recommended in the case of certain classes of bleached and unbleached cotton cloths, table damask composed wholly or in part of cotton, quilts and bedspreads, pillow cases, towels, fabrics with fast edges and other articles made wholly or in part of cotton.

One of the cotton schedules that has been the subject of much criticism from both sides of the Chamber is the one relating to gloves. In the bill as reported to the Senate, a duty of $3 per dozen pairs was placed on gloves made wholly or in part of cotton or other vegetable fibre when such gloves are not over eleven inches in length. The amendment offered today reduces this rate to $2.50 per dozen pairs when shrunk or seeded. If of two or more folds of such fabric, the rate proposed in today's amendments is $3 per dozen pairs instead of $3.50 per dozen, as originally recommended by the committee. The duty of 10 cents per dozen pairs for each inch in excess of eleven inches is retained.

All of the original rates fixed on cotton hose and half hose, whether machine or hand made, are stricken out and a new rate of 30 cents per pound or 60 per cent. ad valorem recommended. The original rates recommended ranged from 70 cents to $1 per dozen pairs, according to the value of the article.

When Senator Smoot sent the committee amendments to the desk, Senator Robinson of Arkansas asked him if he would disclose to the Senate on what theory the original duties had been based and also the reason for the committee's action in reducing so many of the rates which were approved in the first instance. Senator Smoot said he would answer the question frankly and fully tomorrow when the Senate begins the consideration of the schedules in question.

Only one paragraph in the cotton schedule was disposed of today, and that was the one fixing a duty of 7 cents per pound on cotton having a staple of one and three-eighths inches or more in length. This duty is to protect the long staple cotton growers of Maricopa County, Ariz., and the Imperial Valley of California. Senators Ashurst and Cameron of Arizona and Johnston and Shortridge of California did not consider the duty high enough and sought to have it increased to 10 cents per pound and failing in that, a 10-cents-per-pound. Both propositions were overwhelmingly defeated.

Senator Smith of South Carolina, arguing against the duties, declared that the Western long staple did not come into competition with the Egyptian cotton, and cited statistics to prove that in the period during which there were no Egyptian importations the price of the Arizona and California cotton, instead of increasing, as a matter of fact, went down in price.

There was a lively interchange between Senator Ashurst and Senator Stanley. The latter denounced the proposed duties as outrageous, and almost criminal, and said that the only result would be greatly to increase the price of those necessities of which long staple cotton are the basis in part or in whole. The Government, he said, had taxed all the people of the country to irrigate these Southwestern arid lands, and yet those who were reaping the profit wanted to add an additional and unjust tax on the people to enhance their own profits.

Senator Ashurst contended that the cotton planters of the Far West were paying back every cent paid by the Government to irrigate the Salt River and Imperial Valley, and that the high duties asked were justified when the high cost of production was taken into consideration.

"That every country in Arizona you now denounce, purchased in 1920," exclaimed Senator Ashurst, "a great many carloads of Kentucky products."

"Ah, that would tellin" replied Senator Ashurst, "that California and Arizona Senators joined in the laughter that followed.

The first schedule to be disposed of, practically without debate, was the one relating to liquors, wines and other beverages. One Senator described it as the ancient history schedule. The schedule stipulates that nothing in the proposed law shall conflict with the provisions of the Prohibition act. Some of the duties were: $5 per wine gallon on vermouths, sherries, cordials, liqueurs and all bitters except angostura; $6 per gallon on champagnes and other sparkling wines; $1.25 per gallon on still wines; $1 per gallon on beer, ale, stout, porter and malt extract; 2 cents per gallon on fruit juices less than one-half of one per cent alcoholic content; 15 cents per gallon on ginger ale, soda water, lemonade, etc., and 10 cents per gallon on mineral waters.

ENVOY SAYS BRITONS MISUNDERSTAND US

Geddes Regrets That So Many of Them Come Here Only to Lecture or Beg.

MISS SEEING BIG THINGS

LONDON, July 12 (Associated Press).—In a speech remarkable for its frankness and evident sincerity, Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador to the United States, told a large gathering at a banquet of the Pilgrims in his honor tonight that England did not wholly understand America. It was vital that more of the people of England should visit the United States, he said, in order to become acquainted with the remarkable characteristics of the people and the extraordinary industrial, engineering, civic and educational progress of the country.

America had accomplished in the brief century and a half of her existence, he said, what it had taken Great Britain a thousand years of slow progress to create.

"America has given to the world the riches of a continent which but yesterday was a wilderness," he continued. "Of course, she is absorbed in her own affairs. Now could she be otherwise? Her thought is in that tremendous structural and industrial work which has made her one of the greatest nations on the earth. That is a problem as close to her as our problems are to Europeans but she has not forgotten the trials and sufferings of the outside world; she has given with a bounteous hand relief for millions of starving Russians."

Differences of View "Inevitable."

It was inevitable that the United States should have a different viewpoint in many matters from that of Great Britain, the Ambassador said, but when the representatives of the two countries sat at the same table, as they did at the armament conference, all these differences became reconciled, and facts and events were seen in the same white light of logic. The friendly understanding between the two countries could be vastly promoted by frequent visits not only of official representatives of Great Britain, but by visits of private persons.

"It is a rare event in the life of the embassy at Washington," he added, "when I have a visit from a Britisher who knows anything really worth while about this great continental country. Endless numbers of them go to America to deliver lectures or beg money. It has been my pleasure to tell such persons humbly to keep their mouths shut and to give up begging and return home. I have visited forty of the forty-eight States of America, and I am frank to say that I have yet a tremendous lot to learn."

Sir Auckland paid a tribute to the news associations, the newspapers, the schools and universities for "their immense contribution to fostering good relations between the two countries." He expressed deep thanks for the unbounded hospitality and kindness shown him by the American Government and all classes of people. Ten universities had seen fit to honor him with their highest gifts as the representative of Great Britain.

"It is a common practice in England to speak lightly of American newspapers," he said, "but I want to tell you that they are rendering an astonishing public service to the people; they are putting into your hands more enlightening news from Europe than our papers publish from the United States."

The women of the United States, Sir Auckland said, were "now playing a tremendous part in the life and government of the country because of their voting power." He concluded by saying that the relations between the two countries were franker and more friendly than ever in history, declaring:

"These bonds of amity and co-operation are the most important factor within the whole range and gamut of human progress."

Harvey Predicts Pound's Recovery.

The speedy recovery of the pound sterling to parity with the dollar was predicted by Ambassador Harvey in an address at the banquet.

Ambassador Harvey cited unemployment figures and trade statistics to show Great Britain's strong financial and commercial position. He remarked that the reduction of 9 per cent. in the number of British unemployed since January was amazing, when compared with the depression which followed the Napoleonic wars. It was an exhilarating and confidence proof, he said, of sound and unimpaired economic conditions, and of the impregnability of commercial England.

The Ambassador then commented on the fact that this revival of trade and industry was occurring despite a tremendous decrease in the volume of British exports. He believed that this could mean but one thing, namely, that England, like the United States, "if dire necessity requires, can go along not luxuriously, as in the golden past, but yet comfortably and in safety and security, while time affords an opportunity to explore and unfold the vast possibilities of the faithful dominions and the million square miles of land in the possession of the recently brought under the British flag."

"Happy Day" When Par Returns.

Quoting further figures to show the enhanced prices of British securities, the advance in the value of the pound and the enormous saving which this advance brought to British trade, the Ambassador predicted that it would not be long before the pound will have regained its proud position as par with the American dollar. That day, I insist, will be a happy day, worthy of celebration on both sides of the Atlantic.

Ambassador Harvey attacked as fallacious the idea that England's gain must be America's loss. "Your prosperity," he said, "is our prosperity. We rejoice in it for our own sake—well, hardly less than for yours."

In complimenting Ambassador Geddes, Colonel Harvey pointed out as a striking fact the progress to which he referred had been made since the successful ending of the Washington conference, and therefore was largely the outcome of the activities of the British Ambassador.

The guests of Derby included Sir Auckland Geddes with a large share in the present understanding between the two nations and the success of the Washington conference. Chauncey M. Depew sent a complimentary message on behalf of the Pilgrims of the United States.

THREE YEARS' GRACE ASKED BY GERMANY

Wants New Moratorium to Include 32,000,000-Mark Payment Due Saturday.

NEEDS MONEY FOR FOOD

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 12.—Dr. Fischer, Chairman of the German War Debt Commission, presented to the Reparation Commission today a formal request by the German Government for complete relief from all cash payments on account of reparations during the remainder of this year and during 1923 and 1924.

The German Government bases its claim for a further moratorium almost entirely on the detrimental rate of exchange. The note points out that since March the cost to Germany of the reparations payments on a reduced scale has risen from 51,000,000,000 paper marks in March last to 80,000,000,000 paper marks now. The request is made that even the July payment of 32,000,000 gold marks be not demanded, but the money left at the disposal of Germans for the purchase of Winter wheat supplies and prevent further depreciation of exchange at a moment when, in conjunction with the Reichsbank, an effort is being made to halt the downward course of the mark.

The note ends up by appealing to put the blame for the fall of the mark on the failure of the loan negotiations and with the hope that the commission will grant the demanded delay "with all possible speed, so that the decision may favor the resumption of the loan negotiations."

Favorable Answer Indicated.

The document was handed in to the commission this morning and all day informal discussions of its contents and its character have been going on among the commission members. A reply has been drafted acknowledging the note and containing an indication of a favorable answer, but no decision will be taken by the commission until next week, when it will have received the report of the Guarantees Committee, which has been examining in Germany the steps which the German Government has taken and intends to take to fulfil the conditions on which this year's scale of payments was reduced.

At the same time it has become clear that within the commission there is a clear-cut difference of opinion as to the reply which should be given to the German demand.

Acting in accord with his Government's desires Sir John Bradbury, the British representative, is believed to be strongly of the opinion that a further moratorium must be granted as in face of the situation of the mark it is impossible for Germany to fulfill her engagements. His view is simply that of a financial expert faced with an adverse financial situation and with the political side of the situation he has no direct concern.

Louis Dubois, the French representative and Chairman of the Committee, however anxious he may be to take a purely expert view of the whole situation is inevitably involved in its politics, for unlike the British Government the French Government has never been able to regard the Reparation Commission as a piece of economic and not political machinery. M. Dubois is unable, with M. Poincaré constantly at his elbow with advice and direction, to regard the financial situation of the German Government as a simple fact from which certain consequent deductions must be drawn. He cannot refrain from taking into account the political factors of the situation—wilful default by the German Government, and the impossibility of granting delays to Germany while none is also granted to France—and it is for that reason that the conversations of the last two days have been somewhat strained.

Why France Opposes Further Grace.

If further delay in payment is accorded Germany it will almost certainly be by a majority and not by a unanimous vote. The French Government and the French representative on the commission with their minds bent on the political aspect of the whole affair cannot approve granting a further moratorium in face of such facts as this, that while during the last ten days of June the floating debt of Germany was increased by 4,337,000,000 marks, the part of that increase devoted to purchasing foreign holdings wherewith to make the July payment was only 168,000,000. The discrepancy is too great for the French, their campaign for a general settlement, which they believe to be the only way out. That general settlement is of a threefold kind: First, not only must promises of improvement be made, but power of control over German finance must be established; second, England must forego her claims on France to such an extent that a general wiping out of debts, including a large part of the German debt, may be made possible, and third, there must be, following these two steps, an international loan sufficiently big to cover the remainder of the German debt.

Toward this solution the French firmly believe that events are pushing the British Government and M. Poincaré is fully prepared if need be to let time work for him in bringing his allies to that conviction. It is England which is not in a hurry for a settlement and the French Premier, should he receive the bruited invitation from Downing Street to a financial conference, to be followed by a meeting of the Supreme Council, is expected to take the greatest care before he sets foot in London exactly what that conference is to be about. He will fix a program clearly and definitely on the lines indicated in these points, for he has no faith in conferences for the sake of conferences unless their program is clearly established and thought out beforehand.

Strengthened by Hague Fiasco.

The report of the complete break-down of The Hague conference which has reached here today will enormously strengthen his hands for it is counted in Paris as marking the complete failure of Premier Lloyd George's plans for the restoration of Europe. Almost all the cards are now in M. Poincaré's hands, his friends say, as a result of the waiting game which he has played since he took office.

Instead of improving, mark exchange has become worse because of the moratorium granted to Germany on British advice, and in consequence the British trade position has become worse. Instead of succeeding in forcing France, called at British instigation, failed because of the monetary chaos in Germany and lack of unity of financial policy among the Allies. On top of these two efforts by the British to win back good trade conditions for Europe came the failure of the Genoa and The Hague conferences. Now, in French opinion, they are absolutely faced with having to cut their loss and cancel the French debt if they are to pursue their hope of getting Europe back into a sound position.

That the French would gain enormously by such a settlement is of course a point not being unduly stressed at present. The time for that will come later if and when the Premier is successful in his efforts.

Complete Collapse as Alternative.

PARIS, July 12 (Associated Press).—Germany served notice on the allied powers through the Reparation Commission today that she could no longer meet cash obligations of any sort, whether growing out of the Versailles Treaty stipulations, undertaken by acceptance of the London ultimatum of May 5, 1921, or arranged by the schedule of payments drawn up by the Reparation Commission on March 21, 1922.

In her note Germany points out that in May, 1921, the rate of 80 paper marks to the dollar formed the basis of fulfilment of reparations payment, while on July 6 last the mark had declined to 500 for the dollar. In order to effect the payment of 720,000,000 gold marks during this year the sum of 80,000,000,000 paper marks would be necessary, with the mark at its present value.

"If under the circumstances," the note continues, "Germany would be further obliged to buy foreign currencies to an extent similar to the amount demanded at present, the depreciation in the value of the mark would progress rapidly and lead to the complete dissolution of the financial, economic and social life of Germany. For this reason, Germany, under present conditions, is unable to continue cash payments.

"With regard to the great seriousness of the situation, the German Government will only be able to restore social and financial conditions if it obtains the assistance of the Reparation Commission. There is no doubt on the part of the German Government that in order to re-establish the rate of exchange the mark measures must be taken immediately, the effect of which will be felt beyond this year. Germany, therefore, considers it indispensable that she be freed of cash payments also during the years 1923 and 1924."

The note further points out that the situation can only be remedied if Germany is relieved of all other cash payments arising out of the Treaty of Versailles in so far as they have to be paid in foreign currencies. It is declared that Germany would be unable to meet the cash payments required of her from time to time by the allied clearing offices for the payment of private debts contracted by her nationals with the nationals of the Allies.

The note concludes: "The recent development in the rate of exchange of the mark, which began with the adjournment of the negotiations of the Loan Committee, necessitates a speedy provisional settlement, the relief payments expected from a foreign loan not having been realized. In consideration of the above, the German Government would be glad if the commission would take its decision as to the demand for a respite with all possible speed. The German Government trusts that such decision will favor the resumption of the loan negotiations."

Britain Considering Situation.

LONDON, July 12 (Associated Press).—In answer to a question whether, in view of the fall in the price of the mark, the powers were reconsidering the reparations expected from former enemy countries, such as Germany and Hungary, Sir Robert Horne, Chancellor of the Exchequer, replied affirmatively in the House of Commons this afternoon.

Sir Robert said the matter was not being left entirely to the Reparation Commission, but that the British Government was constantly dealing with it.

Asked further if there were any truth in newspaper reports that Premier Poincaré was France was coming to London soon to discuss the question, Sir Robert said that so far as he knew there was no suggestion that M. Poincaré should make a special visit for that purpose.

BRUSSELS, July 12 (Associated Press).—Negotiations which have been in progress here between representatives of the Belgian and German Governments for redemption of 6,000,000,000 marks which Germany circulated in Belgium during the war were broken off today because the German proposals were inadequate, according to the Belgian view, to meet the requirements.

The Belgian Government has decided to proceed immediately with liquidation of sequestered German property in order to raise a fund for redemption of the marks in question.

VIENNA, July 12.—Henry Morgenthau, during his stay in Vienna, has taken part in a series of conferences with Chancellor Seipel and the Foreign and Finance Ministers, arranged by American Minister Washburn, on the financial situation of Austria and possible means of relief by obtaining credits.

Mr. Morgenthau has left Vienna for Paris. Former Senator Hamilton Lewis has arrived here.

SUN BOTTLED UP OFF CANTON SUBURB

British and American Gunboats Clear for Action to Prevent Attack on the City.

LONDON, July 12.—A Reuter dispatch from Canton says that Sun Yat-sen's fleet is anchored off Shameen, a suburb of Canton, having run the gauntlet of shore forts. Sun's navy appears to be limited to four or five small gunboats, which the correspondent describes as probably unfit for serious action.

Arriving at Shameen, Sun Yat-sen was informed that strong action would be taken if he fired on Canton, and as a warning, British war craft, the Moth and the Tarantula, and an American gunboat immediately cleared for action.

CANTON, July 11 (Associated Press).—Their way paved by bombardment from Sun Yat-sen's warships, Sun's troops late today occupied without opposition the Mazao forts, two miles down the West River from the city. The forces of Chen Chung-ming, which wrested Canton from Sun, are inactive and giving no indication of attempting to capture Sun.

Sun hourly awaits the arrival of reinforcements from the north, he states, and on their arrival will take the initiative in the hope of recovering possession of Canton.

Enright Finds Scotland Yard Is Keen For International Police Co-operation

LONDON, July 12.—Police Commissioner Enright of New York conferred today with Scotland Yard officials and placed before them a scheme for closer co-operation between American and European police forces in preventing and detecting crime. He already has laid his proposals before police chiefs in several European countries.

Interviewed today, Mr. Enright said that everywhere the project was received with the greatest enthusiasm.

"What we want immediately," he added, "is the attendance of the heads of the police systems of the world at our police conference in New York in September.

"To deal with the international criminal organizations, we must have international police co-operation. From every continental town I have visited I already have received assurance that if its chief himself cannot attend, one of the highest officers of the department shall be there."

Another means of international co-operation against crime which Enright believes is almost ready for practical application, he said, is wireless photography which will make it possible to transmit pictures of finger prints to any part of the world in a few hours. At present there must be a delay of many days before Scotland Yard can get such important material transmitted from New York or Chicago.

INTERNAL DISCORD ABATES IN GERMANY

WIRTH COALITION STANDS

Talk of Reconstructing the Government is Dropped for the Time Being.

By CYRIL BROWN.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 12.—The internal political horizon is clearing rapidly, confirming the prognostication by some that the net political result of the Rathenau murder would be nil. The Wirth Coalition Government will continue in its present form and the republic is no safer nor more endangered now than before the murder.

There has been much ado about nothing, it seems, and the paper mark is the principal sufferer. No talk is heard now of a dissolution of the Reichstag and a new election. When it came to a showdown the Socialists, who had made a great appearance of determination to force immediate dissolution of the Reichstag on the issue of the extremely drastic law "for safeguarding the republic" and a ruthless war against reaction by taking the more radical Independent Socialist Party into the Coalition Government, found their bluff called. They do not how and never wanted dissolution.

The colossal collapse of the mark has scared politicians who toyed with the Reichstag dissolution idea, and the leaders of all parties except the communists have come to fear a still further fall of the mark and disastrous foreign political consequences if an internal political fight was forced to a finish.

Much credit for the maintenance of the status quo ante Rathenau's murder is due President Ebert, whose quiet behind-the-scenes intervention and mediating moderating influence was probably decisive, particularly with his own party, the Social Democrats. The present Wirth Government must continue for some time to come because no other coalition can be engineered unless great unforeseable changes take place.

Powerful factions within the Democratic and Centrist Parties are determined not let the near-Left Independent Socialist Party enter the Coalition Government, while equally determined that the Social Democratic Party will not suffer Stines, Stresemann and the German Peoples' Party to come in. The question of broadening the Coalition Government will therefore be postponed until Fall, along with the Presidential and maybe new Reichstag elections.

The second reading of the considerably emasculated compromise law "for safeguarding the republic" was given in the Reichstag today. Paragraph after paragraph was passed by more than two thirds majority, some paragraphs almost unanimously except for the Communists.

Prospects continue that the bill will pass its third reading and become a constitutional amendment before the end of the week. The "crisis" blow-up is largely due to the Reichstag's adjourning to begin its Summer holiday not later than Saturday.

The outlook is likewise that the new law will largely remain a dead letter so far as its enforcement is concerned wherever the reactionary influences which continue predominantly strong, as in Bavaria and the agricultural provinces of Prussia. Political murderers and minor malefactors against the republic are likely to be caught in the net of the new law and brought to justice, but not the "higher ups."

It is an open secret that the activities of the Berlin political police in being the background of the Rathenau murder, trying to get "men higher up" and uncover the ramifications of the secret organizations, particularly the "Organization Consul," are being nullified by the police and other authorities of Bavaria and the reactionary Prussian provinces. There is reason to believe that political police endeavors to catch the Rathenau murderers in Central Germany are being weakened by the apathy of the Monarchist countryside populace and occasionally by deliberately false clues given to the pursuers.

The murderers are not caught yet and the political police have redoubled their efforts. Additional reinforcements of men, motor cars and dogs have been sent from Berlin and 100,000 handbills describing the murderers have been distributed in the region around which the police have drawn a cordon.

A widely circulated report that the allies seriously contemplated granting Germany a further three years' moratorium was the day's outstanding feature. It was based on reports from both London and Paris and electrified the Bourse. The dollar dropped as dramatically as the mark had collapsed a few days before. The mark was dealt in early in the morning around 500 to the dollar, but speedily soared to around 442.

The rare spectacle of "dollar panic" was seen on the Bourse, indulged in by much the same elements which a few days before in the mark panic had hurried headlong into selling marks and buying dollars. There was a rush to sell dollars and buy marks. The Bourse was hardly able to absorb all the dollars dumped on the exchange market.

Waning volume, however, were not lacking in solating out that hopes of a two or three years' moratorium were at least premature.

BERLIN, July 12.—General Ludendorff has published a statement regarding the proposed entry of the Independent Socialist Party into the Government with the possibility of a cabinet being formed from a Socialist coalition.

"A year ago the Communists planned a murder campaign against the Ministers. That is the solution of Dr. Rathenau's assassination. In serious political circles there are no murder organizations."

BERLIN, July 12 (Associated Press).—Neither President Ebert nor Chancellor Wirth has actually considered the problem of finding a successor to Dr. Walter Rathenau, the late Minister of Foreign Affairs. The Cabinet for the last fortnight has been engrossed in questions of greater urgency. The Chancellor and Dr. Hanisel von Haimhausen continue their supervision of foreign affairs.

A search for hidden arms in Magdeburg, Saxony, today revealed 1,200 carbines, thirty light machine guns and twenty heavy machine guns, together with a large quantity of ammunition and equipment.

Railway passenger fares will be increased 50 per cent., it was announced today. The increase will become effective Oct. 1.

SHOW WORK DONE BY 'LIFE CRYSTALS'

Mrs. Dickinson's Discovery Represented as Reviving Soil, Cleaning Boilers, Curing Disease.

COMPANY TO EXPLOIT IT

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 12.—Opinions as to the value of the alleged discovery of a substance of strange radioactive powers, made by Mrs. Maud Dickinson of Brighton, differ greatly. Her neighbors show little interest in it and the local press makes no reference to the marvels which have been revealed by The Daily Express.

Mrs. Dickinson's discovery was explained as beginning with a self-created scarab or beetle of old Egypt in which the ancients attributed marvelous properties. This scarab, she said, formed crystals outside and away from the bottle in which it was kept and when these crystals were dipped in water, the water acquired remarkable radioactive powers.

The discovery was made by accident, according to the account. Following a test of some small crystals there was an explosion.

"When this was over," said Mrs. Dickinson, "I found a fine white crystal like a diamond and also a particle of matter which I have since found to be a scarab."

The scarab was placed in a bottle and continued to throw off minute brystals which flow out of it. The scarab, Mrs. Dickinson believes, is not an insect but a vegetable form of life.

"Perhaps," she said, "it is the source of all life."

When THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent visited Mrs. Dickinson's house on the Marine Parade, Kemptown, yesterday, he was informed that she was away for a few days, but he could probably see her assistant, Mr. Lloyd, today. On calling at the house given he found Mr. Lloyd would not be interviewed, as Mrs. Dickinson had given strict instructions that no one should give any information except herself. He also learned that she was in London and might be reached at the office of the company she is forming to put her property on the market, the Life Gem Development Company, Limited. A friend of Mrs. Dickinson's, Walter by name, thought he could let her know THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent would be back in town in a few hours and was anxious to see her, and the correspondent had a messenger sent to the company's office to ask for an appointment. This messenger was told that no further information concerning Mrs. Dickinson could be given and that THE Express articles should not have been published.

When the New York TIMES correspondent called at the company's office a few hours later, it was closed. Waller at Brighton, however, said that the Express article was substantially correct, but that when the Express reporter called on Mrs. Dickinson she had been in too great a hurry, and he, himself, admitted without time to grasp all the discovery implied.

Various Objects Treated by the Rays.

Then Waller showed THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent various things lying about the rooms, which he asserted illustrated the uses to which the discovery could be applied. In a small aquarium two sheets of metal were suspended. These, Waller said, had been impregnated with rays given off by Mrs. Dickinson's crystals with the result that the water never became stagnant. A large number of minute air bubbles, like those in soda water, were, he declared, to be attributed to the mysterious rays.

In the boilers the rays save half a ton of coal. The correspondent picked up one and rubbed his hand on it without making it dirty.

"Plants been treated by our rays," said Waller, "and have matured a fortnight's growth all day round London and in dust has come off. Look at this, too. This is a fragment of petrified wood I picked up myself in an Egyptian desert. It is as hard as stone. Just dipped it in our prepared water and you see how clearly it broke off, just as though it had been cut by a knife."

Another exhibit was some discs about the size of a quarter which, it was explained, would be buried in the soil to exterminate noxious insects and stimulate fertility.

Then there were two or three bottles labeled "Dickinson's actifum activated water." Waller explained that some time ago Mrs. Dickinson put on the market a table water flavored with lemon, but the company promoting it had failed and the table water would be one of the products handled by the new concern. When he was asked why the company had not succeeded, he replied it was because of post-war financial difficulties and so on.

One of Mrs. Dickinson's achievements on which the Express article had laid great stress was her automatic cleaning from a water pipe supplied to her by E. Adam, an engineer of the Brighton Borough Water Board, a chalk deposit which was choking up the pipe. It was completely cleansed, after only an hour's immersion, with the crystal rays.

When Adam was asked about it he replied: "It was cleaned, alright, that is all I can say about it. I gave Mrs. Dickinson a section of choked-up pipe and she showed it to me several days later cleaned, but I don't know how she did it, and as for it only taking an hour, well, I can't say anything about that."

A Boiler Kept Clean.

At the Brighton Railroad terminus in the locomotive works is a fire aid room in charge of W. L. H. Girling. He has a three-gallon boiler, kept always full and always at a boil in case of emergencies. He showed this today to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent and said:

"Look at the inside of this. We have had it for two or three years in constant use. In the ordinary way it would have been a hard job for us with Brighton's chalky water to prevent it crusting half an inch thick, but since Mrs. Dickinson put the stone of her invention in it has been no trouble at all."

Inside the boiler was just a slight film of deposit, and lying on its bottom were two round pellets that looked like boys' marbles.

"I don't know what they are or how they work," said Girling, "but the inside of the boiler never gets worse than it is now."

"Then I suffered from adenoids in the nose of long standing. I had three operations without relief, but Mrs. Dickinson cured me. She applied her crystal rays to the exterior of the nose, gave me injections of the water and made me drink more of it. All I can say is I am almost completely cured, and only now leaves me trouble when I occasionally have a cold."

The analytical department of the London, Brighton & South Coast Railroad, on the other hand, has less belief in Mrs. Dickinson. It could not discover that by the treatment with the rays an improvement in the calorific power of coal, which she claimed had taken place, neither, when she submitted two samples of lubricating oil, one of which she had treated, while the other was as it came from the dealer, could it ascertain which was which. No information had, however, been given to the department as to the crystal rays, and so it was not prepared today to pass an opinion concerning them.

The Daily Express was arranged for a test of Mrs. Dickinson's Scarab Crystal method of preventing corrosion in boilers, to be made under the supervision of its own engineers and machinery room arrangements are also being made for a test of Mrs. Dickinson's process for the examination of two eminent scientists—a physicist and a chemist of established repute. The tests will be conducted as soon as possible.

KISSED INTO MARRIAGE, HER PLEA IS DENIED

Court Rules Hammock Episode Not Sufficient Grounds to Grant Annulment.

Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins, in a decision handed down and made public in Westchester County yesterday, denied the application of Mrs. Ellen Redstone Dow of Wood Terrace, Bryn Mawr Park, Yonkers, to annul her marriage to Horace G. Dow, which she said was forced by a kiss. The Court ruled that sufficient reason for the annulment had not been shown.

When the action against Dow, who lives in Maspeth, L. I., was tried a few days ago, Mrs. Dow testified that she was "coerced" by Dow into entering the ceremony. She had kissed him in a hammock, and she alleged, she married him because he threatened to tell about the kissing episode. Mrs. Dow, who is 23 years old, also set up the allegation of fraud.

When asked by Judge Tompkins if she married through fear simply because of the harmless occurrence at the party, Mrs. Dow declared that her parents were very strict, and that she was afraid of them learning of it. Mrs. Dow informed the Court that she married Dow in Borough Hall in Brooklyn on Sept. 12 last, but never had lived with him. The marriage, she added, had been kept a secret, and not even her parents knew of it.

GERMANY NOT TO ASK FOR PLACE IN LEAGUE

GENEVA, July 12.—Definite news from Berlin has reached here that Germany has no intention of applying for membership in the League of Nations.

As stated last month, Germany was asked by Great Britain and other powers to apply for League membership, but she replied that she would join only on condition of receiving a permanent seat on the League council, which would have put her on an equality with Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan. France's recent semi-official declaration through her League representative, M. Noblemaire, is obviously the cause of Germany's decision.

In the circumstances the question of Germany's joining the League cannot arise at the next assembly in September here. Moreover Germany broadly hints that by remaining outside the League she is with America and in excellent company.

DR. FONG FOO LEUNG BURIED WITH POMP

Chinese from fourteen cities in the United States gathered yesterday afternoon at the little three-story wooden house at 13 Pell Street to honor the memory of Dr. Fong Foo Leung, physician, philosopher and leader of the Hip Sing Tong. Dr. Leung died of cancer of the throat at St. Mark's Hospital on Sunday. He came to New York from Canton fifteen years ago and at once assumed the role of peace maker between the Hip Sing Tong and the On Leung Tong. About six years ago he succeeded in bringing the long and bloody feud to a close and since then has been the leader of the Hip Sings.

Yesterday afternoon in his little home in Pell Street the Rev. Lee Tow, a Baptist missionary, conducted a simple funeral service. Outside the house two American and two Chinese bands played funeral marches and 600 members of the Hip Sings, dressed in black and with black and white brassards on the arms, waited. Behind them came a procession of fifty automobiles, ten of which were filled with flowers.

At the end of the services in the house, which were attended by a representative of the Chinese Government, Deputy Commissioner Carling Sloane and Special Agent Ralph Oyler of the Internal Revenue Department, the body was placed in a hearse and the procession, a half mile long, wound its way twice through Chinatown. Interment was in Cypress Hills Cemetery.

CUSAMANO TO DIE IN WEEK OF AUG. 21

The jury committed a sacrilege by finding an innocent man guilty," declared Santo Cusamano yesterday in General Sessions a few minutes before Judge Talley sentenced him to death, he having been found guilty last Friday of murder in the first degree in connection with the slaying last Summer of 5-year-old Giuseppe Verotta. Judge Talley fixed the week of Aug. 21 for Cusamano's execution in Sing Sing prison.

Because of Cusamano's excitable disposition Judge Talley ordered that no spectators be permitted to remain in the courtroom during his arraignment. The convicted man's wife and stepdaughter were among those excluded.

Cusamano was the third man convicted of murder in the first degree before Judge Talley for the drowning of the boy in the Hudson River off Piermont, N. Y., on June 3, 1921. Roberto Bastasio was convicted and sentenced to death in August last, and Antonio Marino was found guilty and sent to the death house three weeks ago.

ACT ON GENERAL PLAN ONLY

Details Will Not Be Decided Until After a Public Hearing, Says Hylan.

The plan of the Mayor's committee on permanent war memorial for the building of an Arch of Freedom in Central Park with an adjoining recreation centre, including a swimming pool and other features, was tentatively approved yesterday by The Committee of the Whole of the Board of Estimate. The committee is composed of all the members of the board, before which the project will come at its regular meeting tomorrow.

The committee recommended an appropriation of $600,000 for the arch and recreation centre, of which one-half is to be used for the arch and the other half for the swimming pool, cinder track and other projects. Controller Charles L. Craig was the only member of the committee who did not vote for the plan as recommended by the Mayor's committee, of which Rodman Wanamaker is Chairman. The Controller said that he was opposed to the swimming pool feature.

When the plan comes before the board tomorrow it is expected that a number of associations and individuals interested in the parks will appear against it. According to Mayor Hylan only the general plan will be acted upon tomorrow. The details, such as the swimming pool, would not be decided finally, the Mayor said, until a public hearing has been held.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks and Bonds Make Sharp Advances—Foreign Exchange Strong.

Sentiment in the financial district underwent a pronounced change yesterday brought about largely by a further sharp advance in the foreign exchange market which was taken to indicate a decided betterment in the foreign situation as related to Germany. Also developments with relations to the rail strike were of such a nature as to lead to the impression that the disaffection of railroad labor would be overcome before many days had passed. As a result there was a decided degree of buoyancy in the bond market, with certain of the foreign issues particularly the French and Belgian, standing out prominently by reason of their gains. Likewise the stock market displayed strength, prices moving forward more vigorously than at any time in several days. The most noteworthy gains were made among the rail issues which was a direct reflection of the better outlook as to the rail strike situation because of the Government's determined stand in the matter.

The foreign exchange market was quick to reflect the financial crisis in Germany and it was therefore not strange that the market yesterday should advance in anticipation of some definite arrangement on the reparations question. Undoubtedly the action of the Reparation Commission in cutting down the amount due at the end of this week by 18,000,000 gold marks was not without its effect.

However, this cutting down of the total was by no means the same as revising downward the reparations bill. It was simply a result of the application to the forthcoming reparations payment, of the amount which Germany had already paid in kind by the delivery of goods. Thus it was in no wise related to Germany's plea for a reduction in reparations. Still it was a happening which could not other than affect the foreign exchange market favorably. Marks responded promptly to the announcement and advanced to 2¾-100 of a cent; an advance of 5-100 of a cent as compared with the preceding day. The upturn in Germany currency in the last several days has carried the quotation from a low of 1¾-100 of a cent to 2¾-100 of a cent, a gain of about 39 per cent. Exchange on Paris closed at 8.81, with the gain amounting to more than 1-8 of a cent on the day. Belgian francs advanced moderately and there was strength in lire. Sterling joined in the upturn with an advance of 1¼ cents.

The situation with relation to the rail strike was just about what might have been expected. Apparently railroad labor leaders are beginning to realize that the Government will not tolerate a complete flaunting of the rulings of the Railroad Labor Board. This firm stand appears to have brought about a more conciliatory attitude and may lead to direct negotiations which will terminate the strike before many days have passed.

Railroad stocks were distinctly under process of cumulation yesterday, and while the advance in prices was not rapid it served to emphasize that investment buying of the higher class rail stocks is continuing. A number of the industrial shares made new high levels for the year, but the gains were not so well maintained as in the rail list. Studebaker, which for a long time has been under the influence of rumors regarding an increase in dividends, was once again to the forefront of the industrials. It was noticeable also that some of the inactive industrials made sharp advances on a turnover of only a few hundred shares.

The bond market gave further evidence of the better railroad outlook when the average moved up to a new high for the year at 80.71, largely as a result of advances in gilt-edged railroad bonds. Atchison General 4s gained 1⅛, the Illinois Refunding 4s an even point and advances of ⅛ to ¾ of a point were to be discovered in such issues as Baltimore & Ohio 4s, Louisville & Nashville unified 4s, Norfolk & Western consolidated 4s and Union Pacific First 4s.

The weekly review of conditions in the iron and steel industry was not so favorable as in recent weeks since the coal situation has grown more acute. There has thus far been no pronounced falling off in operations and a hopeful view of the outlook is taken. Since there appears to be good reason for believing that the coal strike will be terminated before long, fears of the steel industry regarding fuel supplies may be quite unfounded.

MONEY.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 12, 1922.

Plentiful supply of funds for Stock Exchange purposes caused continuation of ease, rate dropping to 2½ per cent. from an opening and renewal at 3½, a decline of one-quarter from Tuesday's closing. Loans on the outside shaded these rates. Time money was firm and without changes, very few important transactions being negotiated. Call loan rate against acceptances dropped one-half to 3½ per cent., offerings on 120-day bills declining an eighth to 4, other maturities unchanged. Merchants' paper moved quietly and at prevailing discounts.

The 6½s have been called for redemption later in the month.

The amount of the Northern Pacific 4s to be offered to provide funds for payment of the 6½s depended upon the amount of the issue not converted, and it is the opinion of bankers that this will not be in excess of $10,000,000 to $15,000,000.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Upward Movement Continues.

On increased buying yesterday the stock market gained further ground in the upward course of prices which started earlier in the week. Gains in most instances were confined to fractions, but in the case of the speculative industrial issues gains of 1 to 2 points were again witnessed. There were numerous developments in the day's news to account for continuance of the cheerfulness, including expressions of optimism by Government officials regarding the labor situation. Others included continuance of buying of equipment by the railroads, increased foreign demand for copper, and continued improvement in the steel industry, although fears are now being expressed regarding the coal situation as affecting the industry, but this was counteracted by reports that President Harding's plan of settlement may be approved by the operators and the striking miners. The rails as a group were again firm. The industrials which attracted attention included Studebaker, Allis-Chalmers, Sloss-Sheffield, General Electric, International Paper and Westinghouse.

No News on British Loan.

J. P. Morgan & Co. have no information on the floating of a British loan in this country, as reported in cable dispatches yesterday. In banking circles such a proposition is looked upon not only as a possibility, but a probability, but the general belief is expressed that such plans as are under consideration will not be announced until the early Fall and that the loan, if made, will not come until after the Fall interest payments by the British Government to this country are out of the way.

The Advance in Marks.

From the low of 1.81¼ cent to the close at 3.51¼ cent yesterday represents an advance of approximately 90 per cent. in the value of the mark over the course of the last three days. France at 8.81 gained one-third of a cent yesterday, and Belgian francs at 7.93½ showed a gain from the low of yesterday of 7.45½ and of 7.45 from the year's low. Just why the Continental exchanges should turn about and show such strength at this time added further mystery yesterday to the veil of secrecy which has hung over them for many months. The news developments were, of course, constructive so far as the mark was concerned. The formal demand for a moratorium on reparations has been made. There is no doubt that it will be granted, however, and bankers here express the view that the turn of affairs further complicated the situation. Probably the most plausible explanation to be found as the financial district is that the move of Germany will compel the Allies to take a firm and decisive step so far as German finances are concerned. It is figured, too, that any such step would be aimed first at the Teutonic printing press, and that anything which would stop its wild grinding out of marks would be a constructive factor.

Interest in Consolidated Gas.

The activity in Consolidated Gas yesterday was attributed in Wall Street to a recurrence of the report that the Directors were planning an increase in the dividend rate at their next meeting, scheduled for July 27. According to report, the quarterly dividend will be increased from $1.75 to $2, and is understood to constitute a part of the plan for the revamping of the corporation's capitalization, the first step of which was the calling of $25,000,000 7 per cent. convertible bonds for redemption Sept. 1 next. The management set Aug. 1 as the last date for the conversion, par for par, of bonds into capital stock, and while no details were available yesterday, it is believed in banking quarters affiliated with the company that all the bonds will be converted. A further development mentioned yesterday as having a vital bearing on the Consolidated Gas situation was the problem of paying off the $150,000,000 one-year notes maturing Dec. 1 next. It is state that, according to present intentions, the notes will probably be funded through the sale of stock to consumers and employes, this decision being influenced in large part by the success of the New York Telephone Company in placing its issue of $35,000,000 8½ per cent. preferred stock to subscribers. The fact that more than 70,000 subscriptions were received by the New York Telephone Company in one day was considered sufficient evidence of the consumers' willingness to invest in public utilities which serve them.

New South American Business.

It was reported in the financial district yesterday, but not confirmed, that a banking group has purchased $5,000,000 Pacific Railway of Columbia and $4,500,000 Province of Antioquia both 8 per cent. bonds, and will offer them for sale within the next two or three weeks. It has been known for several weeks that negotiations for the purchase of these securities were under way.

N. Y. Central's Consolidation Plans.

The Interstate Commerce Commission's approval yesterday of the application of the New York Central Railroad Company for authority to acquire further control of the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad was interpreted in Wall Street as additional evidence of the Central's desire to work for consolidation of all its subsidiaries as soon as possible. The Central controls the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis now through the ownership of $80,907,700 par value of its common stock out of a total issue and outstanding of $87,028,700. There is also outstanding $9,998,200 preferred stock, none of which is owned by the Central. After allowing for what is held in the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis's own treasury, it is figured that the Central owns about 92.97 per cent. of the total stock outstanding. Interests affiliated with the Central explain, however, that such ownership does not constitute complete control since a majority of the preferred stock is needed before certain moves can be made regarding the funded debt or the making of leases. In order to obtain more of the outstanding stock the Central proposed to offer to the holders of the preferred stock of the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis an equal amount of its own common stock, and to holders of the common stock, $3 shares of its own common stock in exchange for 100 shares of the other.

Gulf Oil Reorganization Rumored.

Because of the fact that interests connected with the Gulf Oil Corporation and the Standard of Indiana have not as yet come to terms in connection with the rumored merger, it is now reported in the financial district that Gulf Oil directors are contemplating a change in the company's capitalization, the reported plan calling for the declaration of a stock dividend and then splitting the present capital stock of $100 a share into stock of $25 par value. It is understood that under this plan Indiana and Gulf stocks will be brought into line so that an exchange of stock on a share for share basis will be possible. The original report had it that Gulf Oil interests demanded eight shares of Standard of Indiana for each share of Gulf, whereas Indiana officials were willing to offer only five shares in exchange for one share of Gulf.

Studebaker Again in Lead.

The continued rise in Studebaker shares to be mystifying some professional traders in the financial district as they express surprise over the easy manner in which this stock has been put into new high ground day after day. At 137¼ yesterday it established a new high record for the year. Dividend rumors are back of the move, but in addition reports of record breaking earnings in connection with high water mark production are an influencing factor. According to figures compiled in the trade production of motor cars and trucks in June made a new high record in the history of the industry, superseding even the boom period shortly after the end of the war. Output in June approximated 270,000 cars against 256,000 in May. Total production for the second quarter of the year approximates 740,000 cars and for the first half of the year, 1,130,000 cars. Output for the full year 1921 amounted to 1,654,000 cars.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

French, German and Belgian Rates Show Striking Recovery and Gains—Sterling Higher.

Pronounced strength and sharp advances in the French, German, Belgian and other of the Continentals, which followed the news that the Reparation Commission had reduced Germany's indemnity by 28 per cent., the approximate monetary return from "goods in kind" turned over to the Allies, was the outstanding feature of yesterday's market. Some part of the recovery, no doubt, can also be attributed to the covering by previous speculators for the decline.

The buying of francs was steady throughout the day and from an initial rate of 3.11¼ cents Paris checks got up to 3.21 at the close, highest since July 3, and a gain of one-third of a cent over Tuesday's final. Belgian got up to 7.92½ cents, compared with 7.46½ on Tuesday, while German marks at 2.84½-hundredths of a cent, the high and final, compares with .20½ on Tuesday. London and Rome were likewise strong, sterling closing for a gain of 1⅛ cents at $4.44⅝.

MORE BRITISH GOLD COMES HERE FOR U. S.

Third Shipment of $2,500,000 is Received by J. P. Morgan & Co. for Interest on Debt.

£1,500,000 DUE IN FALL

Another Consignment on Its Way Will Bring Total Receipts to $10,000,000 in 3 Weeks.

The British Government has sent sufficient gold to the United States to meet the fall interest on the British debt to the American Government, which is placed by Sir Robert Horne at £1,500,000.

J. P. Morgan & Co., as fiscal agents for that Government, yesterday received by the steamship Olympic a shipment of $2,500,000 in gold, the third shipment of similar size received by them within the last two weeks, and bringing the total of imports for the account of the British Government to $7,500,000. An additional $2,500,000 is coming on the Adriatic, according to cabled reports, and it is presumed in the financial district that this sum also is consigned to J. P. Morgan & Co. for the account of the British Government, although the bankers have received no formal notification of it.

No formal instructions have been received by the bankers as to the disposal of the gold. It is the belief, however, that the gold will be used in discharging the interest obligations of the British Government to the United States due Sept. 1.

TO MERGE BIG FOUR ROAD.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The New York Central Railroad was authorized by an Interstate Commerce Commission order today to complete its control of the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad by purchasing all of the outstanding preferred and common stock issues.

The New York Central now owns 52 per cent. of the outstanding stock issues of the road, which also is known as the Big Four, and operates the property as a part of its own general system. Holders of the preferred stock of the Big Four, the commission decision indicated, objected to the issuance of the order on the ground that the New York Central did not offer a high enough price for their holdings; but the commission ruled that it was concerned in nothing but the transportation phases and that a complete merging of the Big Four with the New York Central would be in the public interest.

TOBACCO WARRANTS MAILED

Three Options Open to United and Products Stockholders.

The Tobacco Products Corporation and United Retail Stores Corporation yesterday mailed to their shareholders of record July 10 warrants carrying the right to convert their stock under the various options which are a part of the merger plan for the two companies. The New York Stock Exchange has ruled that deliveries of these shares must carry a due for these warrants until further notice.

According to the plan the Tobacco Products stockholders may convert share for share, into 7 per cent. non-cumulative Class A stock. There are two other options which are open to holders of both companies. The second option provides half a share of Class A and half a share of new common for each share held, and the third option provides for the conversion into new common stock, share for share. The new shares will be issued at the Guaranty Trust Company on deposit of the stock with warrants attached. The right to convert expires Aug. 15.

OIL COMPANIES POOL TO CURTAIL OUTPUT

155,000 BARRELS A DAY

Recent Encroachment of Salt Water Leads to an Arrangement.

Officials of the Mexican Petroleum Corporation, the Mexican Seaboard Company and the Gulf Oil Corporation held a conference in the offices of the former company yesterday to discuss the situation in the Toteco-Cerro Azul oil fields in Mexico, following the recent encroachment of salt water in these fields. It was decided to curtail production of the three companies to 155,000 barrels a day or less if circumstances make such action necessary. Each company will receive one-third of the oil produced.

The production of the field previous to the encroachment of salt water earlier in the month is understood to have been in the neighborhood of 225,000 barrels daily, while the output at the peak of production is estimated at 850,000 barrels daily.

Harris Hammond, President of the Mexican Seaboard Company, yesterday issued another statement covering the trend of events in Mexico.

"Gilbert S. Smith, local field manager at Tampico," said Mr. Hammond, "in recommending to the company's New York office that a conference be held with officials of the Mexican Petroleum and Mexican Gulf Companies with the hope of arriving at a supplementary conversation agreement went no further than to recommend that each company receive one-third of the total amount of oil production to be agreed upon. We anticipate no difficulty in reaching such an agreement, inasmuch as all of the companies interested in this field have shown a willingness to cooperate in conserving the pool.

"Regarding the situation at Toteco, salt water has appeared in the company's wells Nos. 2, 4, 5 and 19, which wells are closed. Three other wells are producing at a reduced rate. These are being drawn on in accordance with a conservation agreement for only a portion of their capacity, at the rate of 50,000 barrels per day. This rate will be regulated from time to time according to actual field conditions. No fixed amount can be set, and only the actual performances of the wells can dictate the future amounts to be taken day by day. It is our belief, however, from past experiences, that great quantities of oil will be taken from Toteco by us, at these reduced rates. The company's obligation to deliver oil to its customers is solely contingent upon the production of the Toteco pool, although the customers are obligated to take their proportionate share of the oil produced at a fixed price under long term contracts.

"Stockholders should recall at this time that the Mexican Seaboard Oil Company has several million acres of lands in reserve as outlined in our letter of June 6 last. Exploration work is being conducted at several points on these undeveloped and unproven areas, which areas were selected under the best geological advice obtainable. Our experts believe these areas present as good geological conditions as the so-called Tampico fields, but we repeat these areas are unproven. The search for new properties, which is being conducted by the same organization which discovered the Naranjos pool and located and developed our Toteco acreage. This record we feel constitutes the best recommendation for our field organization, which, in our opinion, is fully as capable and efficient as any oil prospecting and producing organization anywhere."

IRON AND STEEL HIT BY LABOR TROUBLES

FURNACES MAY SHUT DOWN

Shopmen's Strike Regarded as More Serious Than Miners' Idleness.

The iron and steel trade is commencing to express concern over the coal situation, according to the Iron Age, the recognized authority in the trade. This is said to be in part to lessened production of coal last week, but largely to car shortages and congestion produced by the strike of railroad shopmen. Conditions are so acute with the Norfolk & Western, Louisville & Nashville and Chesapeake & Ohio, which have been moving coal from the Kentucky and West Virginia fields to coke ovens and steel plants in the Pennsylvania district, that it is feared producers of pig iron are facing a shut-down of their furnaces. Shipments of coal over the Chesapeake & Ohio are said to have been cut by 50 per cent in the past few days.

Regarding conditions in the industry, the paper says: "The Steel Corporation is operating at slightly less than 75 per cent. of steel-making capacity, as against more than 77 per cent. in the two or three weeks preceding. Some independent companies are doing nearly as well, but several will be forced to curtail production if the situation is not soon relieved.

"While a hopeful view is taken of the outlook for early resumption of coal mining under the President's plan, the railroad situation, it is feared, may go farther, with the season of grain movement just ahead.

"The June output of steel ingots did not show the expected increase, the estimated daily rate for the country being 125,761 tons, as against 114,717 tons in May, and the July rate promises to be less than either.

"A notable feature of the past week has been the number and size of orders from the railroads for car and locomotive repair work in view of the idleness of their own shops.

"Awards of fabricated steel work fell off sharply in the week, but fresh projects, including 26,000 tons in 90 different jobs, show no cessation of interest in building.

"Owing to uncertainties as to the coke supply, both buyers and sellers of pig iron are very cautious and few important transactions have been recorded."

A fractional advance in copper was reported in yesterday's cash markets, spot selling at 13.37½ cents, which coincides with the year's high made on June 5. Only other changes reported included an advance of 25 points in cotton, to 22½ cents, and a slight loss in Middle West lard. The grains, provisions, dairy products and other metals were firm.

CITY DEMANDS NEW SUBWAY DEVICES

ASKS EMERGENCY LIGHTS

The conference of city officials investigating last Thursday's Lexington Avenue subway accident, by direction of Mayor Hylan, continued their work yesterday and after an all-day session at the office of Corporation Counsel John P. O'Brien, issued two communications.

The first, addressed to Frank Hedley, President of the Interborough, directed that additional changes be made in the operation of the subway. The second was written to George McAneny, Chairman of the Transit Commission, and called for an immediate and open hearing into the accident, with Mr. Hedley and other I. R. T. officials on the stand.

Walter Bauer, President of the Pyrene Manufacturing Company, issued a statement last night defending the extinguisher. He cited their long record of usefulness and denied that the subway fumes had been generated by Pyrene. He accused Mayor Hylan of issuing attacks on the extinguishers "for purely political reasons."

"Mr. Frank Hedley, President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, 165 Broadway, City.

"Dear Sir: In behalf of Mayor Hylan and a committee of city officials appointed by him to review the reports of the several city departments which are investigating the recent disaster in the Lexington Avenue subway, and further, in behalf of the City of New York, of which I am the chief law officer, I hereby present to you the following urgent and peremptory demands for immediate changes in the equipment of the subway cars:

Wants Cars Isolated.

"1. There shall be provided at once some method of isolating every car in the subway from the current of the third rail by some controllable means, mechanically and manually operated from the inside of the car. This cut-out control should be independent of the panel switches in the car. It should be separated entirely from the central control in each car and be located in some place other than in the panel box and installed where it will be accessible to employes.

"2. The compartment containing the automatic control for emergency lighting should be independent of all other compartments, so as to positively insure light. There should be not only an automatic device for furnishing such light in emergencies, but also an additional switch, operated manually, by which motorman, guard or passenger may throw on auxiliary lights in the event that the automatic device for lighting the car should fail. For this purpose there should be installed in every car an independent storage battery.

"3. There should be eliminated forthwith from the subway cars all Pyrene extinguishers, and the use of these extinguishers, and similar extinguishers liberating toxic gases should be prohibited in the subway cars and in other confined space or spaces within the city.

"Further, in every subway car there should be placed, either under the seats or in some other readily available location, boxes filled with sufficient quantities of sand to put out any electric fire which may take place, and, further, there should be installed in every car such other fire-extinguishing devices as may be prescribed by the Fire Commissioner of the City of New York.

"Respectfully yours,
"JOHN P. O'BRIEN,
"Corporation Counsel."

The letter to Mr. McAneny was:

"New York, July 12, 1922.

"Hon. George McAneny, Chairman Transit Commission, 49 Lafayette Street, City.

"Dear Sir: In behalf of Mayor Hylan and a committee of city officials appointed by him to review the reports made by the several city departments concerning the recent disaster in the Lexington Avenue subway, I hereby demand that there should be immediately inaugurated an open and public investigation into the causes and the conditions surroundings said disaster, so that responsibility for these causes and conditions may be properly fixed and determined and immediate changes made to avoid future similar disasters.

"And I further demand that Manager Hedley and his subordinates and all other necessary witnesses be subpoenaed to testify at the hearings thus held, and that the City of New York be given an opportunity to examine and cross-examine witnesses. Respectfully yours,
"JOHN P. O'BRIEN,

Hedley Explains Order.

In the course of the day Mr. Hedley and members of the Transit Commission held a conference at the latter's offices. The Commissioners asked Mr. Hedley to tell just what effect his order issued on Tuesday, discontinuing the use of Pyrene extinguishers pending the outcome of the various investigations, would have on the fire risks in the subway. The Commissioners said that if the order meant a lessening of the fire-fighting protection the commission would order the company's instructions canceled at once.

Mr. Hedley, it was said, made it clear that his order did not withdraw any fire protection from the passengers. He pointed out that his order directed that the extinguishers be not employed to put out "electrical arcs," but were to be used to extinguish any other fire. The extinguishers, he added, were to remain in their cases in the cars until all the investigations were finished.

It was said at the Transit Commission's offices that no comment would be forthcoming on the statements issued by Mr. O'Brien and other city officials. The commission, it was explained, is continuing its own inquiry, and until all its reports have been received and studied no decision will be made on whether a public hearing is needed.

Mr. Bauer, in his statement, said:

"Pyrene Manufacturing Company, up to the present time, had intended to make no public statement relative to the recent subway accident, but to await the reports of the various commissions whose duty it is to investigate the matter. In view, however, of the numerous false reports and misstatements of fact which have appeared in the press during the last few days, the company has decided that a statement of its position, with the correct facts, is necessary.

"Many of the published statements are reported as emanating from Mayor Hylan and from public officials relative to the alleged effect of the use of Pyrene fire extinguishers on the victims of the recent Lexington Avenue subway fire.

Says Pyrene Cut Casualties.

"Pyrene extinguishers had nothing to do with the suffering and asphyxiation that were caused by fumes from burning insulation, but, on the other hand, Pyrene extinguishers brought the fire under control, and their prompt use prevented what might have been a large casualty list.

"The leading fire protection engineers of the country have approved Pyrene extinguishers, which have the endorsement of the Underwriters' Laboratories, maintained by the National Board of Fire Underwriters. Pyrene is the standard equipment recommended by the National Board of Fire Underwriters for electrical fires. The Bureau of Mines in a recent bulletin approved of this extinguisher and recommended its use in mine locomotives. These facts are all a matter of public record.

"There are more than 3,000,000 Pyrene extinguishers in use, and, while in putting out thousands of fires each year they have saved millions of dollars of property and hundreds of lives, there has never been a single death traceable to Pyrene. The Pyrene extinguisher is standard equipment in the United States Army and Navy, as well as the British Army and Navy. During the war the French Government extensively used this extinguisher, and every airplane, submarine, battleship, destroyer and army transport on the side of the Allies was supplied with this product. Ammunition dumps throughout France and England, as well as ammunition factories here and abroad, were plentifully protected by this extinguisher. Many of the leading railroad systems in the United States, both steam and electric, have adopted Pyrene as standard equipment.

"The Mayor has talked a great deal about the 'criminality' of keeping Pyrene extinguishers in the subway but has said nothing of the 'criminality' of taking away the only means of putting out a fire in the subway quickly. Pyrene extinguishers have put out hundreds of fires in the subways during the past ten years.

"If the Mayor attempts to remove Pyrene extinguishers from the subway, he alone will be responsible for jeopardizing the lives of 2,000,000 people, who daily use these lines. All experienced fire engineers know there is no substitute for Pyrene on electrical fire risks.

"The reckless statements of Mayor Hylan, issued for purely political reasons, are contrary to the opinions of experienced fire prevention experts and the record of the Pyrene extinguisher over a period of twelve years."

Signal trouble in the tunnel of the Lexington Avenue subway, on the Brooklyn side of the Bowling Green station, caused a three-minute delay just before 9 o'clock yesterday morning. The train dispatcher at the Bowling Green station sent a maintenance-of-way man into the tunnel and the trouble was repaired at once. A Brooklyn bound train, following the one which was halted in the tunnel, was unloaded at the Bowling Green station and sent around the loop at South Ferry, the passengers remaining at Bowling Green boarding the next train.

UPTURN IN COTTON ON WEATHER REPORT

Better European News Also a Factor—Prices Gain 36 to 42 Points.

Sentiment in cotton circles was more encouraged by the turn in European news yesterday, and prices advanced as a result. In addition, a weekly summary that contained many complaints induced buying. Following the recent decline, with boll-weevil present in large numbers and with the crop approaching its most critical stage, it required little to turn the market and start a recovery. While opinions are not uniformly agreed on the outlook, a sufficient number of operators bought cotton to absorb contracts at an advance. Trading was not broad, which made for erratic fluctuations. Final figures showed a gain of 36 to 42 points.

An improvement in both French and German exchange served to relieve apprehension in many quarters and all three markets showed a better degree of resistance. As much of recent liquidation started with unsettling news from Germany, a more hopeful feeling led operators to buy back cotton sold last week. This caused an advance of 20 points, but trading was not broad enough early in the day to prevent a setback.

It again became evident that the supply of contracts was limited the moment any substantial buying movement started. This resulted in rapid fluctuation, October advancing to 22.10 and then declining to 21.90 during the first hour. Rather heavy rains in parts of Georgia furnished a less favorable weather map than for several days. As considerable cotton had been liquidated on the decline, of a cent and a half, it required but little change in news to encourage buying. All cotton on appearing during early trading was taken without a depressing effect on prices.

The weekly summary provided the first impulse for heavy professional buying since the bureau report appeared ten days ago. Reports of crop progress lacked the positive note of improvement that characterized the two previous summaries. There were too many qualifying expressions used to create confidence and an impression spread that several directions that weevil damage had begun to appear. A more urgent demand for contracts immediately following the summary started a sharp advance. Blocks of October and December were taken from the ring and sent to other points with a rush. October sold from 21.90 to 22.30 before a setback occurred. A strong stock market brought in moderate Wall Street and commission house buying in addition to the purchase of lines by local operators.

On the advance new business failed to develop on a scale that would permit room traders to resell without causing a recession. Rumors that a prominent crop authority placed the condition at 74.6, indicating a yield in excess of 12,000,000 bales, started a selling movement during early afternoon. October ran from 22.30 to 22.06 with little opposition. At no time was trading broad or general, a condition that made nervous price changes possible on the execution of orders for a few thousand bales. Several times during the day houses with Southern connections had cotton for sale. This tendency develops whenever the market strengthens and is increasing as the growing crop advances toward picking season.

New Orleans improved in the last hour, encouraging another effort by professionals to advance the list. As it was evident a better feeling prevailed in most quarters, prices gained easily, going to high levels of the session in the last hour. One line of between 5,000 and 10,000 bales was sold in final trading, but the market took cotton readily and closed not far from the top.

WHEAT FLUCTUATES, DROPS AT CLOSE

CHICAGO, July 12.—Rumors that the rail strike would be settled within a few days and a reduction in the short interest as the result of an advance of 4¾@6¼ from the inside figures of Monday more than offset the improvement in the foreign situation and a wet harvest in the Southwest, and while there was a bulge of 1@1¾ early the close was at net losses of ⅛@¾ on wheat. Corn showed a heavy undertone from the start due to the additional moisture over the sections that needed it the most and closed ¼@1⅝c lower, while oats were off ⅛@¼c in sympathy with other grains.

Strong commission houses bought wheat early and with the wet weather were instrumental in making the advance, but as soon as the buying ceased the market flattened out and local sentiment generally became rather bearish. Foreigners sold futures early and later the Northwest bought a little on the forecast for warmer weather which would favor the rapid development of black rust, but so far the actual damage is very small. There is no doubt as to the rust infection being found over a wide territory, but weather conditions have been unfavorable, and already part of the wheat is in a stage where it cannot be materially hurt.

Owing to the wet weather numerous requests for an extension of time are being made by country dealers who have wheat sold for shipment by July 20, and in some cases in the Southwest sprouting in the shock is claimed. Forecast, however, was for generally fair and warmer in all sections. Leading interests remain bullish on the general situation, although development overnight encourage the belief that the rail strike is nearly over a somewhat lower opening would not be surprising. Exporters took 175,000 bushel Winter wheat during the day and premiums on spot and in store were firmer, but there was no great activity shown at the seaboard despite the advance in exchange. Southwestern offerings are restricted by weather and strike conditions.

Warmer weather following the rains is expected to bring in reports of a material improvement in the outlook for the corn crop in the large producing sections of Illinois and Iowa, and while corn is regarded as worth $1 per bushel to feed to hogs it is worth only around 64@65c at Chicago, and there was rather general selling today by local and outside longs which gave the market a heavy undertone. Early No. 2 yellow sold at September to ¼c over both for spot and to arrive, but the general market was quoted as September to ¾c under toward the close. Exporters were after grain but found offerings light. The rail strike situation remains an important factor in shaping the future course of values.

Primary arrivals of wheat so far this week aggregate 8,322,000 bushels; previous week, 1,932,000; last year, 5,839,000. Shipments, 1,805,000 bushels; previous week, 1,472,000; last year, 2,361,000. Corn receipts, 3,314,000 bushels; previous week, 3,219,000; last year, 2,149,000. Shipments, 2,695,000 bushels; previous week, 3,628,000; last year, 2,770,000.

ELKS PLAN 31 HOMES TO COST MILLIONS

Grand Lodge Committee Reports on Project—Next Convention at Atlanta.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 12.—Thirty-one new homes and buildings in all sections of the country are planned for the coming year, and another score in the immediate future, according to the report of the Constructions of Buildings Committee on the project agreed upon yesterday by the Grand Lodge of Elks. The expenditures will mount into several millions. These plans are exclusive of the Elks National Memorial and Administration Building which is to be located in Chicago.

Boonton, N. J.; Catskill, N. Y.; Dubois, Pa.; Erie, Pa.; Greenville, Pa.; Greenwich, Conn.; Herkimer, N. Y.; Jersey Shore, Pa.; Loveland, Col.; Medford, Mass.; Punxsutawney, Pa.; Philipsburg, N. J.; Quincy, Mass.; Salamanca, N. Y.; Quincy, Ill.; Elizabeth, N. J.; Newark, N. J.; Kokomo, Ind.; Decatur, Ind.; Beatrice, Neb.; Dover, N. H.; Galena, Ill.; Louisville, Ky.; Montclair, N. J.; Omaha, Neb.; Park City, Utah; Queensborough, N. Y.; Salisbury, Md.; Ventura, Cal.; West Palm Beach, Fla., and Worcester, Mass.

Atlanta won next year's convention over Dallas, Texas, and Boston. Before the voting the Southern delegates read a telegram from the Mayor offering $100,000 to the Elks as a municipal appropriation to provide for entertainment and decorations.

WEATHER OVER CROP STATES

Moderate to heavy rains fell in some eastern and northern portions of the cotton belt, but no rain was recorded except near the coast in Texas and Louisiana or in extreme Southern Arkansas, Central Mississippi and West Central Alabama. The sunshine was adequate except in some eastern districts. The temperature averaged slightly above normal in Central and Western Texas and Oklahoma and slightly below in most other cotton districts.

It made fair growth in Georgia, where it was blooming and forming squares but was shedding rapidly due to weevil. The progress was mostly fair in Alabama. It was mostly very good in Tennessee, Mississippi, Florida, South Carolina and Western North Carolina.

Temperature and moisture conditions were favorable for corn in all the Central States, and the crop made satisfactory progress. It was slightly too cool in the northern States, with some frost damage reported in North Dakota. More moisture would be beneficial to the late district in many southern sections. Corn was making rapid growth in Kansas, where it has been laid by and was tasseling in many parts of the eastern half of the State.

Harvest of Winter wheat and other grains made satisfactory progress, except where unfavorably affected by heavy rain in some central and eastern districts. Wind caused some damage to standing grain, and there were a few reports of wheat sprouting in shock, but these conditions were comparatively local.

Cool weather, with ample moisture, was decidedly favorable for Spring wheat in North Central States, and the crop was improved by rainfall in Montana and Northeastern Wyoming. The hot, dry weather was unfavorable for this crop in Washington, Oregon and Idaho. No damage was done to Spring wheat by the frost in North Dakota; this early seed was filling nicely and generally heading. Spring wheat was in very good condition in Minnesota, but was uneven and heading short in some places, due to dry weather.

While oats were poor and short, with stinted heads, in Indiana; the recent rain improved the late crop in the northern portion of that State. Oats were fair to poor in Illinois, where some were too short to bind. Late oats were improved by rain in Iowa, but rain came too late for the early crop. Oats were poor in Nebraska, but barley was fair to good.

MAY SHARE RAIL PROFITS.

Ford Seeks to Include More Employes in Investment Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

LANSING, Mich., July 12.—Henry Ford is planning to extend the profit-sharing plan by which his workers may invest in his enterprises to operatives of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railroad, it was learned here today, when E. G. Liebold, General Manager for that company appeared before the State Public Utilities Commission to ask if that body had any jurisdiction over railroad securities of such a nature.

Members of the commission declined to commit themselves, but asked the Ford official to submit his plan in writing. As the Utilities Commission has full power over the issuance of all railroad securities, its refusal to take jurisdiction over the issuance of securities to employes could be interpreted to mean that a Ford employe, although he might have invested in the company under the plan in operation, was not a bona fide security holder.

It was expected that profit sharing would be extended to the railroad workers because numerous employes who have money invested in the Ford Motor Company are being transferred to the railroad department, and unless the plan is extended they will be forced to withdraw their investments. They cannot continue to draw dividends.

Liebold told the Commissioners that the Ford Company has $15,000,000 of its employes' money invested in the company.

Cuba Railroad Dividend.

Announcement was made yesterday that the Cuba Railroad Company had declared two semiannual dividends of $3 a share on the preferred stock, payable Aug. 15, 1922, and Feb. 15, 1923. Both disbursements are payable to stock of record July 20, 1922. The last previous payment was a $3 semiannual disbursement on Aug. 1, 1920.

B. & O. Orders 35 Mikado Engines.

No Modification of Ford Offer is Expected by Senate Committee.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The meeting of the Senate Agriculture Committee called for tomorrow night by Chairman Norris for the purpose of obtaining final statements from bidders on their offers to develop the Government's nitrate and power projects at Muscle Shoals, Ala., will fail to bring forth any modifications by Henry Ford of the proposal he has made to purchase and lease the properties, it was announced today by persons close to the Detroit manufacturer.

Mr. Ford's last word in that regard, it was said, was given the House Military Committee at the time it concluded its investigation. It was contained in a letter to Chairman Kahn which started in unmistakable language that no further changes in his proposal would be approved. Spokesmen for Mr. Ford recalled the letter today and declared it still was "the last word." They planned to reassert its language before the Senate early tomorrow and upon assurance of entirely content to await the committee's decisions respecting the acceptance or rejection of the offer, to be submitted to the Senate for consideration at an early date.

The opinion also was ventured by Ford supporters that, despite the attitude of some Senate committesmen known to be opposed to the Ford offer, it would be reported to the Senate "in whole and not in part" by the minority of the committee and, since Senator Ladd, Republican, of North Dakota, already had introduced the Wright bill in the Senate, action by that body was possible before adjournment.

18 CHICAGO ALDERMEN SAIL.

Will Tour Europe in Search of Paving Materials.

Headed by Chairman John Toman, eighteen Chicago Aldermen sailed yesterday for Europe on the American liner St. Paul. Some were accompanied by their wives and daughters, bringing the strength of the municipal party up to twenty-five, with William F. Harrah in charge of the travel arrangements. With their coats off and waving their hats the Aldermen were photographed for a film to be sent back to Chicago.

Mr. Toman told the reporters that the committee of which he was the head had passed upon a large number of paving contracts and believed that while abroad they would be able to discover materials that would prove more satisfactory for heavy motor traffic than that which is now being used in Chicago. The Aldermen will land at Hamburg and will visit Berlin, Munich, Vienna, Frankfort, Cologne, Brussels, Paris and London.

A party of fifty Catholic tourists sailed on the St. Paul for a pilgrimage to Rome and a visit to the Passion Play of Oberammergau. They also will tour France, Ireland and England before returning. The St. Paul will call at Queenstown, Plymouth, Cherbourg and Hamburg and carried 408 cabin and 50 steerage passengers.

LOUIS STERN'S WILL FILED.

Value of Merchant's Estate, Which Goes to His Children, Not Indicated.

The will of Louis Stern of Stern Brothers, who died in Paris on June 21, was filed for probate yesterday, but did not indicate the value of the estate. The will directs that an agreement made by Mr. Stern with his daughter, the Baroness Irma de Graffield, of Landshut, Switzerland, and her husband, Baron Lee Graffield, be carried out, and states that the share of the Baroness and her husband will be "not less than $1,000."

The residuary estate will go into a trust fund, the income of which will be paid in equal shares to the children, and upon their death the principal goes to their issue. In addition to the Baroness de Graffield, the testator left a daughter, Beatrice Lisette Stern, now in Paris, and a son, Melville A. Stern, of 64 East Fifty-fifth Street.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, July 12.—A disturbance that developed over Illinois Tuesday night moved rapidly northeastward and its centre was over Eastern Ontario Wednesday night. Pressure was also low Wednesday over the Far Northwest and the Far Southwest, while high pressure prevailed over practically all sections east of the Rocky Mountains.

There have been showers and thunder storms within the last twenty-four hours in the Lake region, the Great Central Valleys and the Plains States and at scattered points in the Southeastern States. Elsewhere fair weather prevailed.

The temperature continued to rise Wednesday in the Atlantic States north of Virginia, and there was a reaction to somewhat higher temperature from the Middle and Upper Missouri Valley westward to the North Pacific Coast, while somewhat cooler weather overspread the Upper Lake region, the Ohio and Middle Mississippi Valleys and portions of the Southwest.

WILL INVOLVE $2,000,000

New Seventh Avenue Building—Masons to Spend $200,000 Improving Old Manhattan Opera House.

As a site for a fourteen-story apartment house, Julius Tishman & Sons, Inc., have leased from Albert Fries the plot on the northeast corner of Eighty-sixth Street and Park Avenue for a long term of years. Work on the new structure, which will contain forty-two apartments, will be started at once, and it is expected that the building will be ready for occupancy about June, 1923.

The total amount involved in the improvement is about $2,000,000.

The same builders are also preparing plans for the construction of another fourteen-story apartment house on the plot located at the southwest corner of Eighty-seventh Street and Park Avenue, 100 by 132, being diagonally opposite the leased site, which will involve a total cost of approximately $1,750,000.

This building will contain fifty-six apartments, consisting of six, seven and eight rooms. E. H. Rapaport, Inc., was the broker in the transaction.

New Seventh Avenue Building.

Plans were filed yesterday for the erection of a sixteen-story manufacturing building, 38 by 93.9, irregular, at 352 and 354 Seventh Avenue and 204 and 206 West Thirtieth Street, by the Clemons Realty Company. J. H. Knubel, architect, estimates the cost at $500,000.

Altering Manhattan Opera House.

Harrison G. Wiseman and Hugo Tausig, architects, have filed plans for making alterations to the old Manhattan Opera House, at 315 West Thirty-fourth Street and 316 West Thirty-fifth Street, to accommodate the Scottish Rite bodies of New York. Portions of the second, third and fourth balconies are to be removed, two stories added on the Thirty-fourth Street side, making it a ten-story edifice and a roof garden built to accommodate 12,000 persons. The Scottish Rite bodies of New York City is the owner of record. The cost of making the alteration has been placed at $290,000.

THEATRE LEASE TO REFEREE

Astor Theatre Tenant Says Bids Were Fictitious.

The Astor Theatre, Inc., which leases the Astor Theatre, won a point yesterday in its injunction suit against the Longacre Square Realty Company, which controls the leasehold of the theatre, to restrain the company from leasing the property to any one but the present lessee on the ground that the tenant has a right to renew the lease terminating Nov. 1, next. Justice Donnelly appointed Robert L. Luce referee to hear the case.

In his decision Justice Donnelly said the renewal of the lease depends upon the performance of certain acts. The owner, it was stated, contends that the tenant has broken the agreement, forfeiting the right to renew.

The tenant insists that the owner is guilty of fraud in that bids submitted to the plaintiff and alleged to have been made for the property by others are fictitious and for the purpose of "jacking up" the rent to be paid in the new lease. The tenant now pays less than $40,000 a year, while bids from $75,000 to $90,000 have been received.

The will of the late Samuel Clark Williams, who died on June 30 at his home, 1,250 Bushwick Avenue, Brooklyn, discloses that he has left a large sum of money to the Salvation Army for relief work. Bequests to friends and employes amount to about $160,000, and the entire estate is estimated from $200,000 to $1,000,000.

ROW WITH CANADIANS.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 12.—Colonel William R. Pooley, commanding the 174th Infantry now in camp at Fort Niagara, today completed an investigation of an alleged attack on a party of Canadians by men from the regiment. The incident, which occurred on the Niagara Falls-Lewiston Road on Sunday, was reported to Colonel Pooley by the United States Consul at Toronto.

"It was the outgrowth of the not unusual Sunday automobile collision," said Colonel Pooley today. "Had the Canadians not become abusive, as our reports indicate, there probably would have been no trouble. Some blows were struck, my report shows, but the Canadians were the aggressors. I have informed the Consul at Toronto that if these people believe the soldiers were at fault they should proceed against them through military channels."

The accident was caused by an automobile suddenly stopping and the two others crashing into it. One was occupied by seven soldiers from the 174th Regiment and another by Canadians.

Mrs. Agnes Hutchinson, mother of one of the men in their automobile and hostess of the visiting Canadian party, said today that the facts regarding the attack by the soldiers would be submitted to Governor Miller. Mrs. Hutchinson said that the soldiers had been drinking, that the attack was unprovoked and that a woman member of the party was handled roughly.

TORONTO, July 12.—Colonel Pooley's version of the altercation on last Sunday was denied today by Mrs. A. Stafford, who was in the automobile party of Canadians. Mrs. Stafford charged the soldiers threatened her party with guns and attacked the men. According to Mrs. Stafford, a soldier who said he was the regimental champion boxer demanded to know by what right the Canadians were in the country. R. Bagnall, one of her party, she said, answered, "We have the same right you have."

That appeared to be a signal for an outburst, she continued, and the seven soldiers jumped on Bagnall and beat him "terribly." She said her brother, John Beatty, dashed into a fruit store and was followed by a soldier, who struck the fruiterer's wife in trying to get at him. Then the soldier pulled out a revolver, Mrs. Stafford said, and when she tried to keep him from firing struck her.

She said the soldiers stopped their attack only when police arrived, and that as they went away they fired two shots at a passing machine.

TO JAIL PARIS TAX EVADER.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 12.—The vigor with which tax collectors are recovering the sums so badly needed in view of France's financial difficulties receives one more illustration today. A prominent Paris physician, Armand Rotand, whose earnings averaged as much as 1,500 francs daily, having made false returns on his taxes, alleging he had suffered financial loss during the last fiscal year owing to the heavy cost of building a new laboratory, has been sentenced by a Paris court to serve a term of four months in prison and pay a fine of 10,000 francs in addition to the sums due on his real income.

Among the working classes the income tax still meets with great opposition, extremist Syndicalist organizations supporting the workmen who evade the application of the law. Yesterday a large crowd of Syndicalists and out-of-work laborers gathered in St. Denis in order to prevent the seizure by bailiffs of the belongings of two of their comrades who refused to pay the income tax. The red flag was hoisted and speeches were delivered, but the police remained absent and the bailiffs did not appear.

SETTLE BIG SHIP CLAIM.

Board Pays Standifer Firm $998,416—$10,000,000 Asked.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—A claim against the Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation by the Standifer Construction Corporation of Seattle, originally in excess of $10,000,000, was settled today by the board for $998,416, plus $500,000 which already had been paid.

The original claim for losses sustained through the cancellation of five steel ship contracts and changing lump sum contracts to cost plus contracts, was settled in May, 1921, by the old board for $2,791,000 maximum, subject to certain audits. Of this award, $500,000 was paid at the time.

SELTZER TO FIGHT CHARGES

Publisher's Lawyer Says Alleged Obscene Books Are Classics.

The charge made by John S. Sumner, Secretary of the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice, that three books published by Thomas Seltzer of 5 West Fiftieth Street are immoral and obscene will be fought Jonah J. Goldstein, attorney for Mr. Seltzer, announced yesterday.

"I will not try to have the charge dismissed," said Mr. Goldstein. "I have carefully read 'Women in Love,' by D. H. Lawrence, 'Casanova's Homecoming' by Arthur Schnitzler, and 'A Young Girl's Diary,' by an anonymous author, and do not find any justification for the charge. The books are, in my judgment, classics of the day.

"I am as confident that the penal law and the decisions interpreting it do not forbid the publication, sale and distribution of such books, which tend to elevate the tone and the morals of the community."

Mr. Seltzer has received several letters praising him for publishing the books and offering aid to fight the case.

NURSE ON TRIAL FOR THEFT.

Accused of Stealing $800 Ring in Home of David R. Lamont.

Testimony in the trial of Miss Elizabeth C. Kelly, a nurse, accused of stealing an $800 diamond ring from the home of David R. Lamont, a banker, at 320 West Eighty-second Street, on Dec. 24, 1918, will begin this morning, Judge Koenig announced in General Sessions yesterday after the jury had been selected.

Miss Kelly, who gave her age as 38, but who is white-haired and looks much older, was alleged to have stolen the ring while she was attending the bankers son, John Lamont, during a serious illness. She was arrested a few days later, but discharged by a Magistrate for lack of evidence.

She was rearrested last May on the same charge after her return from Paris, where she had begun a suit for slander against Mrs. Peter Cooper Hewitt, widow of the inventor, and Captain Rupert Higgins. Miss Kelly alleged that Captain Higgins filed a complaint with the Paris police charging her with the theft of a diamond brooch from Mrs. Hewitt.

NEGRO TO OPPOSE ANSORGE.

To Seek Congressional Seat in Revolt Against Party Leaders.

Leaders of negro voters in the revolt against Republican party management in several Harlem districts, at a meeting last night at the United Civic League, 184 West 135th Street, announced that a negro candidate would be chosen to contest the renomination of Martin C. Ansorge, Representative in the Twenty-first Congressional District. William H. Ferris, who is a Yale graduate and editor of the Negro World, was one of several suggested as candidate.

It was said also that a contest would be waged against Robert S. Conklin, a Deputy Attorney General.

A dispute between Robert Rankin and his wife, Enid Duryea Rankin, over the ownership of personal effects exceeding $50,000 in value and stored in the Manhattan Storage Warehouse at Fifty-second Street and Seventh Avenue, led to the filing of a suit in the Supreme Court yesterday against both by the storage company for a court ruling as to the ownership, and for an injunction restraining them from suing for the property until the court directs that the property be delivered to one or the other after the charges have been paid.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Rankin made a formal demand for the possession of the property and each threatened to sue if possession was refused.

COMMERCIAL LEASES.

East Side Garage, Near Park Avenue, in $500,000 Deal.

Boutin & Robinson, Inc., leased through the Interboro Realty Company the buildings known as the Urban Motor Car Company Buildings, 112 to 118 East Seventy-fifth Street, to Campbell & Dannatt.

This property is one of the largest garage and service station buildings on the east side and is only 100 feet east of Park Avenue and has a capacity for 300 cars. A sum close to $100,000 was paid for the transfer of the lease. The aggregate gross rental amounted to an additional $400,000.

The rental represents a front foot value of $500, the store being thirty feet in depth. This indicates a new high mark in store rentals for the upper Broadway section, according to Sidney L. Warsawer, the broker in the deal.

The London Interior Decorating Company, Leonard H. OUR ARMY DROPS GAS AS TREATY PROVIDES

SPECIAL SCHOOL CREATED

Training to Be With Smoke, Incendiary Materials and Non-Toxic Gas.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—In harmony with the spirit of decisions reached by the recent arms conference at Washington, the War Department has ordered that the manufacture of poison gas for the United States Army be discontinued. Limited quantities for research and development of gas defense appliances still will be produced, however. Filling of projectiles and containers with poison gas also was ordered stopped, except for a limited number needed to perfect defense apparatus.

The action took the form of a general order, signed by General John J. Pershing, as Chief of Staff, by direction of Secretary of War Weeks. The order follows:

"In order that the United States may carry out the provision contained in Article V. of the treaty in relation to the use of submarines and noxious gases in warfare, signed Feb. 6, 1922, and ratified by the United States Senate, March 29, 1922, the following limitations will be observed in connection with the procurement, design research, development and supply in chemical warfare materials as given in Section III., General Orders No. 54, War Department, 1920.

"The investigation, development, procurement, manufacture, or supply of poisonous gases for the present will be limited strictly to the amount necessary for the research and development of gas-defense appliances.

"The filling of all projectiles and containers with poisonous gas will be discontinued, except for the limited number needed in perfecting gas-defense appliances."

Another modification of existing regulations concerning the training of the army in chemical warfare was announced by the War Department today as follows:

"Under the act of Congress approved June 4, 1920, training and instruction of the army in chemical warfare will be confined to the use of smoke, incendiary materials, non-toxic gas for training, and gas-defense appliances."

This order then directs that there shall be a special service school at which specified officers and non-commissioned officers of the army and the National Guard shall be trained. Provision is made for chemical warfare personnel as instructors in defensive chemical warfare at general service schools and at certain special service schools, and for representation on the staffs of departments, corps areas and divisions. Specially trained men also are to be detailed to departments and corps areas during periods of field training.

Democracy of Style

A man can step out of one of our stores as correctly and smartly dressed as anyone he will meet in the most exclusive places.

And it won't have strained his income. It is literally true that a man's wealth is no longer indicated by his dress.

When it comes to style in clothes, hats and haberdashery, New Yorkers are born free and equal.

Our four stores are operated primarily to serve men of average incomes, but, as a matter of fact, we count among our customers a great many men of wealth.

Why the Silvertown Cord stands alone

It has always held the leadership.

You can get it in any size, from 30 x 3½ up—and each and every Silvertown is the same quality throughout.

PAIGE

During the first six months of this year, the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company manufactured and sold fifty per cent more automobiles than were produced during the entire year of 1921.

There could be no more substantial tribute to the worth and outstanding value of the Paige and the Jewett. Such a sales record proves conclusively that these two great motor cars have been accepted as leaders in their respective fields.
